A Good Year

The Academic council hit the right note yesterday in commending all the people responsible for student life here this year.

By and large it's been a good year, in spite of the difficulties of both the civilians and the cadets operating under new organizations, and each learning to live with the other.

The student life program here is not perfect yet; there are rough spots to be cleared up, like the relations between the assorted student councils and committees, but these are somewhat minor problems.

There have been some bad features, such as the growing unrest between the civilian students and the cadet corps, but both of them couldn't have worked at developing new and enlarged programs without conflicting on some points.

Everybody should have their feet on the ground, with all the little things cleared out of the way, by next year, and the path will be open for an even better student life program.

And it's going to have to be pretty good to live up to the Academic council's glowing praise.

Just the Thing

A car dealer in Dallas advertises that he is selling, "as a special bonus," new cars painted in "Southwest conference school colors." Just the thing to give prospective athletes and brand-new graduates.

A maroon-and-white car might not be too bad, but think of the poor University of Texas students—a bright orange car with white trim.

Elledge Chosen For Danforth Award, Camp

Don Elledge, pre-veterinary medicine major from Mabank and president of the freshman class, was named winner of a Danforth award, and will attend a leadership training camp in Michigan in August. The announcement came from A. E. Denton, Basic Division counselor.

Elledge was chosen over all other freshmen pre-vet majors at A&M on the basis of his high school and college activities, his reasons for majoring in pre-vet medicine, and his plans after graduation.

Frank Kallus of La Grange is the alternate. Other finalists were Jerry Gleason and Tom Huhm-phreys.

All the finalists were carefully screened by a committee consisting of Denton, Frank McFarland, Steve Gilbert, and F. P. Jaggi. They were required to write a theme on the development of leadership through four stages—social, mental, physical and religious. Beside agriculture students, only one pre-vet student from each pre-vet school in the country will be allowed to attend. Denton termed the honor as a "very outstanding award."

Young Farmers Finish Elections

The final three officers of the Young Farmers of College Station were elected at a meeting Monday night. All other officers had been elected at a previous meeting.

Arvill G. Newby was elected secretary; Tom Elledge, treasurer; and Dannie Gansky, reporter. The other officers are Joe Boyd, president; and John Hagler, vice-president.

The group also discussed the charter for the organization and the term of office for officers, and moved to invite the State Future Farmers of America officers as guests of the Young Farmers at the state FFA judging contest May 14.
