

HI, SCHOOL

Members of the Band Boosters club are hard at work getting ready for the big carnival which they will sponsor October 23 to raise money for band uniforms and instruments. A similar affair, staged last spring, was an outstanding success and many popular features will be repeated.

The Lions club is cooperating in the project and will again provide the popular dunking pond. Superintendent Les Richardson, principals J. J. Skrivaneck jr. and W. T. Riedel, and a member of the board of education have all volunteered to be targets.

Marion Pugh Lumber Co. and Dale Construction Co. are donating materials for booths which will be erected by members of the Kiwanis club under supervision of Dr. E. E. Ivy. Patrol Leader George Litton with a group of boy scouts of troop 102 will erect tents for the fortune teller and palmist.

The identity of the fortune teller is restricted, but the palm-reader will be Dr. Isaac Peters, blue cheese specialist with the A&M dairy department. Dr. Peters learned his art from a band of Russian gypsies.

There also will be pony rides, fish pond, country store and moving pictures. The band will maneuver, a magician will mystify and there will be a four-act floor show.

Through the courtesy of the Better Homes Appliance store CHS students were able to watch the world series on television. A set was installed in the library where everyone who had free periods could watch.

While the outcome of the series is history, a new controversy has arisen, namely how to spend the fund which students contributed for the privilege of watching the games. Some favor using it to start a fund toward the purchase of a TV set for the school; others feel a water cooler would be of more value.

The Round-up staff sponsored a cake sale Monday to raise funds for publishing the school paper and collected $11.64. Mrs. C. H. Blum assisted with the project, and reporters, editors and artists laid aside their pencils long enough to stir up some good home-made cakes, thereby proving that newspaper people are versatile as well as hard working. The sale was held on the high school terrace during the noon hour and after school.

October 22 will be homecoming at A&M Consolidated. The Tigers will meet Sealy in a conference game. There will be coronation ceremonies for the queen at half-time and the occasion will be climaxed by a big student council-sponsored dance.

The queen will be selected from these candidates nominated by the football players: Anna Beaty and Jean Puddy, seniors; Ann Fleming and Jean Smith, juniors; Lucy Rogers and Nell Ross, sophomores; and Carolyn Wilson and Ann Cleland, freshmen.

The senior class will sponsor the election and take charge of the coronation and students may cast as many votes as they please—at a penny a vote. All the money going into the class treasury will be put to good use.

All CHS exes are invited to the homecoming festivities. Aggies with dates also will be welcomed at the free dance after the game. Cold drinks and cookies will be served as a courtesy of the student council.

On the coke and cookie committee will be Lucy Rogers, Nancy Smith and Edward Linton. J. B. Carroll and Rita Hughes will be in charge of the juke box.

Mrs. Sims Gives Convention Report

Mrs. Robbie Sims, local delegate to the American Veterinary Medical Association Student Wives auxiliary convention in Seattle, Wash., in August, gave a detailed report of her trip at the meeting of the AVMA Student Wives Auxiliary Thursday night.

The meeting was held in the social room of the Memorial Student Center.

Mrs. Sims, president of the club, presented the revised constitution which was adopted during the business session. The resignation of Mrs. A. A. Price as auxiliary sponsor was announced. Election for her replacement will be held at the next meeting.

Mrs. Laura Holt designed the table centerpiece which depicted phases of the life of a veterinarian in college and in actual practice. Cokes and cookies were served by the hostesses, wives of the class of '55.

being written (we non-regs aren't too well informed, you know). In any case, I would like to see such a book published. I also think it would be wise if this book were made required reading for all new students, and it would probably be wise for all students to brush up on their Aggie Etiquette by reading such a book.

Last night as I turned to walk away from Silver Taps I saw three men light cigarettes before even leaving the spot upon which they stood while Silver Taps were being played. I always thought that Silver Taps was a reverent occasion and that while going back to the dorms there was to be no talking or smoking. I don't believe these men had been informed of this, otherwise I believe they would have acted in accordance. I also have seen many other things which would probably seem small to some people, but which actually mean a great deal to me.

If one of the Battalion staff writers would run a series of articles about Aggie traditions and customs it would prove valuable to everyone on the campus, the Freshmen particularly.

...and how it started.

TERESA WRIGHT says: "Up to 16, my knowledge of acting had been gleaned from seeing movies. When I saw my first professional play, that was it: I only wanted to act. I got into high school plays, wrestled props at Provincetown, understudied, sat for months in producers' reception rooms. One rainy night, sick with a cold, I read for a good role, and got it!"
