UT Game Sellout; Will Be Televised

The A&M-University of Texas football game on Thanksgiving Day is a sell-out and will be on national television, according to Pat Dial, business manager of the Athletic Department.

A capacity crowd of 41,778 is expected to be on hand for the annual Turkey Day class.

UT received 5,000 student tickets. If these tickets are not all sold, they will be placed on sale to the general public Monday morning on a first come first served basis.

Date tickets are sold out.

Football -- Fun or Finance

It's a shame that the only persons who supported the team during its lean years on the gridiron now have to suffer during a year of a grand crop.

Two years ago it was almost hard to give away tickets to a Texas A&M football game—almost as hard as trying to divide 2,000 date tickets among the many more than this number of Aggies who would like to bring their date to see the "big game."

Sure, we know; many's the time that the 2,000 date tickets reserved have not been sold. But for the games where this happened, not too many of the regular tickets were sold either.

Now the stadium is to be packed, jam-packed. And it looks as if monetary interest in the higher-priced, or regular $3.25 ticket, is taking precedence over the only reason that A&M has a football team at all. This "only reason" can be traced back to the students—who are the only reason that the school is even in existence.

The letter on this page hits the point: If students, and their dates, can't see the game—WHO SHOULD?

Letters

Editor, Battalion
To Whom It May Concern:

I would like to take this time to say a few words of criticism. It seems to me that there's definitely something wrong when the students of Texas A&M can not take a date to one of our home football games!

Who makes up the school anyway? If there were not any students, there wouldn't be any school and certainly not any football games. Therefore, why not provide the students the privilege of seeing the game and, most of all, the privilege of bringing a date.

It also seems to me that someone is certainly at fault by not providing the student body with adequate seating. As it is now, only a few first-comers were able to buy the meager 2,000 date tickets that were so generously made available. If other schools can provide us with adequate date tickets, why can't our own school match this . . . after all, if we can't see the games . . . then who should???

Jim Burke, '57

P.S.—If my date can't see the game with me, I'll watch it with her . . . on T.V. . . . let the $3.25 ticket holders have the stadium!! Why not sell the whole Aggie section; look how much money it would bring!
