Benson Picks Iowa State For Cattle Lab

WASHINGTON (AP) — Secretary of Agriculture Benson picked Iowa State College at Ames, a school he once attended, Tuesday as the site for the government's new $18 million laboratory for animal diseases.

Benson said this location had been recommended by livestock industry advisory committee which surveyed proposed sites.

Congress has under consideration a request for funds to set up the new center which is planned to provide for research on 25 animal diseases.

Ames is in the center of the nation's hog and cattle feeding area, but is some distance from the range cattle and sheep producing areas of the country.

Benson commended the advisory committee for what he described as its "excellent work in evaluating the many proposals before it."

Other locations considered were College Station, Texas; Madison, Wis.; Columbia, Mo.; Manhattan, Kan.; Stillwater, Okla.; Athens, Ga. and Fort Collins, Colo.

Benson said Ames was selected as it is far removed for any critical target area, is considered an outstanding scientific center, has excellent and continuing research activity at Iowa State College which would help in the laboratory work and has an excellent library on subjects which would be of value to laboratory scientists.

Benson said that Ames fit all qualifications set down by Congress prior to the picking of a site.

Benson said the site committee recommended Colorado A&M College at Fort Collins as an alternative location if the one at Iowa State proved not feasible.

Chancellor M. T. Harrington of the A&M System said that he was disappointed but not surprised that the USDA animal disease laboratory had been located at Ames.

"We felt that we had a perfect site for the laboratory here at College Station, but we knew from the first that Middle-West sites were probably the strongest contenders," he said.

"We have been pleased with the aid given by local people in our bid and the encouragement and aid from the leaders of the livestock industry throughout Texas," Harrington added.

Weather Today

PARTLY CLOUDY

The forecast for the College Station area is partly cloudy. Yesterday's high and low was 96 degrees and 79 degrees. Temperature at 10:30 this morning was 88 degrees.

The largest number ever, 1,386, attended the five-day school which ends tomorrow.

Summer Players Successful With '56 Mikado Musical

by Tom Thomas
Battalion Staff Writer

Last night in The Grove, Gilbert and Sullivan's "Mikado" closed a successful two-night run. Once again, Bill Turner has scored a hit in his Summer Musical series. The cast and orchestra, drawn from the college and the community, did a wonderful piece of work.

Outstanding players in lead roles were Robert Boone, as the Mikado and Warner Dahlberg as Pooh Bah. The difficult part of the old witch-woman, Katisha, was effectively handled by Iris Bullard. Audiences were duly impressed by the exuberance of the local theatrical veteran Harry Gooding, who was not to be denied in his handling of Ko-Ko, the Lord High Executioner.

Contributing greatly to the fine performance was the professional quality of the scenery, designed by Marcia Smith. Other members of the set crew were Joe Delotte and Janet Polweiler. Special mention should also go to the sound technicians, for the public address system was fully audible even at the rear of the audience.

It is to be regretted that the Southern Pacific's 8:30 train insists upon coming through College Station at 8:30, thereby knocking a big hole in the first act. The cast appeared unruffled by the disappearance of light when once again the performance was resumed.

Gilbert and Sullivan seem almost to have reached the optimum in character analysis when they des-

Stark Speaks To Kiwanians On Leaguers

Wayne Stark, president of the College Station Little League, spoke to the College Station Kiwanis Club on the organization, financing and problems confronting Little League enthusiasts in the community.

Speaking to the Kiwanians at their regular meeting Tuesday noon in the MSC Stark said that parents are the biggest single problem facing Little League today.

"We realize they (parents) are necessary, but it is largely through their influence that most of the trouble occurs," Stark said.

"Too many teams put too much emphasis on winning," Stark said. "We are trying to impress our boys that winning is good, but sportsmanship is important too."

This year the Little League will present individual and team cups to the boy and team which amass the most points for good sportsmanship during the season. These points are given by the umpires at each game who scores the team, manager and parents on their display of sportsmanship. At the close of the season the boy with the most points will be announced and the team displaying the best sportsmanship will be presented cups.

Financing Little League is possible through fees charged sponsoring organizations, passing the "kitty" at each game and money made from the sale of membership cards and profits from the concession stands at the park.

Stark was introduced by the Rev. Norman Anderson, pastor of the A&M Presbyterian Church. W. E. (Woody) Briles presided at the meeting.

ignated Nanki-Poo as a slide trombone. Toby Hughes played a very convincing trombone. But seriously, I'd like to suggest that local theatre-goers keep their eyes on Aggie-Player Hughes during the coming two Winter seasons.

The orchestra accompanying the Mikado was adequate though small. Maybe next year, more people in the community will feel public spirited enough to lend their time and talents to the success of another such fine operetta.

CS Lions See Film At Last Meeting

College Station Lions saw a film, "History of the Toothed Wheel", at their regular meeting in the Assembly Room of the MSC Monday.

The film, which is distributed by Shell Oil Company, traced the progress of the lever from its earliest uses to the role it plays in our modern day industries. The gear was used to illustrate the principle of the lever and to demonstrate many of its uses in our "machine age."

Unscheduled events included the presentation of the unofficial club mascot, a small rat-like animal known as a Gerbil, to Dr. Don Davis of the Veterinary Research and Hygiene Department. Johnnie Watkins of the Veterinary Research Department received his membership beanie which denotes him as a new member of the club.

Firemen's School Ends Tomorrow Afternoon

Over 1,300 Attend Annual Firefighters' Session

The largest Fireman's Training School in the 27-year history of the course will come to a close tomorrow afternoon when 1,386 firemen from all over the state and surrounding states leave the campus for home.

Eighteen states and two foreign countries, Mexico and Canada, and 484 towns were represented at the 1956 version of the annual affair.

Designed to teach firefighters the latest methods of combating all types of industrial and residential fires this year's attendants listened to over 160 instructors drawn from all over the United States lecture on subjects varying from basic hose operation to photography.

Col. H. R. Brayton of the Texas Engineering Extension, sponsoring organization, originated the idea of such a school in 1929 and it has grown to be the largest of its kind in the nation.

Acting chief of the training school is Henry D. Smith, of the Engineering Extension Service. Courses held this year included a general basic course; advanced course; fire marshals' course; industrial fire protection course; armed forces fire protection course; and firemen instructors' course.

Examinations for men from Texas cities earning key rate credit for their cities will be held tomorrow afternoon at 3 p.m.

An immediate benefit of the school is a saving of more than two million dollars in fire insurance rates by receiving credit from the state Fire Insurance Commission for sending fire department members to the school.

Examinations are given for all courses except industrial fire protection and armed forces fire protection courses.

Lectures for the advanced courses and basic courses were held in the MSC. Field training was held in the areas surrounding dormitories 1-12; Kyle Field and the fire-condition area northeast of College View.

In the area by College View the Board of Directors of A&M System have set aside 26 acres for the use of the school. Mock-ups of buildings and tank trucks are located there and fires of all types are fought in the area.

Equipment, expendable materials and fuels were provided by various interested industries over the state. The school has several pumper and ladder trucks as a part of its permanent apparatus here on the campus.

Conducted by the TEES under auspices of the State Firemen and Fire Marshals Association, the school operates in cooperation with the Trade and Industrial Department of the Texas Education Agency.
