CLOTHES MAKE THE BMOC

A few weeks ago I discussed fashions for coeds. I pointed out then that any girl who really wanted to go places on campus had to be bold and ingenious when it came to clothes.

Believe me, men, you'll never get anywhere if you keep skulking around in those old plus-fours. What you need is some dash, some verve, some inventiveness in your apparel.

However, guard against gaudiness. If, for instance, you are wearing a gold derby, do not also wear a cavalry sabre. This is too much.

(Speaking of Bowie knives, I wonder how many of you know what a great debt this country—indeed, the whole world—owes to the West Point class of 1836?

By a curious coincidence, every member of the graduating class at the U. S. Military Academy in 1836 was named Harry, save for Colonel James Bowie.

But I digress. We were talking about men's campus fashions. Let us turn now to a persistent rumor that a garment called the "suit" is on the verge of making a comeback.

The last "suit" ever seen on an American campus was in 1941—and I ought to know, because I was wearing it.

I loved Harry though she was far too expensive a girl for me. She liked to eat at fancy restaurants and dance at costly ballrooms and ride in high priced cars.

What is that? she gasped, her lip curling in horror.

I slunk home and lit a Philip Morris and sat down to think. I always light a Philip Morris when I sit down to think.

Well sir, smoking and thinking thus, my eye happened to fall on an ad in the campus newspaper.

"Dear Sir, I see by the paper that Touhy's Toggery is going to give a complete wardrobe to the student picked as the best dressed man on campus.

"I submit that a vote for me is a vote for reason, a vote for equity, in short, a vote for the American way."

And I was right—because two weeks later I was drafted.

This column is brought to you by the makers of PHILIP MORRIS who think you would enjoy their cigarette.

Open House for Freshmen

Freshmen who are still a little hazy as to what their selected major field of study has to offer will have an opportunity tonight to add to their knowledge at the departmental open house.

They will be guests of student organizations within the department and will have upperclassmen show them around and answer questions.

Any change in the major field of study should come early in the student's college career so that he will not lose hours of credit or at least will lose a minimum of hours in making the change.

Open house is very beneficial for freshmen in that respect. It shows how the department functions, it gives some idea of what the courses offer and it gives basic information on how the student organizations operate and the advantages of participating in those organizations.

It will be a night well spent for freshmen, since their future is involved.

The Life You Save...

Maybe they'll never learn. Every medium of mass communication in this nation tells drivers what happens when they speed—some little thing can cause you to lose control of your car, it goes off the road and rolls over several times, and someone gets hurt.

When it hits close to home, as it did last week, and did a couple of other times this year, the student drivers pause to think about speeding for a while. But they obviously don't think long enough, or hard enough.

Job Calls

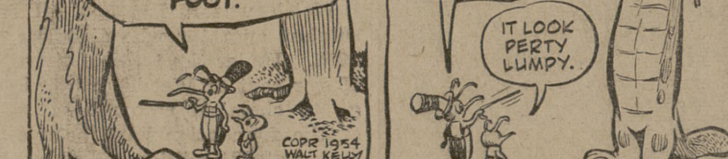

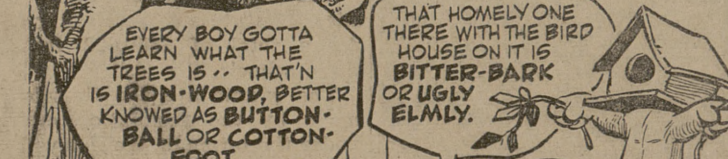

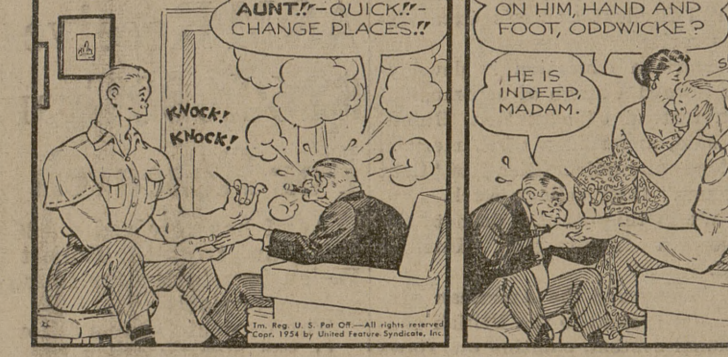

Dec. 7—Caterpillar Tractor Co. will interview January and June graduates for openings in product design, research and development, sales (export, domestic, sales engineering), manufacturing (foundry manufacture standards, machine design), merchandise forecasting scheduling and pricing.

Dec. 8—Rohm & Haas Co. will recruit for their Redstone Arsenal Research division at Huntsville, Ala., for openings in research and development.

Dec. 8—Representatives of Burroughs Corp. will interview January graduates in business administration and accounting for positions as Sales Trainees.

Dec. 10—Lone Star Gas Co., Greenville division will interview January mechanical engineering graduates for openings as utilization engineers.

Letters to the Editors

Recently the Student Senate organized a committee on campus beautification. The committee has attempted certain steps and hopes to recommend new ideas to a progressive beautification plan now in effect.

In making the study it is quite evident that the office of physical plants, ground maintenance department, and the College Campus Planning committee appointed by President Morgan have spent considerable time, efforts, and money in the last few years in major attempts to beautify the campus.

It happens everytime, and it keeps happening. When it hits close to home, as it did last week, and did a couple of other times this year, the student drivers pause to think about speeding for a while.

Publications Board Will Meet Tuesday

The student publications board will meet at 4 p. m. Tuesday in room 3D of the Memorial Student Center.

The board has three issues to discuss. The first issue is student wages, salaries, and commissions; the second, a discussion of cost and possible changes in the leasing of news wire services already in operation; and the third, to set a time for the regular monthly board meeting.

Horticulture Club To Sponsor Show

The horticulture club will hold its annual horticulture show next Tuesday in the lobby of the Agriculture building.

The all-day show will feature citrus fruit from the lower Rio Grande valley and the Laredo winter garden area, according to Morris Bailey, president of the club.

student body behind your efforts and to create student interest in the school's appearance. Some of our recommendations will no doubt have been studied by the above mentioned departments and committee.

We would appreciate your kindest consideration on this matter, request an opportunity to meet with you, and we hope that with our combined efforts a common goal may be achieved.

Very respectfully yours, Ray M. La Cour Chairman, Campus Beautification Committee, Student Senate
