

At Other Schools

By JOE TINDEL
 Battalion News Editor

Baylor University is desperately trying to bolster its school spirit for the game tomorrow and the school with the fourth-ranked team in the nation—now tied for tenth—has a writer on The Skiff who has his own opinion about girls and shorts.

Baylor

As might be expected, the Bears are making a desperate attempt to bolster their "spirit" before the game. Of all things, they are having a "Hex the Aggies" crazy hat contest, sponsored by the sophomore Spirit Committee. The hats are to be worn this week and be made to reflect school spirit.

It's about time they tried something new. Their poor old bear mascot has about "had it" from being stolen and hidden by Baylor students.

Tom Williams writes in the Lariat, school newspaper, that "the best team lost at Kyle Field."

He says the torrential rain and wind ruined the TCU attack while it helped the Aggies "power-line assault plays." One of the reasons he gave for the Bears wanting to beat the Ags was "because they upset the Frogs".

But the Frogs didn't know that the Bears wanted to be so "buddy-buddy" with them. The Frogs probably won't be bothered too much when Baylor loses.

TCU

At TCU, nobody is very mad about Saturday's game but it definitely seems that Jim Hendricks, editor of the TCU Skiff has gone mad.

He writes: "Lots of girls who wear shorts shouldn't. Some who don't should. And "drunks at football games make us thirsty."

DATELINE AYRSHIRE

By Ken George

Some mighty interesting things happened after the U. of H. game week-end before last.

Bob Balhorn, 1st Sgt. of Squadron 3, received a telegram which stated—"Mr. Balhorn Sir, most unfortunate catastrophe, car broken down must take bus, will arrive 10 o'clock. No excuse Sir. Signed: Fishes Jerry Atkins, Allen Marburger and Ed Tinnin.

Also, as a direct result of the Aggie-Cougar High game came this excerpt from a columnist in one of the Houston papers. "This was no toothless Aggie tiger. This was Bear Bryant's muscled giant, ranked among the nation's best headed with the swoosh of rocket power toward the top. It was this Big Team that the UH grappled with, tore into, and with pressure bursting and bellowing at superhuman dimensions, flung them back while a whole stadium gasped." Boy what copy! This gent better lay off them "Wheaties" and get himself some "All-Bran". Jack Valenti is the writer's name, you find out in the paper.

A young lass lost her purse at the TCU game Saturday and probably had a hard time getting home. She is Shirley Lawrie of Grayburg, Tex. Campus Security office reported the contents being among some twenty other things, a round trip ticket to Houston. Shirley wasn't alone as far as losing things, there were five women's hats, and six purses, also for women turned in to the KK's.

We won't mention his name but a certain basketball player, who happens to be very tall and also a Yankee, got the fright of his life one night last week. This here Yankee had never seen a Armadillo before, so some of his round-ball buddies put one in his shoe box to see what would happen. Well, this here Yankee opened the box and when the Armadillo jumped out, the Yankee did too—out of his shoes that is. The report we got was he left his shoes completely. He said, "I didn't know but what the varmit might bite."

Some of you Old Army Aggies were done wrong last Friday night. About 12 p.m. Friday night the yell practice was in full swing and so were the KK's. As most of you know the TCU midnight yell practice was perhaps the largest one ever held and consequently, there were a lot of cars. So many in fact, that many people parked anywhere they could. Well the KK's being ever on the look-out for a parking violation, gave out a good many tickets.

There just ain't no justice!

Sports Car Fans Plan Race Sunday

A sports car rally will be held Sunday at the Triangle Drive-In. Beginning at 4:30 p.m. cars will leave at three minute intervals on a navigation problem. The car completing the course with the best average speed wins. All cars finishing over the allotted time will lose five points for each minute late.

Cars from the A&M campus and Bryan AFB will compete. All foreign and American sports car drivers are invited to enter. The purpose of the rally is to bring sports car drivers together to form a club.

Adlai Vetoes Pension Raise

"Senator Kefauver, commenting on Stevenson's veto in Illinois of a 10 per cent increase in old age benefits, said:

"Mr. Stevenson says he vetoed the bill because the Legislature did not provide funds to finance it. But the fact is that Mr. Stevenson also vetoed an amendment which would have provided $14 million to pay for the increased cost of old age pensions."

—WASHINGTON STAR, May 26, 1956.

The Eisenhower Administration has increased old age benefits.

Texas Democrats for Eisenhower, 412 Bolm Building, Austin, think Texas will go for Ike again on Nov. 6.
