

Spring Training May Start Next Week

By JERRY WIZIG
Battalion Sports Editor

Spring football practice at A&M probably will begin Feb. 17, a week from Thursday, or Feb. 19, a week from Saturday, "depending on the weather," said head football coach Paul Bryant yesterday.

Bryant said about 75 or 80 candidates are expected for the drills, which under Southwest conference rules include 18 practice days with-in a 25-day period.

Next season the Cadets tackle one of the most attractive schedules in their history, opening with UCLA at Los Angeles. Then comes LSU at the Cotton Bowl, University of Houston here and Nebraska at Lincoln before the regular six SWC games.

The Aggies get Baylor, SMU and Texas at home in conference play.

Last week, Bryant had some bad news for Aggie fans—the fact that two lettermen from the 1954 squad, tackle Bill Schroeder and quarterback Charlie Scott — had left the squad.

Bryant also said Gerald Her, starting center on the '54 Fish team, and four other freshmen—tackles Jackie Davis, Tommy Parker and Joe Rokyta, and full-back Rudy Estrada—were ineligible because of bad grades.

Schroeder, one of the best linemen on last season's varsity, decided to forego his senior year because of the effects of a sunstroke he suffered last summer. It hampered his play all last year. Scott said he planned to study for the ministry.

On the bright side of the picture is the fact that the ineligibility list doesn't include any other members of the Fish team that finished the season with the unofficial SWC frosh title.

All of the "name" players—Jim Stanley, John Crow, Ken Hall, Jim Wright, Bobby Conrad, Ed Dudley, etc.—got through the first semester's battle with the books, though many had close calls.

Conference rules state that freshmen, to be eligible for varsity play, must pass 20 hours during their first two semesters, including 11 in the first semester. Credit gained in summer school cannot count.

Next season's Fish team also got a start this week. Luther Hall, an outstanding fullback for Dallas Sunset last season, enrolled here. He earned 10 letters in four sports at Sunset.
