Republicans

SYRACUSE, N. Y., (AP) — Vice President Nixon yesterday accused Adlai Stevenson of "resorting to the flim-flam game of covering up a weakness by attacking the strength of his opponent."

In a speech prepared for delivery at the Syracuse Press Club Nixon said the Democrats' presidential nominee "topped the world's record for demagoguery when he attacked the Eisenhower administration on the cost of living issue."

"This maneuver," he said, "will fall flat on its face because the millions of American housewives who keep the family savings budget can't be fooled by fancy phrases and clever quips."

"The Eisenhower administration took the wage earner off the Truman treadmill on which, no matter how fast he ran, he always fell behind the Stevenson program for the future, just like the Truman program which it so closely resembles, is based on inflation and 'pit in the sky.'"

Nixon accused Stevenson, Sen. Estes Kefauver, Democratic vice-presidential nominee, and Truman of charging "directly and by innuendo that the President and his administration are for the rich and against the poor—for large business and against the small—for the big man and against the little man."

"In the interest of everything that is decent and fine in our American tradition," Nixon said, "this charge must be met head-on and nailed for what it is—a false and vicious idea which is alien to the basic traditions that have made America great—those who would divide America into classes are bringing to this land ideas which do not belong here and are rendering a terrible disservice to our country."

Democrats

JERSEY CITY, N.J., (AP)—Adlai E. Stevenson accused President Eisenhower last night of four years of "words without action whenever human interests are at stake."

Stevenson delivered a sharp-shooting attack on Eisenhower and a scattershot attack on the Republican party to climax a day which saw the presidential race turn a big corner.

Eisenhower's "wicked nonsense" crack at the Democrats brought Stevenson out, gloves off and catch as catch can. To be called non-sensical was one thing, Stevenson said, but to be labeled wicked was another.

At a rally on the historic green of Morristown, N. J., Stevenson said:

"I am afraid that this is becoming part of the political looseness, that previously was identified with the vice-presidential candidate Richard Nixon who always talks about the opponents in terms of 'appeasement' and 'communism' and 'treachery' and words like that. I do hope the vice-presidential taste for extreme and loose language is not becoming contagious."

Aides said Stevenson's strategy has been to "get Eisenhower off his pedestal" so their man can slug toe-to-toe with him on the issues. Eisenhower gave them the chance Monday at Cleveland when he said Democrats claim that only Democrats care for the working man were "wicked nonsense."

In his prepared talk, Stevenson said Eisenhower and his administration gave the people nothing but "words—empty words" instead of action on foreign policy, slum clearance, schools and immigration.

DATELINE AYRSHIRE

By Ken George

Pinky was in the MSC the other day and was telling a story that is supposed to be true. So since this column is dedicated to the truth (in some form), here is the story.

Seems as though one of the pre-season sportswriters was on the campus and chanced to meet Pinky. This same sportswriter decided to check and see if he could find any information connecting Pinky with A&M football.

Mrs. Pinky seemed to be the one to interview so he went to the Pinky home and the following conversation took place.

Writer—Mrs. Pinky, did Pinky ever play A&M football?
Mrs. P.—No.

At this point the writer decided another approach in the hopes of getting a good story pertaining to football.

Writer—Mrs. Pinky, is Pinky religious?
Mrs. P.—Yes, he goes to church every Sunday.

Writer—Does he pray?
Mrs. P.—Yes, every night.
Writer—Have you ever heard him pray?
Mrs. P.—Yes.

Writer—What did he pray last night?
Mrs. P.—He said "Lord, you take care of the Aggies tonight and I'll take over again in the morning."

Kem-Toning a room must not be as easy as everyone says it is. Could be it depends upon who is relating the painting experience. Couple next door decided to paint their living room and so being democratic and in love, they both worked on it, he painted and she corrected.

Overheard in the MSC—"Honey, you aren't paying any attention to me." He—"what are you doing?" She—"thinking!"

Yankees Are Gathering To Converse In American

By D. YANKEE

Again the minority on the campus will band together for a year of fellowship and talking that only the members of the organization can understand.

It's not the French Club, nor the Spanish Club, but the Yankee Hometown Club. Each year the yankees who venture into the vastness of the great State of Texas feel the need of talking with someone who doesn't say "y'all." They

Brush Club Elects Hometown Officers

Fred Standard was elected president of the Brush Country Hometown Club at their first meeting last week.

Meeting in the MSC the club elected Ralph Garcia for vice-president; Bobby Phillips as secretary-treasurer and John Fisher as reporter.

A total of 19 men were present for the initial meeting for the 1956-57 school year.

find this lack of Texas talk at the bi-monthly meetings of the club in the YMCA.

Nelson J. Sprague, from Connecticut, has invited all freshmen yankees to attend the first meeting of the club tomorrow night in the Y.

To qualify for membership, a yankee must live north of the Mason-Dixon line and east of the Mississippi River. This takes in a good share of the northern states. Most of the "foreigners" come from the annex of Texas known as New Jersey.
