Baylor's Bears, realizing that a defeat by the Aggies will solidly implant them in the lower realms of the Southwest Conference have vowed they would "win this time."

The last time the Waco school scored a win over the Aggies was in 1953, when the Bruins squeaked out a 14-13 victory over the Cadets.

Earl Miller, end However, Earl Miller claims that this Saturday will be a big Saturday for the Baptists, and says, "I tell you we're going to be ready. We've been disappointing but that's behind us. We've still got a real good chance at the championship. We beat them when we were freshmen. I don't see why we can't beat them—because everybody wants to beat them so bad."

Doyle Traylor, quarterback Ace quarterback Doyle Traylor declares outright, "We're not only ready to go, but this year we'll win. This is the best team spirit we've had this year. Everybody feels about A&M like we did against Tennessee—we just feel we can beat them."

Al Witcher, end Al Witcher, Bear terminal who will return to action after laying out with an injury last week, says "I don't see why we can't beat them."

Bobby Jack Oliver, tackle Bobby Jack Oliver, massive tackle who patrols the line comments "It's time we beat them. This will be my last chance at the Aggies. I know the spirit and attitude are really different for this game."

"The Other Side"

Ken Beck, junior tackle from Minden, La., one of last week's outstanding defensive players, will again strengthen the Aggie defense of that sacred ground known as the "end zone."

AP's Rattliff Points Out Baylor Has 'Last Chance'

By HAROLD V. RATLIFF Associated Press Sports Editor

Texas A&M goes after its 12th straight victory and a long stride toward another Southwest Conference football championship in a clash with angry Baylor Saturday.

This game, matching the team that won it all and wants more and one that was supposed to win and failed, headlines a fateful schedule.

Baylor, ill, sore and humiliated because it never could get going in the season which had been pictured so brilliantly for it, goes against Texas A&M knowing that this is the last chance—the last stop on the road to oblivion. Only if the Golden Bears can beat the mighty Aggies will they have even a whispering chance at the title.

A sellout crowd of 42,000 will watch the massive teams fight it out, two ponderous lines locked in terrific combat and the Bears trying to offset A&M's grinding ground game with a passing attack geared to limping Doyle Traylor.

At Austin, it will be an up-and-coming defense as mustered by Texas against one of the wildest offenses the league ever saw. Rice has blown hot and cold on defense but there never has been any doubt about the Owls moving the ball with the wind.

Rice is a narrow favorite to win but not by the faulty 12-point odds accorded Arkansas last week. The Owls are given five points.

Arkansas, licking its wounds from a 17-0 upset by Texas, sallies forth for inter-sectional strife, meeting Mississippi, the nation's sixth ranked team, at Memphis.

Three of the nation's top teams will be seen in action in Texas—A&M, rated No. 2; Rice, No. 13, and Texas, No. 19. They all could have their ratings fractured.

SWC HIGHLIGHTS

BY GARY ROLLINS

Coach Paul Bryant's Cadets placed that final "keen edge" on their offense and defense in a light workout yesterday afternoon as they prepared for tomorrow's encounter with the potent Baylor Bears.

The Farmers, who will be giving away a weight advantage of ten pounds in the line and five pounds in the backfield, were hampered slightly in the early part of the week by the rains that saturated the practice fields.

A slight break in the weather on Wednesday allowed them to retreat to the A&M College Golf Course—not for a quick nine holes—but to polish their passing attack.

A crowd of over 42,000 is expected, as for the second year in a row the Aggie-Baylor game is a sellout. Last year in Waco, the Cadets squeezed out a 19-13 victory before a fully-packed Baylor Bear Stadium. The Aggies are slight favorites to take their second SWC win.
