

May Vet Grad Wins $4,000 Research Grant

Dr. Delmar R. Cassidy, who was awarded the doctor of veterinary medicine degree at the May commencement, has received a grant of $4,000 from the Dr. Salsbury Laboratories of Charles City, Iowa, for a postdoctoral fellowship. Cassidy is doing graduate work in the School of Veterinary Medicine.

Dr. L. C. Grumbles of the Department of Veterinary Microbiology will direct the studies under the fellowship. Infectious synovitis, one of the more important diseases of broilers and turkey poults, will be investigated.

A relatively new disease, infectious synovitis was first recognized by Dr. F. K. Willis at A&M in 1953. This disease is caused by a virus-like agent and can be cultivated in embryonating eggs and on tissue cultures.

Cassidy will investigate the basic immunological and biochemical characteristics of the causative agent and attempt to produce a vaccine that will prevent infection.

Branson Attends National Meeting

Dr. Robert E. Branson will attend a national conference called by the U. S. Department of Agriculture to review present and future research plans regarding meat products. Particular attention will be given to consumer preferences as to different types and grades of beef and other meats.

The conference is to be held at the University of Missouri, Columbia Mo., September 9-10.

Branson will appear on the program to discuss the results of several research projects at Texas Agricultural Experiment Station dealing with consumer meat preferences.

Representatives from A&M also will include Dr. O. D. Butler, head of the Animal Husbandry Department, Dr. Sylvia Cover and Professor Gene T. King.

Dr. Cover and King will report on related meat research in the Animal Husbandry Department which is a part of the coordinated meats research program of the Texas Agricultural Experiment Station.

Work of these researchers at the Experiment Station and those in several other universities has indicated the need for a reappraisal of present meat grading methods. It is hoped that new grading procedures can be developed to assure the housewife a more uniform quality of taste and tenderness in the beef and other meats she purchases for her family.

Ag Relation Plans Conference Here

These men (in picture at right) are planning a new conference which will be offered at A&M this fall. They are professional agriculturists, and are planning the Agricultural Relations Conference for Business and Industry, to be held at A&M October 28-29.

Standing at the blackboard is Dr. A. B. Wooten, extension economist in the Department of Agricultural Economics & Sociology at Texas A. and M. Although several members of the department took part in the conference, Dr. Wooten will work closely in its organization and arrangements.

The conference is designed to help business and industrial leaders of the state better understand the significance of agriculture to the state's economic well-being.

'Texas In Review' Shows Fire Ants

Fire Ants, believed to have come to this country from South America, will be the subject of a revealing story on Humble Oil & Refining Company's "Texas in Review" TV program next week.

The ants have built mounds up to three feet high in the state from Houston east along the Gulf Coast. Authorities are studying ways of destroying them.

Texas' first toll road, the Turnpike linking Dallas and Fort Worth will also be featured as cameras take a motor tour along the length of the new arterial.

The Women's National Sailing Championships will be covered by "Texas in Review" cameras. The ladies, from all over the nation, are competing for honors in Corinthian class yachts.

Colorful Texan—Tom Hickman, retired Texas Ranger—will be visited at his ranch near Gainesville.

Razorback Nucleus In Ten Iron Men

While it's true that Arkansas may come up with a breakthrough threat in a fine-looking group of speedy sophomore halfbacks, the real hard-core of Razorback grid success this year will fall back on 10 senior two-year lettermen.

These Ten Iron Men will provide the stability, the leadership and a sparkle of their own in Coach Jack Mitchell's third year with the Porkers.

Included in the group—which represents an aggregate of 34 years of college football experience—are two veterans of the 1954 championship team, two more players who scrimmaged that team and the tri-captains for 1957.

Cause of Action

CINCINNATI, (AP)—A man from whom police confiscated a black-jack and .45 caliber automatic is suing the city of Cincinnati for $1,500 because loss of the weapons is causing him to "suffer from a feeling of insecurity."

Police say they took the black-jack and automatic from Henry Ivery after he fired a shot at a prowler, they said they were not convinced he was the proper owner of the weapons.
