Dr. Noel Keith Bible Discussion Leader for Conference

Ends Sunday

Church Conference Begins Tomorrow

The fourth annual Ecumenical Student Christian Conference will be held here this weekend. All college students, ministers, faculty, or other persons associated with college student groups are invited to attend this conference. This is an attempt to bring the students of this area into an experience of Christian community through study and fellowship. Dr. Elton Trueblood, professor of philosophy and noted author-lecturer from Earlham College, Ind., will be the principal speaker. The author of 14 books on philosophy and religion, Dr. Trueblood holds degrees from Harvard, Johns Hopkins, Washington and Lee, Miami, and Vermont Universities, and Penn and Ripon College. At present he is director and president of the Yokefellow Foundation, having previously resigned as chief of religious information for the U. S. Information Agency. Dr. Trueblood will address the conference on the general theme, "Where to From Here." His topic will be: "The Present Status of the Christian Cause," "Movement in Depth," "A Personal Discipline," "The Formation of a Task Force," and "The Meaning of Commitment." Following each lecture will be a question period after which the group will break up into smaller units to study Dr. Trueblood's presentation. Dr. Noel Keith, head, Department of Religion, Texas Christian University, will lead Bible discussions. Dr. Keith served as special assistant to the President of TCU and is listed in "Who's Who in the Southwest" and "Directory of American Scholars." Meetings will be held in the Wesley Foundation and the A & M Methodist church. Registration begins tomorrow afternoon at 3 at the A & M Methodist Church. The opening worship begins at 7:30 p.m. The conference will adjourn Sunday, following noon meal.
