Letters

he graduated in the class of '50, so I had a friend from that moment on. His name was Doug Woodard, working with some oil firm I believe. We had a great time swatting at those little golf balls with our "misery sticks."

Wherever I go I always wear my Aggie ring and wear it proudly, for as far as I'm concerned, it's still and always will be THE school. Tell all of my buddies that are still there "howdy" for me. I really enjoy reading "The Texas Aggie."
Sincerely yours,
Thomas E. Cox '55

Editor, Battalion:

I have read several letters in the Battalion insinuating that Aggies are not gentlemen. I, of course, disagree because I have a brother who is a junior at A&M. I thought that you might be interested in this paragraph. It was turned in by a freshman at TSCW from New Jersey when she was asked to write her idea of an ideal husband for an expository paragraph in English.

"An ideal husband for me would be what is a typical senior Aggie. A typical senior Aggie exemplifies many fine personal characteristics and traits. Primary among them are courtesy, kindness and respect for others. Aggies are true gentlemen in every way. They cater to a woman's slightest whim. Always they assist in helping me put on my coat, in opening doors, and in making me comfortable in every way at the meal table. Friendliness and facile conversational ability are keynotes of most Aggies' personalities. An Aggie's interests are manifold, and he puts one at ease immediately with his charming manner. My experience with men has led me to believe that an ideal husband would be a typical senior Aggie."

Yours truly,
A member of TSCW
Class of '59

Editor, Battalion:

Last Friday's Batt had an excellent photo of the power plant cooling tower under repair. Your caption described it as a water purifier, something a cooling tower is neither designed to do nor does. AAAUUUGH!

Yours truly,
W. R. Garrett, '51
