

Crow Ready for Razorbacks

BY RONNIE GREATHOUSE
Both A&M and Arkansas will have something to "Crow" about Saturday. John Crow returns to the Aggie line-up for the first time in two weeks, and ex-Razorbacks get a chance to whoop-it-up at their annual Homecoming jubilee.

He has chewed up 217 yards in 35 carries, and owns a 6.2 yards per try average.
The Aggies worked on offensive plays, punts and defense yesterday, but had no contact work. Coach Paul Bryant said there would be no contact work this week.
Halfback Kenneth Hall and end Gene Stallings have been ill with a virus infection this week. Hall will probably miss the Arkansas game.

"We've won two conference games now, and you see all this stuff in the papers about the fine job Bryant's doing. I've done practically no coaching at all," states Bryant; "our staff has done the work."
"A staff is just as good as the boys on the team, and any head coach is just as good as his staff. We've got both, and that's why we've been winning. I contribute less than anybody."
"Jack Mitchell (Arkansas) will have his team just as ready as ours, and if we beat them it'll be because of the boys wanting to. I don't think the nine teams that beat us last year outcoached us, and I'm sure of the reverse this year."

The Cadets haven't beaten the rangy Razorbacks in Fayetteville since 1945, and trail the Porkers in their 28 game series dating back to 1903. Arkansas, with a 14-12-2 record against the Ags, is the only team besides Texas to hold a better than even slate over A&M.
