with members of law-enforcement agencies had traffic under control, and clean-up work started.
"We expect to be on duty for at least 24 hours, patrolling the area and guarding against looting," said Cox, a man who obviously knew what he was doing.
Among the more lucky victims were John B. Dougherty, Mrs. Curtis Cobb, and Shine Williams. All three had taken refuge in a garage belonging to Dougherty's sister, Lucille, at 1209 Bennett. The garage was blown away, but they weren't.

"We got in when we saw the rain, and all of a sudden no roof," said Dougherty.
"I was lying on the floor, and the storm bounced me up and down a few times," said Mrs. Cobb, who was looking at the bare foundation of her own garage, behind 1010 E. 31st.
Williams could not be found for comment.
