Far From Home For the Holidays

This weekend, all the A&M students will be leaving for home and the holidays — or almost all of them.

Left on the campus—a dreary place during the Christmas holidays—will be most of A&M's foreign students, this country's guests.

They of course are too far from their home to even think about going there for the holidays, and most of them know few people in Texas.

They would appreciate a bit of home life during the holidays, and College Station and Bryan residents can help provide that.

A day in an American home would be welcomed by these students, and the family that took one in would find him a fascinating person—he would provide a new insight to our life and his life.

J. Gordon Gay, secretary of the YMCA, has generously consented to be a sort of a clearing house for any one who would like to invite a foreign student to their house.

He said that if the local people would call his home phone, 4-4584, sometime before Dec. 26, he would make the arrangements with the foreign students.

Here is a chance to make Christmas a little happier for some friends of ours, and to make your own Christmas a little happier too.

Christmas Displays To Receive Prizes

First, second and third place ribbons will be awarded to the College Station homes having the prettiest Christmas display, said K. A. Manning.

Manning is president of the College Station Development association which with the city chamber of commerce is sponsoring the contest. Three honorable mention ribbons will be awarded, he said. The judging committee will be a group from the A&M Garden club, said Manning. Any display that can be observed from outside the home will be considered in the contest. This includes displays inside a picture window, he said.
