

FAMILY FAVORITES

By Mrs. Charles D. Holland
Eleanore W. Holland was born and raised in Hawaii on the island Maui, where her father was connected with a sugar plantation. When she was 18, she came to this country to attend a Catholic girls' school, Holy Names, in San Francisco. She met her husband in 1945 and married him shortly thereafter. They are the parents of three children, two girls and one boy.

You may think of Hawaii in terms of a luau, the traditional feast, with roast suckling pig, pineapple and mounds of fruit piled high on a ti leaf. This is what you have seen in the movies or in advertisements. But what you would probably eat more of than anything else would be Japanese and Chinese food. The population of Hawaii is predominantly Japanese, and the Chinese have also made themselves well known.

No one would think of visiting Hawaii without having at least one meal at world famous Lau Yee Chi on Waikiki beach. You sit in a lovely dining room opening out to a perfectly beautiful Chinese-tropical garden, complete with fish pond and orchids. In the background you hear soft music. The air is balmy; the flower lei around your neck, fragrant. You are ready for a wonderful dinner.

You don't say to the waiter, "Give me dinner number so-and-so." You look over the menu carefully and pick out the dishes you want. Last fall when I was at Lau Yee Chi we ordered egg roll, sweet-sour spare ribs, lobster in a delicious sauce, and bowls of steaming fluffy rice. Then you always have your pot of hot tea.

Let's pretend we are having dinner at this world famous restaurant on Waikiki beach. Tuck a flower in your hair and let's get started. You may substitute any of the ingredients and omit the wine. But remember—every dish is served with steamed rice.

Beef Tomato

- 1 lb. meat sliced thin
- 2 medium onions
- 2 stalks celery
- 2 bell peppers
- 5 or 6 tomatoes
- Green onion

Marinate meat in:

- 2 tablespoons sugar
- 2 tablespoons wine
- Slice onions and celery. Slice and parboil bell peppers 3 minutes. Fry meat in 2 tablespoons heated oil and remove from pot.
- Fry onions, celery and pepper in 1 tablespoon oil for 1 minute; add sliced tomatoes and 1/2 teaspoon salt. Add gravy (see below), bring to boil. Turn flame off and add meat. Garnish with green onion and serve.

Gravy

- 1 tablespoon corn starch
- 1 tablespoon shoyu sauce
- 2 teaspoons sugar
- 2 teaspoons sugar

Pig's Feet

- 1 pair pig's feet
- 1 clove garlic
- 1 cup peanut oil
- Salt
- Vinegar
- 1/2 cup sugar
- 1/2 cup flour

Fry pig's feet in peanut oil. Add garlic and salt. Cover with vinegar and simmer over slow fire until very tender.

When done put in sugar and flour mixed with a little water. Cook another 10 minutes.

Fried Shrimp

Slice thin 1/2 lb. string beans, 10 mushrooms, 1 onion. Fry in pan with peanut oil. Add 1 cup shrimp, 3 tablespoons shoyu sauce and 1 teaspoon salt. Mix 1 tablespoon flour with water and add. Mix well until done.

Shrimp Omelet

Add to 5 beaten eggs 1 tablespoon shoyu sauce, 1/2 cup shredded onion. Pour half into small frying pan of peanut oil. Sprinkle with finely chopped shrimp. Add remainder of egg mixture.

Egg Foo Young

- 3/4 cup raw ham strips
- 3/4 cup bamboo shoot strips
- 3/4 cup celery strips
- 3/4 cup Chinese peas strips
- 6 eggs
- 5 mushroom strips
- Green onion

Fry bamboo strips 1 minute. Add ham and fry another minute. Add peas, celery, green onions. Season with shoyu sauce, salt and pepper.

Heat 2 tablespoons oil in 9 inch frying pan. Fry egg mixture on high fire for 1 minute. Reduce heat and cook until eggs coagulate. Turn and fry other side. Cut into diamonds and serve.

Sweet-Sour Spare Ribs

- 2 lbs. fresh pork ribs
- 1 clove garlic chopped fine
- 1 tablespoon ginger root,
- chopped fine
- 1/4 cup shoyu sauce
- 1/2 cup vinegar
- 2 tablespoons sugar

Cut spare ribs in two inch pieces. Brown them in a pot. Add vinegar, shoyu, garlic, ginger and sugar. Cover with water and simmer until tender. Thicken the gravy with cornstarch and serve.

Steamed Rice

1 1/2 cups rice
1 1/2 cups cold water
Use a roomy sauce pan with a tight-fitting cover. Wash the rice thoroughly until the water drained off is clear. Add cold water and cover. Place on low heat for about 20 minutes. Turn off burner and let it sit.

Now that you have had your wonderful Chinese dinner, you walk through those exquisitely carved teakwood doors out into a night fragrant with plumeria. A stroll along Waikiki's avenue, colorful with lei sellers loaded down with arms of leis—the whispering of the surf rolling up on the shore. You think to yourself, "This is paradise."

(Editor's note: Mrs. Holland has been kind enough to prepare not just one column, but three! Her next column, on Japanese-Hawaiian cooking, will appear in a few weeks.)

Dr. Wright Leaves A&M For New Job

Dr. Welcome E. Wright, associate professor of industrial education, has resigned to accept an appointment as head of the industrial education department at the East Texas State Teachers college at Commerce.

The new appointment is effective Sept. 1, 1954. Wright will continue his teaching assignments here until that time.

"He is a popular teacher and has made many contributions through his civic interests and to the industrial education profession generally," Dr. Chris Groneman, head of the industrial education department, said.

Wright, who joined the industrial education staff in January, 1946, as assistant professor, received his BS degree from East Texas State Teachers college in 1932. He was active in publications, band and athletics, having won two football letters and serving as class officer for two years.

He received his master's degree from A&M in 1939, after which he did additional graduate study at Ohio State university and the Pennsylvania State university, where he received his doctor's degree in 1953.

Prior to coming to A&M, Wright taught industrial arts in high schools at White Oak and Longview. He has also had industrial experience with Ford, Bacon and Davis at Marshall and Consolidated Vultee Aircraft at Fort Worth.

He is an active member of many professional and educational organizations and has presented papers at national conventions and contributes magazine articles to two professional magazines.

Dr. and Mrs. Wright have two children, Sarah Kay and Welynda.
