

Faculty Outing Tonight In Park

Dr. W. Taylor Reveley, of Southwestern University, Memphis, Tenn., will speak to approximately 60 A&M faculty members on "Faculty Christian Fellowship" at a steak fry at Cashion Cabin in Hensel Park today at 5:30 p.m. to 7:30 p.m.

Dr. Reveley is now on a leave of absence from Southwestern to make a tour of the Southwest promoting Faculty Christian Fellowship. His appearance here is being sponsored by the local YMCA.

"We are indeed fortunate to have Dr. Reveley with us, and we are looking forward to meeting him and hearing him speak," said J. Gordon Gay, Secretary of the YMCA. "With a tremendous advance in higher education, it is significant that many professors are increasingly concerned about moral and spiritual values in education."

The Faculty Christian Fellowship is defined as a "community of people in the academic life whose concern is the relation of Christian Faith to the vocation and discipleship of the teacher and scholar." Its work is the development of creative working interpretations of the intellectual life, the academic disciples, and the meaning and structure of the college and the university, Gay said.

A&M does not have an organized Faculty Christian Fellowship.

"Dr. Reveley's talk may help us make up our mind about organizing a fellowship of this kind," said Gay. "So far, faculty response has been better than expected."

Students Go To NY, West Point For SCUSA

Five A&M students left by plane yesterday morning for West Point and New York to attend the Student Conference on United States Affairs and publicize SCONA II.

Brad Crockett, senior from Harlingen and Jack Nelson, junior from El Paso are delegates to SCUSA at West Point. SCUSA is comparable to SCONA which is held here.

SCONA was originated from such a trip two years ago by Bud Whitney, a delegate to SCONA from A&M this year.

Other students making the trip are John Hoyle, junior from La-Grange, John Ligon, junior from Odessa and Bryan Dedeker, senior from Boerne.

Hoyle and Ligon went to West Point to observe the Cadet Corps hoping that this observation will be helpful in bettering the Cadet Corps here.

Dedeker, who is publicity Chairman for SCONA, plans to stay in New York City and contact leading newspaper editors and other publications for the purpose of gaining more publicity for SCONA.

They plan to return to A&M on Sunday night.

Corps Freshman Dies In Highway Smash-up

Trash Fire Lights Scene At ME Lot

Students gathered in the parking lot east of the Mechanical Engineering Shops last night at 9:45 to watch what could either be a "teasip bonfire" or just a trash fire.

After investigation it was learned that a Building and College Utilities Department dumptruck ran afoul of a misplaced cigarette and had to empty its burden in the parking lot.

No apparent damage was done to the truck, or surroundings and the B&CU saved a trip to the city dump.

First Silver Taps Held Last Night

Jose A. Torres, freshman architecture student from Hato Rey, Puerto Rico, was killed Thursday morning when he apparently lost control of the car he was driving and smashed into a tree near Old Dime Box.

Silver Taps was held for Torres last night. The body was shipped to San Juan, Puerto Rico, Friday for funeral services.

Torres, a member of "A" Transportation Corps, was found alone in the car Thursday by highway patrolmen.

Campus Security officers say the wrecked car belonged to Fred Staples of Wichita Falls, senior petroleum and business major.

Judging Teams Return Home With Laurels

Members of A&M's Meats Judging and Livestock Judging teams returned to Texas just in time to make the Turkey Day game in Austin from their contest in Chicago, Ill. at the International Livestock Exposition.

Meats Judging Team members brought home fifth place honors overall in their contest. The Livestock Team finished 15th.

Twenty-four teams were competing in the Meats Division and 39 entered the Livestock Division.

Aside from their fifth place in overall standings Meats Team members finished fourth in beef grading, third in lamb judging, 10th in pork judging and ninth in beef judging.

David Terry was sixth high individual in the entire contest and finished second in the beef grading class. Melvin Lebo was third high individual in lamb judging class.

Kermit Wahrmond and Don Johnson were other members of the team making the trip. Gene King is coach for the team.

The Livestock team took seventh place in beef cattle and 15th overall in the contest. Team members include Joe D. Ross, Jim Renick, Pat Garner, Bobby Wakefield, Tommy Darnell and J. C. Gregory.

J. W. Gossett is the Livestock Team coach.

11th Turfgrass Conference Starts Monday

Eleventh Annual Turfgrass Conference will meet here Dec. 10-12, according to Dr. E. C. Holt of the Agronomy Department, chairman for the conference.

Dr. Gene C. Nutter, turf specialist of the University of Florida, will outline soil sterilization practices in turf and will lead a panel discussion of chemical control of weeds and nematodes.

Other speakers include Dr. O. J. Noer, agronomist of the Milwaukee Sewerage Commission and noted turf specialist. He will give a paper on case histories of turf improvement programs, and will lead a panel discussion on irrigation, aeration and fertility.

Robert M. Williams of Beverly Country Club in Chicago will discuss modern maintenance methods with the golf course section of the group.

There also will be discussions on weather, water quality control problems as related to turf, shade tree maintenance, and reports on the studies of soil mixtures for putting greens. Dallasgrass control in Bermudagrass turf is an added feature, Holt said.

Two Juniors, One 'Fish' Dropped From College

Two juniors and one freshman were suspended from college last week for violations of the Articles of the Cadet Corps, according to Col. Joe E. Davis, commandant.

The two juniors, members of "A" Quartermaster, were charged with violating article 12 b-3 which refers to physical hazing.

Dr. Ellis Named To New Position

Dr. Elmer C. Ellis has been named assistant professor of education at A&M, according to Dr. G. P. Parker, head of the Department of Education and Psychology.

Ellis was born in Crockett and attended public school there. He got his B.S. here and then served in the Navy three years during World War II. After the war he returned to A&M and received his M.S. in education in 1948.

Ellis is married and has two children, Steven Phillip and Cynthia Ann.

Upon recommendation by Military Panel and concurrence by Col. Davis, one of the juniors was suspended for the remainder of the present semester and the other was suspended indefinitely with the provision that he not be allowed to re-enroll in A&M before September, 1957.

Col. Davis said the juniors had been found guilty of using a broom to haze five freshmen, four at one time and one at another.

These were the first students to be suspended this year for hazing.

Also last week, a freshman in Squadron 25 appeared before Military Panel and was found guilty of violating article 22 by "taking articles belonging to other students without their knowledge and selling them for monetary gain."

He was suspended indefinitely.

Article 12 b-3 states that students may be suspended for the "use of, submission to, or possession of the 'board' or any other instrument of physical hazing on or by any student subject to these articles at any time or place."

Article 22 on "stealing or cheating, either in regard to scholastic work or in student activities states that "stealing shall be considered a violation of Article 13 (violating state or federal laws) which calls for dismissal from college."

In accordance with college policy, names of the students were withheld.

1,150 Veterans Enrolled At A&M

Veteran enrollment at A&M this semester is 1,150, according to Bennie A. Zinn, head of the Department of Student Affairs.

World War II veterans began enrolling here under Public Law 16 and Public Law 346 in the summer of 1945 and reached a high of 6195 in the Fall of 1946. The enrollment then started to decrease until it reached the low of 546 in the spring of 1953.

Twelve students enrolled under Public Law 634, which provides educational benefits for orphans of veterans of WWII and the Korean conflict.

Mrs. L. J. Rountree Dies This Morning

Mrs. Lee J. Rountree, publisher and managing editor of the Bryan Daily Eagle since the death of her husband in 1923 died of cancer this morning at 4:26 in Bryan Hospital.

Funeral services are tentatively scheduled for 4 p. m. Thursday at the First Methodist Church in Bryan with Bishop Frank Smith of Houston officiating, and burial in Bryan City Cemetery. Hillier Funeral Home is in charge of arrangements. Rev. Harry V. Rankin will assist in the services.

Born in Llano county, the exact date of her birth is unknown but is estimated close to 90 years ago. Her maiden name was Frances Mitchell. Early in her childhood she moved to Williamson county near Georgetown where she was graduated from Southwestern University.

Here she met and married Col. Lee J. Rountree while he was publisher of the Georgetown Commercial, now known as the Williamson County Sun. Col. Rountree and his wife moved to Bryan in 1918 when he first became associated with the Eagle.

In 1920 he bought a controlling interest in the paper and was still managing it at the time of his death in 1923.

Twelfth Man Bowl

Classes scheduled for 3 and 4 p.m. Tuesday, December 18, have been dismissed by action of the Executive Committee of the Academic Council so that students and the faculty may attend the annual Twelfth Man Bowl game, President David H. Morgan announced yesterday.

Maj. Gen. P. W. Clark (retired), of San Antonio; C. C. Yates of Brownsville and E. C. Rack of Waco, represented the donors and former students of Bolton.

Lucky Strike Won't Swap Tape for Dog

It was reported to The Battalion that certain parties on the campus were under the impression that by saving an unknown quantity of the red strings on the top of cigarette packages they could secure a Seeing Eye Dog for some blind person.

The Battalion wrote to the American Tobacco Company inquiring about this information and received this reply:

"There is no truth whatsoever in this rumor. It has sprung up from time to time in various localities in the country involving us and other companies in like manner."

The people collecting these strings, a victim of false rumors, should be commended for their civic-mindedness and their willingness to help those people such as they had in mind, but, sorry — Lucky Strike won't swap tapes for dogs.

Holiday Collisions Injure 3 Students

One A&M student is in serious condition and two others were hospitalized as an aftermath of traffic collisions during the Thanksgiving holidays.

Norman Joel Smith, sophomore of Squadron 12 is in Scott and White Hospital in Temple receiving treatment under an oxygen tent.

Hospital officials said he received severe lung and kidney injuries when his car and a truck met and side-swiped Monday night.

Smith, electrical engineering major from Temple, was alone in the car returning to school when the accident occurred, according to his roommate, Jerry L. Lowledge.

The truck driver is unconscious, but his condition is reported fair. Taken to Hearne Hospital after a mishap yesterday at 2:30 a.m. were Albert H. Ormsby of Squadron 6 and Charles W. Bone of C Infantry.

The two received injuries when they were thrown from their car as it smashed into a concrete bridge railing about two miles north of Calvert on Highway 6.

Ormsby, marketing sophomore from Dallas, was treated for cuts

Weather Today

Cloudy skies are predicted, with no important change in temperature. Yesterday's high was 80 degrees, and this morning's low, 67. At 10:30 this morning the thermometer recorded 74 degrees.

UT, A&M Officials Laud Aggie Actions

Members of the student body of both A&M and Texas University were praised for their exceptional conduct after the Turkey Day game Thursday by officials of both schools.

A letter received from Anro Nowotny, dean of Student Life at UT, says:

"I was particularly pleased by the splendid rivalry between our institutions before, during, and after the game. We have not received a single complaint about any of your students during their visit

Help In Store For Troubled Gift Wrapper

Students who are "all thumbs" at wrapping packages can get a helping hand with their Christmas gifts this year.

Aggies may get their gifts wrapped free, either in gift paper or for mailing, according to J. Gordon Gay, Secretary of the YMCA. Council members of the "Y" plan to give their talents to help out those who face the task of enclosing their Santa Packages in colorful covering.

Packages to be wrapped are to be left at the main desk in the YMCA lobby. The wrapping service is now underway, and will continue until school is dismissed for the holidays, Gay says.

All students will be required to furnish the package. The YMCA will furnish all wrapping paper and their time. No rush jobs can be promised though, according to Gay, and students are requested to bring their gifts in a few hours before the time they wish to pick them up.

to our campus. These fine demonstrations of your sportsmanship will be remembered by all of us long after the score of the game is forgotten."

Col. Joe E. Davis, commandant at A&M, says the "conduct of the cadets is commendable" and he is "highly pleased". Col. Davis attributed this attitude to the "high quality" of leadership in the Corps of Cadets at A&M.

President David H. Morgan of A&M, said "this has been a good year and we are all proud of the conduct of our students".

On a whole the conduct of both student bodies is to be commended, he said. The only misconduct reported was the throwing of cardboard flashcards into the A&M section: This immediately brought a roar of disapproval from the Aggies but cadet officers stopped the "card-throwing" shortly.

After the final shot sounded, thousands of A&M students rushed on the field carrying the players to the dressing rooms.

A mass of celebrating Aggies crowded around the south goalpost on Memorial Field trying to wrest it from the ground.

Their efforts were in vain, since the posts were well-constructed, made of iron, and sunk in concrete. The Aggies did succeed in bending them out of shape somewhat.

Risien Receives Magnolia Award

George Lewis Risien of San Antonio, senior geophysical student, has been awarded the Magnolia Petroleum Company Scholarship for the current school year. The scholarship provides $400 for A&M and $400 plus tuition and fees for the winner.
