NCAA Head Lauds College Athletics

CHICAGO—(AP)—After imposing penalties and reprimands on a conference and seven colleges, the National Collegiate Athletic Association, has a round of applause for the nation's colleges in general for their fight against athletic "excesses and abuses."

A. B. Moore, NCAA president and dean of the University of Alabama Graduate School, said at the conclusion of the NCAA meetings Saturday that "our intercollegiate activities are on the upswing toward a positive future."

"It appears that intercollegiate athletics have done much to curb the excesses and abuses which were a part of its tremendous post-war expansion," he said.
