

Squadron 7 Leads 'Mural Standings With 425 Points

Squadron 7, last year's intramural champion, is on top of the standings as the second semester of intramural play begins.

Closely following in successive order are squadron 11, A quartermaster, B infantry, squadron 5, squadron 6, A infantry, AAA, A chemical and in tenth place is squadron 14.

Squadron 7 rolled up 425 points, while its closest rival, squadron 11, had 415.

Squadron 21 leads the race for the top unit in the freshman area with the total of 395 points. Company F is close behind with 381.7.

Other units which are top contenders in the freshman area are company B, squadron 20, squadron 23, company L, squadron 22 and company I.

Dormitory 4 leads the non-military class with College View and dormitory 2 in second and third place respectively.

The Hillel club is in first place in club competition with the Newman club and Physical Education club close behind.

About 75 persons attended the intramural athletic officer's meeting and discussed registration for the coming intramural events.

There has been trouble in the receiving of the mail in the boxes next to the mess halls which could be corrected by each unit picking up its own mail, said Barney Welch, intramural director.

Units should always double check games which have been cancelled or rescheduled, said Welch.

All intramural champions in all classes should meet at the gym Monday at 5 p.m. to have their picture made for the Aggie land.

The number two uniforms will be worn by cadets and ties should be worn by other students, said Welch.

All wrestlers are to weigh in Tuesday and Wednesday at the intramural office. They will be put in classes according to their weight.

Thursday all wrestlers are invited to witness wrestling demonstration in DeWare field house at 5 p.m.

Intramural wrestling will begin Tuesday, Feb. 16.

Ellis to Go To Greenville With Faircloth

Don Ellis, all-Southwest Conference quarterback for A&M last season, has been named backfield coach at Greenville high school by Greenville's new head coach Dalton Faircloth. Faircloth recently resigned from the A&M coaching staff.

Faircloth last night said Ellis would probably come to Greenville next August, when he will be graduated from A&M. Faircloth, presently in College Station, plans to move to Greenville sometime in April in time for spring practice.

One problem facing Ellis' acceptance of the job, according to Faircloth, is the fact that the former Aggie guidman plans to receive an air force commission upon graduation. He is a AFROTC flight operations student, and Faircloth fears that unless Ellis can be switched to another category, he will be called into service soon after receiving his commission.

Faircloth said that he recently took Ellis with him to Greenville to look over the situation there. "Don really made a good impression with the school and players up there," said Faircloth "it was quite an inspiration to those boys to know they were going to be coached by an all-SWC player. Ellis should go over big if he can keep the job."

Faircloth was Ellis' high school coach for four years, and then tutored him again for three years at A&M. Faircloth said that he has developed a strong affection for Ellis.

A CAMPUS-TO-CAREER CASE HISTORY

He had a head start

It took a class reunion to show Ed Mahler, '50, that all first jobs are not alike. He tells us why. (Reading time: 33 seconds)

The class reunion at his alma mater, Swarthmore College, was an eye-opener for Ed Mahler. The talk among the Class of '50 switched to jobs. Ed had taken it for granted that everybody was happy with his work.

Then he found that some of his classmates had had two or three jobs since leaving school. Others had kept the same one but weren't satisfied. By sticking with his first job and intending to make it a lifetime career, Ed suddenly discovered he had a head start.

After being graduated with a B.A. in Economics, he went to work for Bell Telephone Company of Pennsylvania in 1950. He reports he chose the Telephone Company because it seemed to offer the best chance for a career.

After a year of training in which he worked in each of the departments—installing telephones, handling business contacts with customers—Ed felt he had a good look at the entire company.

He was assigned to the Traffic Department, which has the responsibility for seeing that customers' calls are handled efficiently. The job included personnel work in addition to developing better operating methods and practices. He was quickly put on his own.

Now Ed has been transferred to the job of estimating the amount and type of new equipment which will be needed in central offices as their customers increase.

Ed points out that projecting himself into the future isn't anything new. That's precisely what he attempted to do when he chose his first—and only—job.

Ed Mahler's job is with an operating company of the Bell System. But there are also jobs for engineers, arts and science and business administration graduates with Western Electric, Sandia Corporation, and Bell Telephone Laboratories.
