American Artist To Live Among People She Paints

NEW YORK (AP)—For our idea of the way Mexico and Mexicans look, many of us have to thank an American woman who began crossing over the Rio Grande to paint the exotic land and people just 25 years ago.

She is Doris Rosenthal. She has just had one of her frequent exhibitions at the Midtown Galleries of pictures of Indian boys and girls, young men and women, old white walls, great clusters of fruit and heaps of vegetables, children in school, bare feet, round faces, shiny white teeth, streaming black hair.

Miss Rosenthal went to Mexico for the first time on the first of her two Guggenheim fellowships. The white-haired artist says her interest in these distant, colorful people first was aroused many years ago:

"I remember as a child thinking of Indians, and imagining Indians, the way most of our youngsters do, or used to do."

"Playing Indian" may not have done much for the rest of us but it has in effect got Miss Rosenthal's familiar pictures into some of the best collections in this country and abroad, and some of the largest museums: The Metropolitan and the Museum of Modern Art here, and the institutions in Toledo, Rochester, San Diego and Colorado Springs.

The Indians in Mexico have been to Miss Rosenthal what the inhabitants of Tahiti were to Gauguin, and the visitors to Coney Island were to Reginald Marsh. They have become as much her specialty as the birds became to Audubon, and the holy men in the Bible to Fred Nagler.

They have been so much her specialty, in fact, that, like Gauguin, she has decided to cast her lot among them:

"I'm going to live there forever!" she says.

She has been making her home in this city, but she wants peace and quiet. Though she used to teach here, and has lived here for years, she is moving lock stock and barrel, via station wagon, to an acre of land she bought in Oaxaca, a city of some 50,000 which is the capital of the state of Oaxaca. It is some distance south of Mexico City.

Suits for Easter Will Be Varied In Style, Fabric

By DOROTHY ROE
Associated Press Women's Editor

In the spring a woman's fancy invariably turns to thoughts of an Easter suit. She also dreams of hats and shoes, gloves and handbags and crisp new fripperies, of course, but the major objective is the suit.

This spring it will be a fussy customer indeed who can't find a flattering suit silhouette, because the new suits are easier to wear than they have been in years, and they come in many varieties.

In the first place you won't have to wear a waist cincher any more to squeeze into a tightly fitted jacket. Lines have been eased, and the loose or semi-fitted jacket in the new thing. Skirts may be slim or pleated, but all have room for walking.

Tall women will like the new tiered skirts, seen in many high-style suits, usually accompanied by a semi-fitted hipbone length jacket. For women who don't like the tubular look there are plenty of pleated skirts which look slim when standing still, but allow freedom for climbing in and out of taxis.

The new suits are notable for handsome, light-weight fabrics and soft, feminine details such as neckline bows, piping, tab trimmings and other dressmaker tricks.

Traditional Decor Gets New Look

The newest trend in home furnishings goes back to old favorites with modern improvements.

In recent furniture showings, the most notable change has been the return to traditional designs reproduced with a contemporary touch.

A grandfather clock gets modern treatment with plastic material, streamlined design and new electric works. An old-fashioned breakfast china cabinet is done in handsome natural mahogany, with doors and drawers working with modern mechanical perfection.

The round dining room table of grandfather's day stages a comeback, but with formica top and streamlined base.

There are rocking chairs brought up to date with foam rubber upholstery and easy-to-clean plastic upholstery.

Junior Leaguers Find Work In Unusual Library Rewarding

AP Newsfeatures

Above Mrs. George Mott's desk in the New York Junior League headquarters hangs a series of letters, most of them written in childish hands. In some, spelling, punctuation and the use of capitals is irregular, but in all the sentiment is clear.

The first, in large uneven letters, just says: "I think your books are wonderful." Another, in a more mature hand, is a poem extolling the virtues of libraries.

These are the tokens of appreciation that make Mrs. Mott and the 50-member committee of the Merry-Go-Round and the Pen and Book Clubs happy.

The two clubs are run by the New York Junior League as free services to bedfast people in the five boroughs of the city. Each of the committee members acts as librarian for six bedfast members, mailing with each book a letter, paper for a reply and return postage.

They choose the books from a small but well stocked library at the League's headquarters, the budget for which is supplied from the annual Mardi Gras Ball.
