College Station Clean-Up Drive Opens Today

College Station's fall clean-up drive got underway this morning as city trucks traveled the alleys of the residential areas south of the college.

Residents were asked to check their houses, garages and yards for any trash that may have accumulated.

The program is being sponsored by the Chamber of Commerce and Development Association in co-operation with the city. A spring clean-up campaign is tentatively scheduled for May.

Wednesday, city trucks will cover the residential areas east of Highway 6 and North Gate residential section will be canvassed Thursday.

"If necessary, crews will go out again Friday to pick-up anything left over," said Ran Boswell, city manager.

Boswell urges residents to place their trash near the street to make the pick-up easier. He said that the clean-up crews would take away all trash they could get on the truck.

The program was instituted by the Public Health Committee of the Chamber of Commerce with Walter Manning as chairman. The announcement was made that all public hazards reported to the city during the campaign will be investigated.

of staff for personnel at air force headquarters in Washington.

As chief executive of the FTAF, Gen. Dissoway supervises the training of young pilots and aerial observers at 23 bases over the United States.

Flying Training Air Force is one of the three components of Air Training Command which decentralized in mid 1951 to cope with the rapid expansion of the air force.

Gen. Dissoway, while operations officer of the 312 Fighter Wing, was shot down over China. He bailed out and was missing in action for a month in enemy territory. Friendly Chinese and a makeshift air strip were his route of escape to friendly lines.

He was later made commander of the 311 Fighter Group and then became air liaison officer for the third Amphibious Marine Corps in Tiensin, China.

Before the far east, Gen. Dissoway served 18 months in the Panama Canal Zone as commander of a fighter group and later as deputy commander of the 26 Fighter Command.

When he returned to the U. S. in 1946, he became assistant commander of Barksdale air force base and then entered the Air War College and was graduated in 1948.

Gen. Dissoway has been awarded the Legion of Merit, the Bronze Star and the Air Medal. Foreign decorations include the Cloud and Banner and the Glorious Tripod of China, and the Military Medal and Order of the Southern Cross of Brazil.
