Crittenden Speaks on Milton At Poetry Society Meeting

Members of the Poetry Society of Bryan and College Station heard Prof. E. P. Crittenden speak on "Milton, the Poet and the Man" when they met Monday night at the home of Mrs. John Ashton.
The poems submitted that evening were read by Mrs. Louis Hanna and judged by popular vote as follows: in the serious category—first, "Biography" by Charles Lee Hurley; second, "Three Months" by John Q. Anderson, and third, "Songs" by Jessie Merle Franklin.
In the light category, winners were: first, "Did Your Mother Come from Ireland?" by Charles Drumwright; second, "Emancipation of Grandma" by Elizabeth Wood, and third, "Excuses" by John Q. Anderson.

It was reported that Mabel Clare Thomas has had a poem published in the "Story Art Magazine" for January and one in the February issue of "Highlights."
A sonnet by Charles Lee Hurley was published on the book page of the Dallas News, and Charles Drumwright was awarded first place for his song lyric, "Lament," by the Poetry Society of Texas.
Vic Lindley wrote biographical material on Rep. Olin Teague for an article in "House and Home," and Merle Hudson had the second installment of a two-part story published by the Houston Chronicle rotogravure magazine and an article reprinted by "Panorama," a United States Information Service magazine.

One particular piece of information to last night left a Bucky Barton, bumfuzzled for Barton said phone's ring with information... He waited a repeated: "A&I Information... so poor as to be degrading.
If you've ever been close to Kyle Field baseball field, you can't miss the delapidated stands that are very nearly dangerous, they are so in need of repair. The roof leaks badly, the so-called "press box" (seating six at a squeeze) is on the verge of collapse and the drainage on the diamond itself is nil. There are no dugouts to seat the teams and any rain drives both squads under the stands—not much better than standing out in the downpour. But don't take my word for it—go out and see for yourself.

Social Whirl

Marketing Wives of the Department of Agricultural Economics and Sociology will meet at 7:30 p.m. Thursday at the home of Mrs. Jarvis Miller, 4304 Oaklawn. Mrs. John Kincannon, co-hostess, will introduce Frank Coulter, who will present an Irish musical program.

AiResearch jet pump "shoots air bullets" to increase efficiency of refrigeration units

The Garrett Corporation comprises one of the most unique and diverse research, engineering and manufacturing organizations in the world.

The parent company, founded in 1936, has grown from three persons to nearly 10,000 scientists, engineers and production specialists. From the AiResearch laboratories have come the pioneer developments in aircraft components and systems which have pushed back the barriers of speed and altitude. Today, 90 per cent of the free world's aircraft carry this equipment.

Divisions and subsidiaries are also engaged in creating industrial products in such varied fields as marine equipment and turbochargers for diesels, and in supplying sales and installation engineering services to airframe companies, airlines and the military.

Through foreign licensees, Garrett's products and engineering services now circle the globe.

Garrett's growth has been rapid and its position sound and stable, mainly because of the creative ability and ideas of its engineers.
