

'Hasty Heart' Has Smooth First Night

By WELTON JONES

Starting slow but gaining enough speed for a solid finish, the cast of "The Hasty Heart", an Aggie Players production, presented a smoothly-rounded product to a nearly full first night house in the Memorial Student Center last night.

Sparked by the explosive acting of David Dannenbaum and steadied by the calm sweetness of Alice Gene Butler, the cast, called "inexperienced" previously, visibly gained confidence as the evening progressed.

John Patrick's play of patients in a World War II British field hospital contains some muddled motivations and stretches the imagination rather often, but the Players gave it a creditable airing.

Don R. Reynolds, in the major role of the misanthropic Scottish sergeant who is unaware that he will die within a few weeks, brought a convincing brogue to the role, but seemed to lack understanding of the man's tortured personality.

Dannenbaum put the stamp of authority on the role of Yank, the wounded American ambulance driver who finally persuades Lachie (Reynolds) to soften his views toward mankind.

Yank's furious denouncement of Lachie's stubbornness which ends with a ringing "I wouldn't save you if I could!", as interpreted by Dannenbaum, probably ranks with the best speeches ever delivered by a member of the Aggie Players.

Alice Gene Butler, well known locally as a vocal artist, succeeded well in her first dramatic role. She even sang one bit of a song, which ended far too soon in her rich contralto voice.

C. K. Esten's directorship showed in the tightness and tempo of the production. The sets and costumes, although adequate, were uninspired.

The show will be presented twice more, tonight and tomorrow night, at 8. Tickets are $.75 per person, and may be purchased at the door.
