SECOND ROUND COMPLETED
NEW YORK (AP)—Richard Bissell is getting a lot of Broadway mileage out of "7½ Cents." That was the name of a novel he wrote—and later helped adapt into the hit musical, "The Pajama Game." Then he wrote a book about his fledgling outing in show business, called "Say, Darling." Now it has been bought for dramatization—and Bissell will collaborate on that too.

because his sleuths have uncovered enough of a rumble to once again keep A&M and his one time boss, Bear Bryant, on probation for another two years. The irony is the effect that the political hassle is having on the man trapped in the middle—Ken Loeffler.

To the Editor:
This year has been my most hospitalized year here at A&M College. I was sent to the College Hospital five or six times last fall and this spring for either cuts or sickness. Each time I was thankful this hospital and its personnel were here.

Not only did I receive comfort and help from the doctors and nurses, but cheerfulness too. One needs the emotions of laughter, joy and happiness especially when he is ill. That is what these nurses give you here. That is what I received!

Cheerfulness is in itself a form of cure for frustration or loneliness. When you are in a bed surrounded by four walls, you need someone to cheer you up. The pretty nurses do a good job of it too!

One time I read a letter in "The Batt" about some nurses and students playing too much. I do not want to dispute the author of those words, but each time you hear laughter or giggling in a hospital which is known to be a solemn place, you feel you are in a good place for the time being, don't you? Which is best, books or

Wildlife Group's Collection Best

A group of A&M wildlife management students won an award certificate for the most representative collection of amphibians and reptiles during the recent annual field meeting of the Texas Herpetological Society in Bandera County.

The 17 students collected 345 specimens representing 32 species. Seven of the species were the first of their kinds ever recorded in the county, according to Dr. Richard J. Baldauf, who accompanied the group on the trip.

The Wildlife Management Department display for the Parents' Day Open House included 70 of the live specimens which were caught on the tour.

happiness? I'll take happiness any day.

So hats off to the pretty nurses and handsome doctors of A&M's College Hospital.

To the Editor:
In order that you might save yourself from further embarrassment, I would like to bring you up to date on "What Goes On Here." In your issue of 14 May you made reference to "a few juniors jumping the gun" on the wearing of the D. M. S. bar. (It is in fact not a ribbon) You went on to say that there has been no publication of an official list. There again you are incorrect! The official tentative D. M. S. list has been published and is available at the PMS&T's office for verification. I also highly recommend you consult your dictionary for the difference between "tentative" and "temporary." It is possible that your gross error lies in a misunderstanding between the meanings of the two words. I might further recommend that you consult Col. Taylor Wilkins as to whether or not his office has authorized the wearing of the D. M. S. bar by tentative appointees. I'm not insinuating that you have misquoted, but your statement re Col. Wilkins leaves some doubt as to the full situation.

Brown, Baird Cited At Sigma Xi Fete

At the recent banquet held by the A&M Chapter of Sigma Xi, national scientific honor society, 35 new members were initiated and two graduate students were given awards.

Murray Allison Brown was honored for his work in dairy science and James Robert Baird for his work in electrical engineering.

Richard J. Anderson, assistant director of the Battelle Memorial Institute was principal speaker at the annual meeting. He discussed the role of contract research on the American industrial scene.

Fox Replaces Ross On Ag. Ed. Faculty

M. D. Fox has joined the faculty in the Department of Agricultural Education on May 1, replacing Henry Ross who is on leave-of-absence in East Pakistan.
For the past five and one-half years, Fox has been associated with agricultural work in India and El Salvador. He served as advisor to the government of Hyderabad on the organization and operation of a training center for training extension personnel for community projects and development areas. While he was in El Salvador, he organized a national school of agriculture.

Fox was the supervisor in the veterans on-the-job training program in 23 north central Texas counties before he did his foreign work. From 1949-52 he taught vocational agriculture in Eastland.

He has Bachelor of Science and Master of Education degrees from A&M. He attended Tarleton State College in 1934-36, before graduating from A&M in 1944.

with the world on a string

This June, the graduates of our engineering and scientific schools, pockets stuffed with job offers, have "the world on a string."

But there's another "string" attached to this fabulous situation: A man can only accept one job offer.

How can the graduate make up his mind wisely about his vital decision?

We're not going to try to tell you. And we're going to resist the temptation to point out the many advantages of working for IBM—much as our company, like every other, needs top-notch engineering and scientific talent.

We're merely going to leave you with one thought that may help you make your decision:

IBM's President has stated this policy: "... I want this company to be known as the one which has the greatest respect for the individual."

What a man uses on his face is important
