

Vote for the Future

Tomorrow's election could mean the beginning of the end for the annual squabbles between Corps and Civilian students and begin an era of cooperation in which future Aggies will no longer be "lousy non-regs" and "boy scouts" but all Aggies in the truest sense.

The key to such a bright future lies in the hands of every voter who goes to the polls tomorrow. He may use the key to open the door to a better Aggeland or discard it and keep the school in the same rut of prejudice and strife.

Aggies with their school's best interests at heart will VOTE FOR INTEGRATED RESERVED SEATING for Corps and Civilian juniors and seniors. Thereby they will open the door to the unity and cooperation so badly needed among Corps and Civilian students.

Opponents to the plan have been able to think of no reason against the plan except they say "the unity of the Corps would be destroyed."

Which is more important for A&M's good, the future of the Corps, which will grow dimmer and dimmer barring war, or the future of the A&M student body made up of every student, Civilian and Corps?

The main thing hindering a closer relationship between the two factions is misunderstanding. Any student who has been in the Corps and later becomes a Civilian will vouch for that or vice-versa. Even students of one faction who have opportunities to work with those from the other soon realize misunderstanding is the only real barrier.

Creating the badly needed understanding would be the result of a vote FOR integrated seating. This is shown by how much better Civilian and Corps students act toward each other at out-of-town games where everyone sits together. There the AGGIES yell for their team on the field not the Civilians and Corps.

Every Aggie enrolled in the College should go to the polls tomorrow and in the privacy of the voting machines cast their vote for the Aggeland of the future where all Aggies "stand together" in keeping with the famous Aggie theme.

Intramural Dinner

Intramural managers, athletic officers and their assistants will be honored with a barbecue Wednesday evening at 6:30 in the Grove.

"This is going to be a final appreciation barbecue for everyone who has helped so willingly in our athletic program," remarked Barney Welch, Intramural Director. We want this to be informal so we have obtained permission to have all the Corps members come in civilian clothes."

Welch said awards of sweaters and watches will be given to the intramural managers and tie clasps will be awarded to the athletic officers.

Several guests who have shown an interest in the athletic program and aided in it will also be present, according to Welch.

Crippled Children's Clinic For 105 Held Here Monday

One hundred and five patients received free diagnosis and treatment at the Crippled Children's Diagnostic Clinic held in the Educational Center of the A&M Presbyterian Church yesterday, according to Dr. Luther G. Jones, chairman of the Society for Underprivileged Children.

The 105 handicapped children represented a nine county area in this part of the state. Of the youngsters presented at the fourteenth annual meeting of the clinic, 28 were new and 77 had attended the meeting last year.

The clinic opened yesterday at 7 a.m. and all patients were admitted by shortly after noon. In all, 315 persons entered the waiting room of the clinic to bring patients or observe the work, Jones said.

The clinic is held each year as a public service to give free clinical examinations and recommend proper treatment for children disabled or handicapped by deformity, disease or accident, and for both the mentally and physically handicapped.

Sponsors of the clinic are the Kiwanis Club, Brazos Valley Shrine Club and the Brazos County Society for Crippled Children. The Texas Department of Public Health, represented locally by Mr. Imogene Smith and Mrs. Alta Harrison, stands ready to appropriate free aid for children whose parents are not financially able to give them treatment as prescribed by the clinic.

Nine visiting doctors conducted the diagnosis and treatment. They were Doctors W. H. Ainsworth, Steve Lewis, T. J. Baker, S. L. Clifford and Dalton Deckman, all of Galveston; Doctors R. K. Gassler and Joe Woodward of Waco, and Dr. James Cooper of Bryan.

Local organization leaders for the clinic were: John Sperry, and Roy Wingrin, president and vice president of the Brazos County Society for Crippled Children; Dr. G. W. Schlesselman, representing Brazos County Shriners; W. T. Riedel, state director of the Society for Underprivileged Children and Dr. L. G. Jones. Mrs. T. W. Leland was in charge of education for women who helped in the clinic.

'J' Students Given Awards at Banquet

Twelve outstanding journalism students were awarded citations and scholarships Friday night at the first annual Sigma Delta Chi Awards Banquet held in the Western restaurant.

James Wagner, managing editor of The Houston Press was speaker for the Banquet. He spoke on "What It Means to be a Newspaper Man."

Chosen as the outstanding graduate of the Journalism Department and presented with a citation from SDX national headquarters, was Barry Hart, fifth year student from La Marque. Benny E. (Bud) Fichte was presented the other national SDX citation for scholarship. Fichte was in the top five per cent of his graduating class.

Journalism departmental awards went to Joe Tindel, from Athens, Fred Meurer from San Antonio and Gayle McNutt from Comanche as outstanding junior and sophomores, respectively. Dave McReynolds, former managing editor of The Battalion, from College View, was selected by the department as the graduating senior giving outstanding service to the profession.

Robert Carlisle, 104 Meadowland, College Station, senior wild-life management major, was awarded a $400 grant by the Wild-life Management Institute to defray expenses while working on a second degree in journalism. It was the first award of its kind, according to Donald D. Burchard, head of the Journalism Department.

Bill Reed, Bonham, was awarded the $100 Gulf Coast Press Association scholarship, given to students interested in the non-metropolitan field of journalism. Two agriculture journalism majors, a sophomore, Tommy Keith, from Cleveland, and a junior, J. B. McLeroy, from Saginaw, were awarded $500 scholarships, presented by the Anderson Clayton Foundation.

Other two awards were presented to Holim Kom, Seoul, Korea and Welton Jones, of Lubbock. They received $100 scholarships presented by the A&M SDX Chapter from funds raised from faculty magazine subscription sales.

Awards Given To Three A&M Profs

Editor, The Battalion:

It appears that the significance of Silver Taps is becoming less meaningful due to the fact that many students were in their rooms last night during this occasion. Giving tribute to one of our lost Aggie buddies should be one of our most honored events. By attending Silver Taps we show respect and display our moral values. But we surely cannot show respect or any other good qualities by staying in our rooms. Why not all of us attend this ceremony of brotherhood so that we may be more proud to be an Aggie?
