Money Is Nicer

In spite of the fact that this is an educational institution, the man who is the real heart of the system—the teacher—seldom gets any notice for doing his job well, or even for doing it above the call of duty.

The Former Students association has recognized this, and is instituting a series of five annual $500 awards to be given for distinguished service in teaching, student relations and research.

Of course, each of the school councils and The Battalion give achievement certificates for about the same thing each year. Although these awards are appreciated by the faculty members, money is nicer.

Teaching appears to be more than just a profession; it has some of the aspects of a called service. Teachers put out a lot of time and effort, and the effects of their time and effort are not always readily visible. And, of course, they are underpaid.

As a matter of fact, the only possible fault to be found with the former students' awards is that they aren't big enough.

A good faculty member is worth at least as much as a good half-back.

A Fitting End

A fitting end to A&M's Religious Emphasis week is the one minute of silence tomorrow at 10 a.m.

This minute of silence, a part of the World Day of Prayer, will be observed in the classrooms, in College Station, and all over the world.

It should be an awesome thing.

News Briefs

A DAIRY Manufacturers' conference will be held in the Memorial Student Center March 16-17. Featured speaker at the conference dinner will be Paul (Bear) Bryant, A&M football coach. The meeting is sponsored by the dairy husbandry department.

WAYNE STARK, director of the Memorial Student Center, will be the principal speaker at the dedication of Texas Christian university's new million-dollar student union March 25.

KARL E. ELMQUIST, of the English department, has been named associate editor of the Texas Aggie, monthly publication for former students.

DR. W. E. STREET, head of the engineering drawing department, attended the recent mid-winter meeting of the drawing division of the American Society for Engineering Education. Dr. Street presided at one of the general sessions and presented proposals for the Drawing Teachers Summer school, to be held at Iowa State college in June of this year.

THE CIVIL SERVICE commission has openings for cartographers at $3,410 a year. Details may be obtained at the placement office.

TWO NEW MEMBERS have joined the agricultural economics and sociology department. They are Alvin B. Wooten, extension economist, and Joe E. Murphey, agent in dairy marketing.

Magazines To Have Eleven More Issues

Eleven more issues of student magazines are expected this year by the office of student publications.

Mrs. Cecilia Prihoda, office manager, said the next issue of the Commentator should be out the first week of March, followed a week or so later by the Agriculturist.

The next Engineer is expected about the middle of this month, and the Southwest Veterinarian will have its winter issue out this week.

In May, the Commentator and Agriculturist will have their final editions. The Engineer will be published monthly until the semester's end.
The Southwest Veterinarian will have its spring and summer editions in April and June, respectively.

Wright Elected

Bob Wright, animal husbandry major from Livingston, has been named president of the East Texas Tri-County Hometown club. Other officers include Homer Black, vice-president; Jim Crews, secretary-treasurer; and Frank McMurrey, reporter.
