Waterless Recipe Strands Readers High and Dry

Dolores Perry, Family Favorites contributor of three weeks ago, has received quite a few calls concerning her praline recipe.

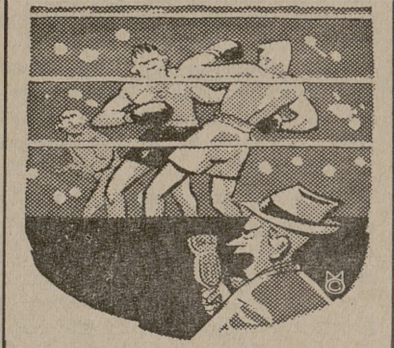

Seems it omitted a very important ingredient—1½ cups of water!

For those who would like a repeat of the recipe, here it is—Ingredients: 2 cups white sugar, 1 cup brown sugar, 1 tablespoon white Karo, pinch salt, 1½ cups water, 2 cups pecans, ½ stick butter, 1 teaspoon vanilla.

Method: Mix sugar, Karo, salt and water and boil until hard ball stage is reached. Add nuts, butter and vanilla. Spoon out onto greased cookie sheet.

for the night and the Owls picked up their total early in the third quarter. Neither team did anything the first time they got the ball, but Osborne's short, 12-yard punt, gave Rice their chance midway in the period.
WITH A FIRST and 10 on the A&M 15, the Owls got a break as A&M was penalized 14 to the one for a person foul. Hill kept for the touchdown with 6:40 left in the third period. Jerry Hall's try for point was good and the game was all but over.

A Doctor Says —

A Misbehaved Child May Be A Troubled Child

By DOROTHY V. WHIPPLE, M. D.
AP Newsfeatures

"Doctor, I've come to drop my problem in your lap," Mrs. Stimson announced as she entered the office. "Steve bites—he bites me." (She demonstrated an ugly black and blue spot on her arm.) "He bites his little brother, and now he's taken to biting the children in the neighborhood. It's gotten to the point where all the other mothers grab their children away when they see Steve coming. And much as it hurts me to see them do it, I really can't blame them."

She took a breath and went on: "I've done everything I can think of to stop it. I've bitten him back—good and hard, too. I've washed his mouth out with soap; I've punished him until I'm blue in the face, and, if anything, Steve bites more and harder. Now it's your turn, Doctor. I want a miracle and I want it quick!" Mrs. Stimson laughed as she said this and settled back in her chair for the formula of the miracle.

Steve was a little over three; his brother, Paul, was just about a year old. Steve had been pretty jealous of Paul. Mother seemed always busy with that squally baby when he needed her, and Daddy went right over and picked Paul up when he came into the house and didn't pay any attention to Steve the way he used to.

One day when the two of them were cooing over the baby on the sofa, Steve crawled along the floor and took a good bite out of Mother's leg! Something surely happened then! Mother howled and grabbed her leg and Daddy forgot all about Paul, he shook Steve and talked big and loud. Steve didn't know much what he said, but he loved having both Mommy and Daddy forget about Paul and pay attention to him.

Next day Stevie tried it again; he bit Mommy on the arm when she was giving him his breakfast. This time Mommy bit him back. It hurt, but Mommy was excited and forgot about Paul.

Steve lived in a neighborhood with a lot of children, but they were all quite a bit older than he was—mostly four, five and six-year-olds. Steve liked to play with them, but he couldn't quite keep up; he couldn't get places fast enough on his fat little legs; he lost out on turns; he was slow making cakes with the sand. When Harry took his shovel he bit him, and he got his shovel right back.

Food planning for the banquet is in the hands of Robert Shrode, Murray Brown, C. B. Godbey, W. R. Horsley, Barney Welch, R. E. Leighton, and Ralph Harris.
President Whitney states that all interested men of the community are invited to attend and brings attention to the fact that the banquet is being held at 6 p.m. instead of the conventional hour of 6:30 to allow time to attend the special Thanksgiving services at 7:30 p.m.

Study of Antiques May Make Fascinating Hobby for Amateurs

By VIVIAN BROWN
AP Newsfeatures Writer

Sometime in her life a woman is likely to be bitten with the antique bug. She buys a little thing, perhaps a piece of old glass, pewter or a love seat, and bingo—she begins to dislike everything else in her home, particularly her furniture.

That is only the beginning. Even after she has attended a few auctions, visited some antique shops and read some books, she realizes that for all her interest, she is antique-ignorant. She doesn't really know one piece from another.

How do the "experts" gain such knowledge?

Some study their subject objectively as others study architecture or engineering. Others trust to luck with the help of books and articles. The best informed may be fooled occasionally.

There are short-cuts to the knowledge for amateurs.

Certain details of a piece of furniture may give a clue to its origin. Pre-revolutionary chests and secretaries made in New York, for instance, reflect the Dutch influence—wider proportions than pieces made during the same period in New England.

"New England furniture gained much of its beauty from integrated design and slender proportions," says one of the country's leading antique dealers, Albert Sack, who displayed some interesting museum-like pieces at the recent International Antiques Exhibition and Sale in New York.

Most furniture may even be pinned down to the city it was made in once you get the knack—
