Ags Battle Chiefs, Point for Texas

A&M meets an up and coming Oklahoma City university team tonight at Oklahoma City that twice has dropped the powerful University of Houston eagles.

The Chiefs also added TCU to their list of conquests at the first of the season.

The Aggies have fallen twice to the University of Houston this season, 63-85 and 66-107.

Intramural Results

Ray Budwine sparked A engineers to a 20-0 victory over D field artillery in upperclassmen intramural football yesterday.

Budwine tossed two touchdown passes and ran over for the other score. He also passed and kicked for two extra points.

In other games, Leggett hall beat Walton, 12-6 and B engineers won on penetrations over squadron 3.

Don Little bucketed 14 points to help C armor to a 34-20 win over squadron 12 in freshman basketball; Jim Boyen sank 13 points to aid D field artillery in a 23-15 win over A ordnance; David Eby rang up 11 points to lead B infantry to a 15-11 victory over A armor; Bill Olander managed eight points as squadron 11 won over squadron 3, 34-9; and Wyman Battise led squadron 16 to a 13-10 win over B armor.

Squadron 18 won over squadron 7, 2-1, in upperclassmen tennis play-offs, and squadron 10 beat squadron 11, 21.

Lyndon Lee, a fast-stepping 6-3 forward, sparks the Chiefs' fast breaking offense. Lee's jump shot helped him pile up 24 points in the University of Houston game Monday night.

Oklahoma City lost the services of its 6-5 center in Monday night's U of H contest.

The Oklahomans use the same man-for-man defense employed by the Aggies, and Coach John Floyd has drilled his team on offensive maneuvers all week, concentrating on breaking through this defense.

A&M returns home Saturday night for the annual battle with the Texas Longhorns. Texas has showed signs of breaking out of its early season slump, and dumped Arkansas last Saturday, 75-74 in overtime.

"There's no doubt about it," said John DeWitt, A&M's assistant coach, "the Longhorns are steadily improving with the help of some good sophomores."

Raymond Downs, Texas' sensational junior forward, jumped into third place in SWC scoring this week by scoring 30 points in the 70-79 loss to Rice. He had counted 41 points in the Longhorn victory over Arkansas.

SPORTS SHORTS

By JERRY WIZIG

Tom Walsh is a white-haired, pixyish Irishman with a remarkable gift for baloney who, as their advance publicity man, volubly believes the fabulous Harlem Globetrotters are the biggest draw in sports and can spend all night proving it.

The little guy 'blew' into College Station Tuesday night to spread the gospel about the Trotters before their date with the Philadelphia Sphas in White coliseum next Wednesday night.

Crowd Looks Like Sellout

Three hours of basketball at its finest will be unreeled then (the Toledo Mercurys meet the Washington Generals also), and it promises to draw the biggest indoor crowd in the area's history. Already about one-fourth of 5,000 $1.25 general admission tickets are gone and all of the 250 $2.50 seats. There are about 1,500 reserved seats left on the west side and a few on the pullout bleachers. All indications point to a sellout crowd of 7,427.

Trotters Drew Four Million

Walsh explained that until they get a comfortable lead, the Trotters go all out on straight basketball. When they get a big margin, the incomparable Goose Tatum and Leon Hillard take over with the techniques that helped draw over four million fans last year alone, more than any sports team in the world.

Tatum, probably the best known figure in the world of sports, originally tried out for the Birmingham Black Barons, Saperstein's baseball team, in 1940 or '41 after he served a hitch in the army.

Even then, Goose, born in Eldorado, Ark., June 21, 1921, had the famous herky-jerk, floppy arm action that's his trademark, and Sap-stein promptly labeled him for the Trotters.

Hillard, billed as "The World's Greatest Dribbler," was playing for McKinley high school in Chicago when Saperstein spotted him. Abe watched him for two or three years, and when Marquez Haynes quit, Hillard took his place. "Saperstein's always got his eyes out scouting," Walsh said. Obviously, Mister Walsh, obviously.
