Solon's Band Loses Ground On Segregation

Eleven Bills To Come Before Texas Lawmakers

AUSTIN, (AP)—A band of legislators determined to reinforce and strengthen Texas' segregation laws gave ground but did not give up yesterday.

Rep. Joe Chapman of Sulphur Springs told The Associated Press his group had dropped its demands for early action on the touchy problem.

Rep. Reagan R. Huffman of Marshall said however that he would go ahead with plans to introduce 11 segregation bills as soon as Speaker Waggoner Carr opens the door for bill offering within two or three days.

Huffman said the details of the bills would not be announced until they were introduced.

Ext. Service Swine Expert Judges Show

E. M. Regenbrecht of the Texas Agricultural Extension Service is in Trujillo, capital city of the Dominican Republic, where he is serving as swine judge at the International Livestock Show.

Regenbrecht was invited to the show by Dominican Republic's Secretary of Agriculture. The show will feature exhibits from many countries including the U.S. Officials of the show recommended the long time extension specialist because of his wide and varied experiences in judging both breeding and fat swine.

He has for many years directed one of the nation's outstanding 4-H swine programs which is sponsored by the Sears and Roebuck Foundation in cooperation with the Texas Extension Service.

Rickel Selected To Chair SAE

Ernest Rickel was elected chairman of the Society of Automotive Engineers by members of the Society in their regular meeting this week.

Other officers selected for the spring semester are Jimmy Calhoun, vice chairman; Skip Fletcher, recording secretary; Mack McLaren, treasurer; Don Linenberger, reporter and Charlie Jordan, field recorder.

Plans for the coming semester include a tour of an industrial plant, as yet not known, somewhere in the Southwest; participation in the Parents' Day Exhibit and seven guest speakers drawn from officials in Texas industries.

THESE AREN'T GHOSTS—but the members of Cell Block 7, which will be rolling this way tomorrow night at 7:30 in Guion Hall along with The Doodlers. Sponsored by the Office of Student Activities this show is not a Town Hall presentation and tickets are on sale on the second floor of the YMCA for $1 each.

A&M Campus of 2000 AD Presented by Architects

By C. R. McCAIN

"Texas A&M, 2000 A.D.," is the theme of fourth year Architecture students in presenting their ideas on what they think the campus of the future should look like.

Under the leadership of Charles R. Colbert, and William G. Wagner, of A&M's Architecture Department, 24 students are re-designing the A&M campus in the modern idiom of architecture.

"This project will aid students when they become practicing architects," Colbert said.

"More than likely they will be called upon in the next ten years to design collegiate buildings due to growth of universities and rapid influx of students," he said.

Along with each detailed drawing, the students build a small model to illustrate their idea. Designs range from an all-military school to an all-civilian school.

"The project will also present to the public today's construction and design problems," said Wagner.

"We also want the public to know that the architecture department here at A&M is interested in design of collegiate buildings and campus planning," he said.

Before approaching the problem, each student interviewed several faculty members and students on the campus to get opinions on what should be included on the "ideal" campus.

The ideas from interviews opened the doors to many problems, mostly pertaining to architecture and campus design.

The general trend seemed to be an effort to create an environment where the average student will want to learn.

One student in his report said, "The campus is too spread out. Students have to travel all over the campus to attend classes."

"The automobile traffic is too much of a problem," reported another. "Pedestrian and mechanical traffic should be separated."

Using money as a criteria, one student said in his report, "If the approximately two million dollars granted to A&M each year by the state were saved until the year 2000, enough money would be on hand to build an entirely new campus."

Another student wrote, "The school was designed and planned basically before 1876 and reached its peak of efficiency 20 years ago."

"Military will be optional," added another student in his report. "Fifty percent will be civilian students."

He went on to say that highway 6 will then be a 4-lane highway and the railroad will be replaced by a monorail.

Other assumptions were that A&M would be co-educational and the Corps of Cadets would be eliminated.

Another idea was that no vehicular traffic would be allowed on the campus.

Out of the 24 exhibits, many problems were brought into view and a solution was offered for each.

"We hope to show some of these projects in the MSC very soon," said Colbert.

"If the students' work is recognized by enough people in the architecture profession, the publicity gained could help the student very much when going to work after graduation."

Four Hospitalized After Collision

Three Bryan men are in Bryan Hospital following a two-car collision yesterday morning five miles south of Hearne on Highway 6. A Hearne woman was also injured.

M. E. Adams, manager of Lone Star Gas Company in Bryan, and two employees, Chester Jones and J. J. Pridgen were injured when the car which they were driving crashed into a car driven by Betty Barnett of Hearne, employee of Haswell's Book Store in Bryan, Highway Patrolman O. L. Luther said.

Adams received a compound fracture of the leg and a broken ankle. Hospital officials say that he has serious internal injuries.

Jones suffered a broken leg, cracked ribs and internal injuries. Pridgen received only minor cuts and bruises.

Pair Of Generals To Give Cadet Bars

Brig. Gen. David W. Traub and Maj. Gen. Gabriel P. Disoway will present commissions to January graduates in the United States Army and Air Force, respectively, at the ceremonies scheduled for Saturday, Jan. 19.

A total of 60 Army and Air Force cadets will receive second lieutenant bars from the officers at the ceremonies. Forty Army second lieutenants will be commissioned and 20 Air Force cadets will receive their bars.

Weather Today

The temperature at 10:30 this morning was 73 degrees. Yesterday's high and low readings were 80 and 68 degrees.

Dulles Hopeful As House Eyes Ike Manifesto

Representative Walks Out Protesting Secret Hearings

WASHINGTON, (AP)—One critical congressman bolted a secret hearing on the Eisenhower Middle East manifesto yesterday. But Secretary of State Dulles expressed confidence that Congress would swiftly enact the President's policy.

"I'm hopeful it will be approved by Congress this month," Dulles said after a closed door hearing of the House Foreign Affairs Committee.

The President is asking for standby authority to use U.S. troops in the Middle East if asked in case of open Communist aggression. He also proposes to pour more dollars into the Mideast economy.

Some Democrats were talking slowdown despite Dulles' and Eisenhower's appeals for promptness.

One of them, Rep. Wayne Hays of Ohio, stalked out of the hearing, denouncing the secrecy surrounding Dulles' testimony.

"I don't think the State Department and Mr. Dulles should be able to tell the American people that everything is lovely in public, and then go behind closed doors and tell what grave dangers there are," Hays said.

He complained that the administration has "leaked" to the press but that congressmen are censured if they discuss on the House floor what was taken up in closed committee sessions. He said he wants to stay free to debate the question on the floor.

In the Senate, yet to start hearings, Sen. Russell (D-Ga.), told reporters: "I for one am not going to be stampeded into action on this."

Rep. Albert Thomas (D-Tex.), a high ranking member of the House Appropriations Committee, also objected to speedy action. He said Congress should go slow about "delegating its responsibility for declaring war." And he said the economic-military program "can and probably will cost several billion dollars."

Dulles, who testified at an open hearing yesterday, said he believed today's closed session was necessary.

"If it had been open," he said, "we would not have been able to tell the committee some of the things we did because they would have involved the security of the United States."

The recently completed building is located on the Upland Farms section of the college farms just north of the new Veterinary Medicine Center and west of the Agronomy Field Laboratory.

Dedication Of Building Set Tomorrow

Dedication of the new Foundation Seedstocks Building will be at noon tomorrow during the annual meeting of the Texas Certified Seed Growers, Inc., and the Texas Agricultural Workers Association here. The new building cost about $170,000.

Dr. Lee C. Coffey of the Agronomy Department heads the Foundation's seed program and will be in charge of the new building. Coffey said that the masonry structure has approximately 15,000 feet of floor space which is "completely adequate."

The dedication program will begin with a Dutch-treat barbecue luncheon at 11:45 a.m. Dr. J. S. Rogers, head of the Agronomy Department will be chairman of the dedication program.

Dr. R. D. Lewis will speak on the research-teaching-extension aspects of the seed production program. Lewis is director of the Texas Agricultural Experiment Station.

Photo Lover Swipes Shots From Office

Horrors—someone has mistakenly procured five pictures from the office of the Aggeland '57 which were on loan from state newspapers and a thorough search of the office and YMCA has failed to produce the missing shots.

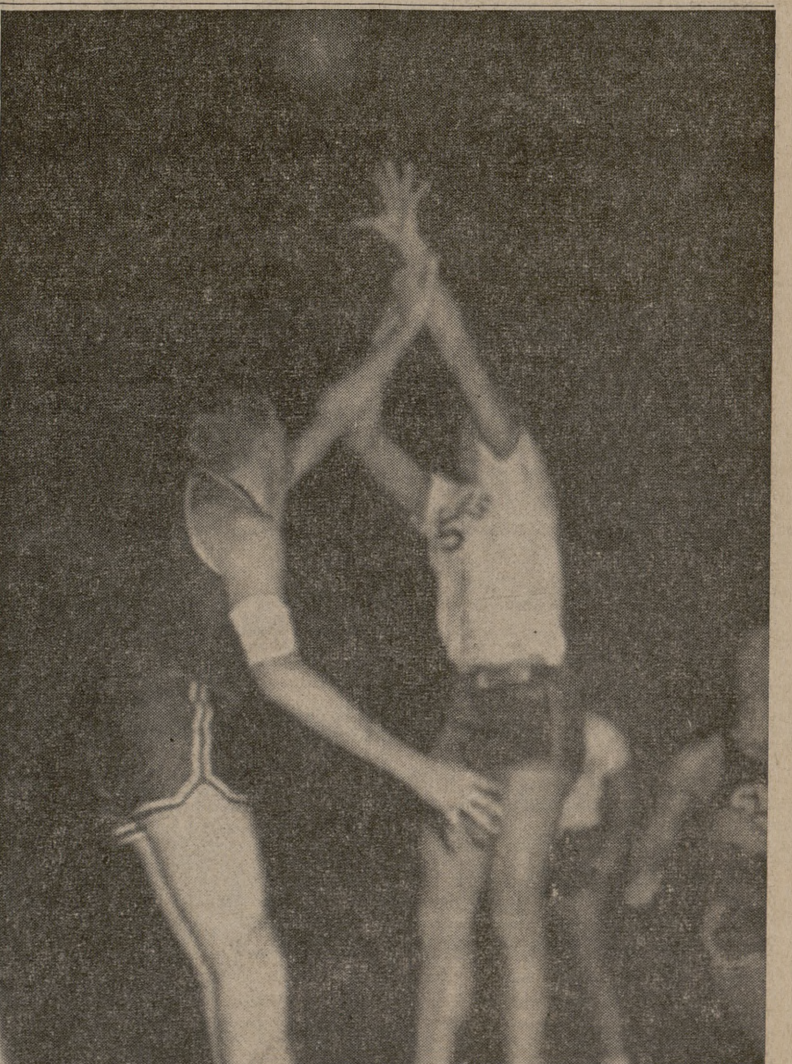

The pictures, of the sequence type, were the property of state newspapers, and loaned to Aggeland Editor Don Burt.

Burt and his crew had intended to ship the pictures to Taylor Publishing Co. where they would be copied and placed in this year's issue of the Aggeland. But, pictures have a way of walking off it seems.

No doubt, the person who mistakenly took the shots mistook them for last year's pictures, but in reality has pictures of all the conference games, except Arkansas, in his possession.

As it now stands, an Athletic Department brochure is being held off the presses due to the missing pictures and the Aggeland staff's faces are mighty red.

If you know of the whereabouts of the pictures please see they are returned to the Office of Student Publications.

Cell Block 7, Doodlers

Guion Hosts Comedy Act

By VAL POLK

Guion Hall will shake to its very foundations tomorrow night beginning at 7:30 when the Cell Block 7 and The Doodlers unleash their jazz, comedy and interpretations of Dixieland music.

Featured at this, the second, added attraction of the 1956-57 school year by the Office of Student Activities, The Cell Block 7 and The Doodlers is not a Town Hall production.

Members of the Cell Block 7 had their origination in Dallas about three years ago when all but their leader, Rusty Brown, who doubles in drums, were attending SMU.

Brown, a former public relations man and a salesman turned to "zanier" pastimes met the boys at a "Big D" jam session and talked them into joining forces with him to play on weekends.

As this appealed to the other members of the band and didn't seem to interfere with their school-work they accepted. Before long they had made a name for themselves all over Dallas and when the chance came for an appearance at the swank Riviera Hotel in Las Vegas, well it was too much to turn down.

Complete with striped pajamas they took Vegas by storm and went from the Riviera on a successful tour of the United States. They appeared at such entertainment places as the Pla-Mor Ballroom in

Former Students Slate Conference

The Association of Former Students will sponsor the fifth annual Class Agents Conference and the eleventh annual Club Officers Conference in the MSC on Jan. 12-13, announced J. B. Harvey, executive secretary of the Association.

The winter sports banquet will be held on the evening of January 12 honoring the Aggie Varsity, 1956 Southwest Conference football champions.

Kansas City; Heidelberg Hotel in Jackson, Miss.; and Shamrock in Houston.

When they closed in the Shamrock a local newspaper had this to say about the boys:

"It's a fortunate thing that no act appeared on the bill after Cell Block 7, which is a Spike Jones-type Dixieland group, who just about tore the roof off the swank hotel."

One comment heard about the Cell Block 7 was the management was glad they did such a wonderful job of entertaining the patrons, but they committed one sin—they pulled customers away from the gambling tables to listen to their music.

No wonder Ed Sullivan and his TV show looked so tempting to the entertainers.

Tickets are on sale at the Office of Student Activities on the second floor of the YMCA. All seats for the performance are $1 each. Town Hall tickets will not be accepted for this show.
