White Council Members Protest Gov. Frank Clement

HOUSTON—(AP)—About 25 "demonstration pickets" paraded in front of the Shamrock Hotel last night as Tennessee Gov. Frank Clement spoke at a testimonial dinner.

No incidents developed. The pickets included members of the White Citizens Council of Greater Houston but most of them said they were not members of the Council but were sympathetic to its anti-integration program.

Clement told reporters he does not object to anybody expressing themselves, including White Citizens Council pickets, so long as they conduct themselves in a lawful manner.

Officials of the Council announced plans for the pickets last week, saying the demonstration would protest Clement's recent action in ordering out National Guard troops during the school integration disorders at Clinton, Tenn.

One picket identified himself as J. A. Curry, 46, Mansfield, a North Texas community which had integration troubles last month. Curry carried several placards. Two of them read: "Mansfield endorses Shivers for any office" and "Mansfield casts her white votes for John Ben Shepperd."

Curry said he drove to Houston after reading a newspaper announcement of the Council's picket plans.

A woman in a long red dress and red bandana carried a sign which had attached to it two imitation roses. The sign said: "Roses for Governor Shivers. For Clement, skunk oil."

"It is obvious that those who would picket my speech as a result of my action at Clinton either misunderstood the facts or are against law and order," Clement said.

Of his state's 95 counties, he said, only one has been ordered to admit Negro students to white schools.

"You have more integration in Texas than we have," he said.

The National Guard was not called out, he said, until local officials certified to him that there had been a complete breakdown of law and order.

Clement spoke at a dinner honoring Dr. Marcus Levinson of Houston for his work in behalf of the state of Israel and Zionism.

All School Bible Study Organized

Approximately 70 student Bible study leaders met last night to organize a school-wide plan of conducting Bible study in the dormitories.

The leaders are working on a coordinated plan to enable them to conduct, as close as possible, the same general topic from the Bible all over the school at the same time.

"Our goal is pointed toward a Bible study program in every unit in the Corps and two in each civilian dorm," said Corps Chaplain Dwayne Bailey.

"Attendance to night indicated practically every unit in the Corps was represented together with about 15 civilian students present to help launch the civilian side of the program," Bailey said.

Arthur Smith, professor of Bible Chair, Baptist Student Union, spoke at the meeting. Next scheduled meeting is the first Tuesday in November.

Car Returns Six Months After Loan

DALLAS, (AP)—On Feb. 22—George Washington's Birthday—a man priced a swank, red-and white hardtop auto and a trusting salesman let him drive it around the block.

For six months the dealer, police and officers in 47 other states could find no trace of the car. Early today the motor company's owner, J. A. Treadway had a phone call.

"Don't bother about who is talking," directed a man's voice. "You remember losing that car in February—well, it's back."

Treadway found the "tired" looking car parked near his office. It bore evidence of about 12,000 hard miles of motoring—and had been wiped clean of clues.

Cards Needed For Aggielands

Records in the Office of Student Publications show that at least 2,000 students have failed to turn in their "Publications" cards which they received at registration.

These cards include the ones for The Aggieland, The Battalion and the magazine of the school in which student is enrolled.

The Aggieland cards are needed so students will be able to get their Aggieland next Fall without having to get a duplicate fee slip from the Registrar's Office. These duplicates cost 25c each.

Battalion and magazine cards are needed for student's addresses. The Battalion is mailed to students living off campus if the activity fee is paid and all magazines are mailed whether the student lives on or off the campus.

The cards may be dropped in the mail addressed to the Office of Student Publications or handed in at the reception window in Room 4 of the YMCA.
