

Insurance

An insurance salesman said a policy that is not compulsory could be written, but it would cost more.

He said a non-compulsory policy could be written if about 2,500 students would guarantee to take it. He said he did not have official figures on the cost for a non-com-the low price. But he says it is definitely a good plan. compulsory policy.

But he said he thought it was a good policy, and apparently anticipated it getting passed in a student vote.

He said a policy was being drafted by the company.

He said the company could pay off if every person in Texas died.

FOUR OUT OF FIVE members of a family were killed in this car. Their deaths were unnecessary. The father was 52 years old and a nine-year-old girl lost her life. A little baby was left without father and mother and sister. The average was four for four in this car.

Will You Be Killed Driving During Christmas Holidays?

By WELTON JONES

Next Wednesday students will be leaving A&M for the long trip home or wherever they plan to spend Christmas.

Some won't make it. They will be killed.

Building bulletin board shows Aggies will be traveling all over the country and to many foreign lands. Most of this traveling will be done at least part of the way by automobile. All of it will be in a hurry.

And the National Safety Council says that more traffic fatalities occur in this month than in any other month of the year: 3,522 last year, for instance.

Statistics also show that danger multiplies in proportion to the distance traveled. This means that those long, fast, grueling races that Aggies are famous for, are the most dangerous of all traffic circumstances.

Here are some life saving tips.

- Trade the driving chores around. Chances are, if you are not alone on the trip, the other passengers would be glad to drive and relieve you for some refreshing sleep or just an easing of tension.

- Leave someone awake to watch the driver and talk to him if he wishes. Don't make yourself obnoxious by distracting the attention of the driver, but often a simple conversation will keep him awake. The car radio played softly will usually help also.

- Don't drink alcohol. This can't be stressed enough. Any type of alcoholic beverage will tend to lull you to sleep rather than keep you alert. Besides, long drives at night are full of enough hazards that you need not handicap yourself even more.

- Sleep when you are not driving or talking to the driver. A back seat full of sleeping drivers insures an alert hand at the wheel most of the time. As was pointed out, a rotation system of sleeping, talking and driving helps reduce hazards.

- Leave some type of opening in the car. A little air circulating inside will tend to keep the driver alert and keep the windows from fogging. Most car heaters can cope with the slight change in temperature.

- Stop occasionally for coffee and rest. Even at gasoline stops, everyone should get out of the car and stretch his legs. Fresh air and exercise, along with food or some type of hot drink, will do wonders in restoring alertness.

The National Safety Council statistics also show that one out of 13 drivers involved in fatal accidents had some physical handicap at the time. Two-thirds of these accidents were attributed to fatigue.

These points will save your life, or keep fatigue from taking your life. The rest, is up to you. Good Luck.

We see the happiness of Christmas in the enchanted eyes of tiny children... in the joyous glances of fathers and mothers... We see it in the sparkle of twinkling lights on Christmas trees. Even the stars have a frostier, gayer glitter on Christmas Eve! And so, in that happy spirit... we say "Merry Christmas... thanks for all past favors... and may you have the happiest Yuletide ever."

Why our finest watch

was selected as the official timer of the Olympic Games

When the organizing committees of the 16th Olympiads convened to choose an official timer they realized that the performance of every Olympic contestant must be measured with undisputed accuracy. They realized that only an organization with long experience in the science of precision-timing could shoulder such a great responsibility.

Since Omega had the knowledge and experience, gained not only from timing all previous Olympiads since 1932 . . . but also the timing of the historic Bannister 3,594 mile-run, the British Commonwealth Games, the 1955 Pan American Games and scores of other contests . . . the appointment of Omega was natural and logical. Such dependability is yours in every Omega watch. See our men's and ladies' models, $71.50 up, Federal tax included.
