

Something Hidden

Somebody's trying to hide something here. The Academic council met yesterday, and "there is no news release on the meeting." And the college officials aren't answering any direct questions, either. It is probable that the proposed general curriculum plan, in which A&M army ROTC students are vitally concerned, was discussed, yet the college doesn't want to say whether the plan was accepted or rejected. Even if this plan wasn't discussed, the fact that the administration doesn't want to talk indicates that something is goin on, and going on in secrecy. The college has played fair with the students in most instances this year. It's a shame they have to start concealing things now.

New Fire Hydrant Planned for CHS

Contract for a new fire hydrant at A&M Consolidated high school has been let to Andrews and Parker construction company, said Ran Boswell, city manager. The hydrant will take the place of an old one located outside the chain link fence which circles the school. It was reported to be impossible to get a fire truck inside the fence in case of a fire. CHS is paying half of the $2,415 while the city is paying the other half. The six inch water main will serve the school with another plug, easier and faster to reach in case of fire.

Law Course Aids Public Relations

Sam C. Hoyle jr., A&M business law instructor, says in last month's Bar Journal that the teaching of business law is an important factor in improving the law profession's public relations and in combating unauthorized practices. The article is the result of a survey Hoyle conducted on the teaching of business law in Texas colleges. The survey was commissioned by the Committee on Public Information of the State Bar of Texas.

Frank E. Patterson was elected president of the Marshall hometown club. Other officers are Robert A. Hanson, vice-president; William A. Lewis, secretary-treasurer; and Kenneth B. Livingston, reporter.

Book Display Will Continue Thru Friday

The A&M Consolidated elementary school has books by 25 authors in their "Books on Exhibit" display, according to Mrs. H. S. Creswell, principal. The school is exhibiting 550 books of a grammar school level to the students. The purpose of the exhibit is to allow students to select the books they would like to read in order that the school may order them. A list of the books is turned in by the students after examining them. A survey will be taken and the ones which show the greatest reader interest will be bought.

The students are allowed during their reading and English periods to browse through the books and make their selections.

The reaction by the students to the books has been very favorable. The boys seem to enjoy adventure stories, such as "The Silver Trap" and "Cochise". The girls have been picking the romantic type, such as "Bonnie, Island Girl."

The exhibit has been shown in 20 states and has received favorable comments from educators around the country. College Station is one of 17 communities in Texas that is holding the exhibit this year.

Don't you be the Millionth Man (or the one who kills him)

America's millionth traffic fatality will occur this December, the National Safety Council says. Is it possible to postpone that millionth death? Are there any steps you can take to avoid being the victim—or the unwilling killer? Yes! Remember these simple safety rules. Put them into practice . . . all the time.

Obey speed laws! Speeding drivers are involved in 1 out of 3 fatal traffic accidents. If you like to speed, better slow down—before it costs you your life.

Watch out for children! Last year 120,000 children were involved in accidents. Be extra cautious when driving near schools, playgrounds, or in residential areas.

Safety-check your car! Bad brakes, tires or lights can put you and your family in the hospital, or in the cemetery. Keep your car in perfect running condition.

Be doubly alert at night! Over half of all traffic fatalities occur at night. Walking or driving, you need a double order of caution to make up for reduced visibility.

Four simple rules. Follow them.

Don't you be one in a million!
