Over Rice, LSU

Ags Try to Hold Track Domination

Inspired by their last-event, 72-64, triumph over the Rice Owls last Saturday, Coach Frank G. (Colonel Andy) Anderson's thinyclads attempt to keep their domination of Rice and LSU in Houston at 2:30 p.m. Saturday.

The Aggies have never lost a triangular meet with the Owls and Tigers, but the outlook for Saturday is not too bright.

"Our chances are not too good," observed Colonel Andy, who retires this season after 36 years at A&M. "LSU will probably hurt us more than they will Rice. In fact, Rice has a very good chance of winning, especially since they will be at home."

A&M lost their ace runner, four-event man Emmett Smallwood, for the remainder of the season last Saturday. Smallwood, who probably is the best broad jumper in the Southwest Conference, also is the number two low hurdler, can place in the 100-yard dash and runs a leg on the sprint relay. The Galena Park Junior, reinjured a pulled leg muscle against Rice.

The Aggies, who won the mile relay in a "must" situation last weekend, will find their mile four-some definite underdogs in Houston. The LSU quartet won the race at the Sugar Bowl Relays and will be favored. The Tigers are also strong in both jumps and, as might be expected, in the 440-yard dash.

LSU has been Southeastern Conference champs 14 times, finishing third last year. The Tigers won the team title at the Coliseum Indoor Relays at Birmingham.

A&M counters the Tigers with a strong field team headed by Winston Thomas and Herman Johnson. Thomas, undefeated this year in the pole vault, jumped 13-6 1/2 last Saturday, and took third in his first try at the javelin.

Bell Huddles With Solons In Attempt to Get Support

WASHINGTON, — (AP) — Commissioner Bert Bell of the National Football League (NFL) huddled Wednesday with key Congress members to state pro football's case against governmental regulation.

Bell found support from House Republican leader Martin of Massachusetts but evidently made no headway with Rep. Celler (D-NY) judiciary committee chairman who insists major league football and baseball alike are big business.

The commissioner, visiting from NFL headquarters at Philadelphia, talked with Martin, Celler and Rep. Harris (D-Ark), Sen. Kefauver (D-Tenn.) and Sen. Clark (D-Pa.), among others. He made an appointment for tomorrow with Rep. Keating of New York, senior Republican on the judiciary committee.

Bell came to Washington as a result of the Supreme Court's recent decision that pro football is subject to federal antitrust laws.

That ruling did not disturb major league baseball's exemption from the same controls, but baseball leaders still are showing signs of alarm over their status. Club owners have called a meeting in Florida this Friday to chart strategy in advance of anticipated congressional hearings on the whole field of professional sports.

Adcock Says Braves 'Have What It Takes'

BRADENTON, — (AP) — Joe Adcock, the slugging first baseman who ruins Brooklyn pitching, thinks his Milwaukee Braves have a better chance to win the pennant this year than in 1956.

"We've been through the seige now," he said before an exhibition game. "We'll have what it takes." "Say what you want, there was a lot of pressure on us last year. When you try to give that little extra, sometimes you hurt yourself."

Like most of the Milwaukee players, Adcock insists the Braves didn't lose the pennant last year, rather Brooklyn won it.

"They had to come back to win it," he said. "It showed they really were champions. Remember in 1951 when they had it won with a 13-game lead, but wound up losing. It has happened to the Dodgers, too.

"Man for man we're as good as anybody in the National League. Our pitching staff is the equal of any. I see no reason why we shouldn't win. I think there are at least three good reasons why we should."

"One, we'll have Fred Haney as manager from the very start and there won't have to be any mid-season adjustments.

"Two, a couple of our pitchers can do much better. Gene Conley's arm isn't bothering him and we expect more from him."

"Three, no three of us ever got hitting together last year.

Ags' Trimble Suspended From School

Murry Trimble, A&M's one-armed left guard, has been suspended from school until February, 1958, for scholastic dishonesty.

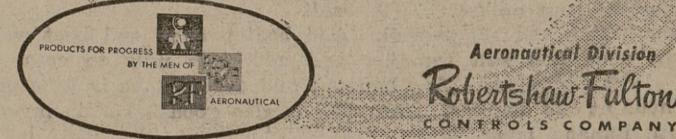

Trimble, who was due to finish his eligibility next fall, had appealed his case to Pres. D. W. Williams, but this morning the president upheld the faculty review committee's decision. Trimble had been on final disciplinary probation since May of last year.

The loss of the aggressive little guard will open another gap in A&M's already-thin middle line. Graduation took center Lloyd Hale and guards Dennis Goehring and Dee Powell and Trimble had been counted on to fill the left guard spot.
