

Hi, SCHOOL

Pete Mayeaux's Combo will play for the annual junior-senior banquet and dance at A&M Consolidated high school Saturday evening.

The dinner will begin at 7 p. m. and the dance at 9 p. m. The main speaker is Mrs. David H. Morgan. Roy Courim will be master of ceremonies for the evening. Those on the program include Jimmy Bond and Jean Adams who will sing. Carol Williams will give a record pantomime, and Roland Beasley will present a trumpet solo.

Helen Ross will read the class prophecy written by Betsy Burchard, and a member of the senior class will read the will.

Jimmy Cashion will give a history of the gavel which is presented each year to the president of the junior class. The gavel tradition is celebrating its twelfth anniversary this year.

Invitations have been sent out, and about 150 persons are expected to attend.

The freshmen class will leave at 6:30 a. m. Saturday for Ft. Parker for the annual trip.

The students will leave by bus from the school and take their lunches with them. Ft. Parker is near Groesbeck.

Plans include a picnic and swimming with drinks furnished by the school. Several teachers and parents of the students will chaperone.

There will be a tea at 3 p. m. Saturday honoring Marilyn Flock, Sandra Couch, and Kay Farnell from Bryan.

It will be at the home of Mrs. George Draper, 1013 Walton E. Co-hostesses with Mrs. Draper are Mrs. W. E. Briles and Mrs. John Quisenberry.

High school girls from College Station and Bryan have been invited.

The annual Night of Music at the high school will be held at 8 p. m. Friday in the gym.

Numbers will be presented by the band, chorus and several small ensembles and soloists.

Tickets are available from cast members, the high school office, and will be sold at the door. Price is 50 and 25 cents.

Guerard To Dance For Ballet Show

Roland Guerard will be the principal dancer at 8 p. m. Saturday when Frances Putnam studios presents "Ballet in Miniature" at the SFA high school auditorium in Bryan.

Guerard is the teacher who showed A&M's high-jumper Walt Davis how to approach leaps and jumps from a dancer's standpoint.

The ballet will be presented by a company of 12, all of whom are advanced students or professionals studying at the Putnam studio in Houston or Bryan.

The program, a full hour of dancing will be made up of two short ballets and a group of miscellaneous dances.

Saturday night's performance in Bryan is sponsored by the St. Andrew's Guild of St. Andrew's Episcopal church in Bryan. There will be an admission charge to help defray expenses.

Unemployment Up Slightly In May

Unemployment was slightly higher last month in the College Station-Bryan area than it was the previous month, according to the Texas Employment commission.

College Station - Bryan labor market reports show there are 321 job applicants now, and 294 April 1.

A number of these applicants are new entrants into the job market, and soon-to-be high school and college graduates.

There were 178 local applicants placed by the Bryan labor market office in April. Another 851 agricultural workers were placed with farmers operating in this area.

Party dessert: pour chocolate sauce over drained canned peas and top with whipped cream to which a little rum flavoring has been added.

School elections will be held Friday. Officers to be elected are four yell leaders, editor and business managers of the yearbook, the student body president and student council members.

Seniors begin final exams Wednesday in preparation for commencement Monday, May 24. Other students' exams begin May 26.

The staff of the Tigerland, high school annual, will have a theatre party Thursday.

Staff members will meet in front of the school at 7 p. m. and attend a local movie.

After the movie the students will go to the home of Mrs. A. R. Orr, yearbook adviser, for refreshments and television.

Awards will be made to outstanding students at the annual awards assembly program May 21. Awards to be made are the Babe Ruth sportsmanship award to a boy and girl, the DAR citizenship and American history awards, honor roll recognition, perfect attendance, outstanding club workers.

Also outstanding musicians in band and chorus, winners in league participation, homeroom leadership, best mannered boy and girl, outstanding physical education students, Bausch - Lomb science award and the Arion music award.

Additional activities scheduled from now to the end of school are: May 13, Junior high election, 10:30 a. m.

May 14, High school sports day, afternoon.

May 20, Athletic banquet, MSC 6:30 p. m.

May 23, Baccalaureate sermon, First Baptist church, 8 p. m.

May 24, Commencement, Gunion hall, 8 p. m.

May 26, Graduating seniors' trip to Mission Valley.

May 28, Last day of school.

20 Million Women Work, Clean House

By VIVIAN BROWN AP Newsfeatures Writer

Lack of time is one of the things some 20 million working women have in common, says Charlotte Adams, who has just authored a home-making guide for working women.

Her new book, "Housekeeping after Office Hours," stresses the importance of the orderly method of housekeeping — the system, schedule and routine which make life simpler for busy women who have little time for housekeeping.

Miss Adams, housekeeping and food expert, offers to the disorganized, in particular, a daily schedule from the basic "Get Up" to seeing that clothes are in order for the next day. She assumes the working woman is without help and works a full day.

Her "Weekly Homework" chart advises that on Monday clothes go to laundry on the way to work and that on Tuesday you take the clothes to the cleaners, etc. She sees free-day Saturday as the day to market, have the laundry delivered and put it away and to do the big chores such as vacuuming, scrubbing and waxing linoleum, if necessary. The little extra tasks such as polishing metals, defrosting the refrigerator and mending clothes may be spaced over the week at any free time.

She believes that if there is a husband or older children they should certainly share the work.

Mechanical aids such as the washing machine, ironer, and vacuum cleaner should make the career girl's life simple, she says, but she thinks too many of these instruction booklets "are not nearly so informative as they might be."

She offers advice in the care and maintenance of all such equipment which might confuse or be booby traps to the housewife from the steam iron to the broiler rotisserie.

She advises about kitchen equipment that "before you buy, you review your cooking habits and the types of food you serve most, so that you may be sure to acquire what is needed."

She suggests that "oven pans should be designed for easy handling with potholders, that rolled rims make metal pans easier to grasp firmly, and that pottery or glass oven dishes should have handles or protruding ears.

Whipped cream makes a quick and delicious topping for a cake. But after you spread it on the top layer, sprinkle it with toasted coconut, chocolate shot or shavings of chocolate, or chopped nuts, so you'll have a pretty effect. Tastes good, too!

Floor coverings and plastics are explained in this book as well as table settings. Miss Adams says, "Most of us are not as obsessed as was the generation before us about what is the correct thing to possess or to do. This is all to the good. . . we are interested in setting beautiful and attractive tables . . . but with less fuss and feathers. She advises as the first rule of thumb in selecting silver that "anything simple is likely to wear better . . . and anything classic is likely to remain in your favor longer than anything very much of the moment. She advises simplicity in the selection of glass, and thinks that "if you can afford to own it, fine china is perhaps not as perishable as you are inclined to think."

A chapter "Be Your Own Handy-woman" explains that "most of us pay outside helpers a good deal of money to do minor repairs in our homes. In this respect, our education has failed us miserably."

She advises learning rudiments by watching the plumber change the washer some time, asking a few questions.

She also gives advice on how to rewire a plug, how to repair a radio, and what tools to own for small repairs.

She advises that "the cardinal factor to be considered in planning meals to be prepared by the working - woman cook are time of preparation, simplicity, nutritive value, balance and variety."

She suggests a typical 20-minute menu for a busy girl, which begins in the morning when she puts melon balls in the refrigerator to defrost. Her dinner menu includes hamburgers in barbecue sauce and quick-frozen foods—potatoes, broccoli and brown 'n serve biscuits.

Common Sense Aids Child's Convalescence

By ANNETTE DAVIS

The aftermath of a child's illness can be more of a problem than the illness itself.

"If a child is allowed to become too demanding or dependent while he is sick, he may have difficulty adjusting to other children when he returns to a normal routine," says Dr. Thelma Hunt, head of the Psychology Department of George Washington University.

A child who has been coddled too much may run to mother for protection when he should be taking up for himself, she says. To avoid this, she cautions the mother not to let her sympathy get the best of her and not to disrupt any training schedule which has been started.

Knowing when to call the doctor sometimes presents a problem. Dr. Hunt gives these suggestions:

Call the doctor if the child's temperature goes too high, if he is sick more than a couple of days, or if there are any peculiar signs and symptoms which are different from past illnesses.

The doctor should always be called, Dr. Hunt emphasizes, if the mother is so worried that she stands a chance of upsetting the child. Sometimes, just talking with the doctor over the phone can reassure an anxious mother.

"If a child has built up a fear of the doctor, it's the doctor's fault most of the time, not the child's," says Dr. Hunt, who carries on a private practice herself.

There are two important things a mother should understand about her child's illness, says Dr. Hunt.

First, she should be able to recognize the difference between a real sickness and the times when little Tommy says he "doesn't feel good" because he wants to stay home from school. One of the best ways to tell is by taking his temperature. If he has fever, that is a good indication he should stay at home.

The second thing to know is that a sick child behaves differently. Even a slight temperature may cause him to be more irritable than usual.

Spring Art Show Announces Winners

About $265 in cash prizes and merchandise was awarded at the annual Spring Art Group show.

The prizes were given by 50 College Station and Bryan business firms.

Janet Turner, art instructor at Stephen F. Austin college in Nacogdoches, judged the show. It consisted of 127 paintings in various media.

The show was divided into three different parts. These were student, faculty and staff, associate members and children seven to thirteen years old.

Chartier Newton was awarded the best all around student painting prize and B. Clark won the same honor in the associate member show.

The art show opened May 6. Paintings will be on display until May 22 in the serpentine lounge of the Memorial Student Center.

Got a deal just for YOU!
Aggie, (bless your wonderful heart). You will need money next fall, and I need your books now. Bring in your used books now, and I will give you credit for four books for every five you turn in to me. Next fall when dear old dad, (bless his heart too, because where would you be if it weren't for him, and I would be out of business if it weren't for you, dear Aggie), gives you money for books, then you will already have the books, with spending money for all those babes next fall. Friend if you pass up this deal you lose out an Aggie. Why? Aggies are tight, (one way or the other), and friend this is a real Scotchman's deal.
