9,700 Hungarians Fly To US Via Airlift

McGUIRE AFB, N.J.—(AP)—The Air Force wrote finis yesterday to the dramatic airlift of fleeing Hungarian refugees, with the chance another act might be added later.

The last plane, a hospital evacuation transport, landed here at 3:58 p.m. shortly after Lt. Gen. Joseph Smith, Military Air Transport Service Commander, announced the end of Operation Safe Haven.

Aboard were 35 Hungarians including nine litter cases. Five of these are expectant mothers. The plane was not the last to leave Europe but was delayed by snow in Newfoundland.

Thus ended the greatest airlift since the Berlin blockade.

Since it began Dec. 11 through instructions from the White House, 9,700 Hungarians were brought to this country by 110 MATS flights and 46 commercial planes chartered by MATS.

Not a single accident was reported.

The last refugee signed aboard a plane mainfest was 11-month-old Peter Gergely, No. 9,700 to board the airlift.

SOME MORE LITTLE STORIES WITH BIG MORALS

First Little Story

Once upon a time there was an Indian brave named Running Bear who had a squaw named Giggling Water. Giggling Water was sort of a mess, but she sure could make beaded moccasins. Every day she whipped up a brand-new pair of beaded moccasins for Running Bear which were so gorgeous that all the Indian maids on the reservation gawped with admiration.

Well sir, Giggling Water got livid about all the girls making goo-goo eyes at Running Bear, and one night she told him so. Then he got livid too, and they had a terrible rumble, and he slapped her on the wrist, and she started crying like crazy and moved out of the wigwam and went home to her mother and never came back.

"Good riddance!" said Running Bear, but he soon found out how wrong he was, for the Indian maids were not really interested in him, only in his moccasins, and when he stopped showing up with a new pair every day, they quickly gave him the yo-heave-ho, and today he is a broken man, sitting all alone in his tepee and muttering ancient Ute curses.

MORAL: Don't fight the hand that feeds you.

the students did not take that lyars down.

Second Little Story

Once upon a time there was a sweet old gentleman named Nathan who ran a tobacco counter at a large American university. All of the students loved him dearly, and they used to come over whenever they could to buy Philip Morris Cigarettes and chat with Nathan, both of which were highly satisfactory pursuits. The Philip Morrises were highly satisfactory because they are full of natural goodness that is friendly and humane and soothing and no small consolation in this strife-ridden world of ours. Nathan, like Philip Morris, was also full of natural goodness that was friendly and humane and all like that.

Well sir, the students smoked Philip Morris and yoked with Nathan, and everything was lovely. Then one day the university decided to fire Nathan and put in a cigarette vending machine instead.

Well sir, the students did not take that lying down, you may be sure! They organized a monster rally and went over to prexy's house and made fiery speeches about good old Nathan and how they loved him.

Well sir, prexy was no fool, and when he saw how heartbroken the students would be if Nathan went, he decided that the wisest course was to keep Nathan and cancel the cigarette vending machine. This he did, and they all lived happily ever after.

MORAL: Better Nate than lever.

Third Little Story

Once there was a lion, which was a very quiet lion. In fact, the only time it ever made a sound was when it had a toothache.

MORAL: When it pains, it roars.

©Max Shulman, 1956

Philip Morris, sponsor of this column, would like to point a moral too: Nothing ventured, nothing gained. Try a pack of Philip Morris, and win yourself a heap of pleasure!
