

Afghanistans Here For Police School

Nine Royal Government of Afghanistan officers are attending the 19th Texas Municipal Police School which is being held at A&M throughout May.

Coming to this country through the international cooperation program of the State Department, the men are taking the training as part of their studies of United States law enforcement. Conducted by the Engineering Extension Service, the four-week course offers training in the latest crime-fighting techniques and law enforcement practices used in Texas.

Afghanistan is a country of 14 million population bordered by Russia, Iran and Pakistan. It is a "neutral" constitutional monarchy, and its boundaries are comparable to the size of Texas.

Dried apricots, after they have been soaked and drained, are delicious cut into slivers and added to a quick bread.

Bishop Awaits Visit In Central America

Thomas W. Bishop, artist for the Texas Agricultural Extension Service since 1946, has been granted a four months leave of absence to go to Central and South America, where he will serve as graphic arts consultant with the Inter-American Institute of Agricultural Sciences, Turrialba, Costa Rica.

Bishop will work with the personnel in agricultural information offices in Guatemala, Honduras, Nicaragua and Brazil as well as Costa Rica.

"Bishop's outstanding work in visual aids and especially in planning and developing illustrations for Texas Extension Service publications was responsible for the assignment," said Extension Director G. G. Gibson. "We are happy," he added, "that one of our staff members was selected to do the training work."

Prior to his Extension employment, Bishop served as engineering draftsman at Bryan Army Airfield from 1943-46.

Smart Brides Study Correct Wedding Dress

By DOROTHY ROE
Associated Press Women's Editor

Happy is the bride who checks up in advance on correct wedding attire and greets the big day calm, collected and secure in the knowledge that her costume is perfect from gloves to veil.

At a formal wedding, either daytime or evening, the bride wears a floor-length gown with train and a floor-length or finger-tip-length veil. If the ceremony is an elaborate church wedding, the gown should have a full cathedral train and should be worn with a full-length veil. If it is a smaller, more simple chapel wedding, a short chapel train and finger-tip veil are correct. Accessories include either prayer book or bouquet, white slippers (or a matching pastel if the wedding gown is tinted) and long white kid gloves, reaching above the elbow.

The bridegroom wears cutaway or club jacket, gray striped trousers and fawn flannel or white linen waistcoat for a formal day-time wedding, white tie and tails for an evening ceremony. With the latter outfit white kid one-button gloves are a must.

Things are simpler for an informal at-home wedding. The bride may wear an ankle-length wedding gown without a train, a short veil and short white gloves. The bridegroom may wear a dark business suit for a fall or winter wedding, or dark coat and white trousers for a summer occasion. The white jacket and dark flannel trousers also are correct for summer wear.

This year the bride gets a break—wedding gloves now come three to a set, so that after the ring finger of the left glove has been slit for wear during the ceremony, there's a spare to make up the pair for later wear.
