

Paul Baker, Noted Waco Director, To Speak Here

Paul Baker, well-known theatrical director and organizer, will be presented by the AAUW at 8 p.m. Monday in the A&M Consolidated Auditorium.

His topic "Experiments in College Theater," concerning modern theater and experiments with space, light and color, will be demonstrated by four of his students.

Instrumental in organizing many theater groups, Baker has directed and produced plays in Europe as well as America. He is probably best known as Dallas Theater Center Director and director of the experimental production of "Othello" at Baylor in 1953 which was termed by Charles Laughton as the "most exciting piece of theater in America."

Born in Hereford, Texas, Baker

Aggieland Charges

up $2,000, making these costs alone about $25,000. The reduced page costs for the 99 paying clubs in the '55 Aggieland takes away another $495. With the increased costs and the funds lost the Aggieland needs to make up around $2,500, Strader said. This figure did not include what would be paid by the Athletic Department if it pays for space.

KENNEDY THEN said that the athletic money, if gotten, would take up most of this $2,500. Strader explained that it was not known what action the Department would take, or how many pages would be taken if it was decided to pay the charges.

The Aggieland regularly uses 75 pages for sports, which would cost them $2,350 this year. They may not want that many, Strader said, or they may not want to pay for any pages. "We don't like to think about that," he said. "We have one of the top sports sections in the nation. This year it'll be even better the way things are going." "But any organization gets what they order. The editors have a certain obligation to cover the field of important activities. They could give additional space to sports if they desired. That is up to the editors."

Among the plans discussed to settle the matter was one charging the Corps at the $50 page rate but offering a 5 percent reduction for mass collection, and also one which would charge a flat 50 cents to all Corps members and civilian students.

THIS LAST MENTIONED plan was offered by Nauck in an effort to avoid discrimination against smaller units in the Corps. An outfit with more than 100 men could charge less per man than the smaller outfits. This "discrimination" was one of the main objections the Corps delegation had brought up. Kennedy said that the Corps might be willing to go along with the 50 cents charge.

No action was taken after discussion of the matter had abated. The Board will meet again at 3 p.m. Friday to further consider the matter and possibly take action. The charge to the Athletic Department will be explained at a meeting tomorrow of the Athletic Council.
