Letters to the Editor

On our past glory or shall we try to progress towards a better educational institution? To those of you that would like to take A&M back to the past or keep it where it is now, I say we must go forward and the greatest stride we could take would be to make this school co-educational.

Donald M. Godwin '55

Editor,
The Battalion

It seems that in the past few days there has been quite an issue raised on the question of compulsory or non-compulsory Corps. It is not the intent of my letter to voice an opinion on this controversial question but to express a feeling that has long been in my mind and I am sure, one that has been in the minds of other Aggies and pros. I hereby cast my vote for a co-educational A&M College, for the betterment of this school and the furthering of education at this college.

Shall we spin our wheels and live
