'Watchers Alert, Hope To See Sputnik

A&M's Operation Moonwatch team is once more standing by on a constant alert hoping that the weather will clear so that the 21 man team can successfully spot Sputnik II, airborne satellite that will be the coffin of Laika, the Russian flying dog.

Jack Kent, director of the local team, said that his crew will man their telescopes tomorrow morning before dawn, trying to get a glimpse of a satellite.

Sputnik II, larger than the first, will be hundreds of feet higher and remain in range of the telescopes for a longer time than the estimated four minutes Sputnik I teased the eye with.

The purpose of moonwatch observations is obtaining the exact location and time the satellite passes overhead. The data will be sent to Harvard University where the object's orbit will be calibrated.

Besides being larger and carrying Laika, Sputnik II gives a different type of signal, a hissing that has a super-imposed beat, Kent said.

The 13 telescopes that the team uses for observation are ones they made themselves in the A&M physics laboratory. Each has a 12 degree field and together cover 120 degrees of the sky.

Kent said there is room for two more teams in his unit. The job requires no special training, only patience and a desire to do a good job. People interested in joining the organization are asked to see Kent in his office at the Academic Building and leave their name, address, telephone number and the amount of time the student has left in A&M.

Weather Today

Local showers today, clearing tonight, is the forecast for the College Station area.

The weak cold front moving eastward over Texas is preceded by rainy weather and followed by clearing.

The maximum and minimum temperatures taken during the 24-hour period ending at 8 this morning were 67 degrees at 8 today and 52 degrees at 8 a. m. Wednesday.

The relative humidity at 8 this morning was 100 per cent. Only .04 inch of rainfall was recorded.

Tuesday Deadline Set for Rice Ducats

Aggies planning to attend the A&M-Rice game Nov. 16 should buy their student and date tickets before noon Tuesday, Lt. Col. Taylor Wilkins, assistant commandant, said yesterday.

Col. Wilkins stressed the importance of buying tickets before then because officials must know how many seats to reserve in the Aggie section. The game will be a sellout and unsold tickets can be sold as general admission.

Air Force Knocks All Saucer Reports

DAYTON, Ohio—(AP)—The Air Force tonight pulled the rug out from under the so-called flying saucers.

A top official of the Air Technical Intelligence Center at nearby Wright-Patterson Air Force Base said the service has found no evidence of flying saucers in the last 10 years.

The official, who declined to be identified, told the Dayton Journal Herald that the Air Force investigated 5,700 reported sightings of flying saucers between 1947-57.

Soviet Missile Seen All Across Nation

By WILMOT HERCHER

WASHINGTON (AP)—Sputnik II was sighted all across the country yesterday, giving scientists the information needed for an accurate fix of its orbit around the earth.

The Soviet satellite appeared to be tumbling end over end in its furious flight at nearly 18,000 miles an hour. This caused renewed speculation about the fate of Laika, the little Russian dog harnessed inside.

TCU Opinion Is Ags Wanted Fight

Final totals of articles destroyed or stolen from Aggies at the Fort Worth Corps trip amounted to $837.

A complete list of articles lost by A&M students was sent to Texas Christian University Dean of Students Laurence Smith by Lt. Col. Taylor Wilkins, asst. commandant.

Both Smith and Student Congress President George Depee issued a plea for the return of any articles belonging to Aggies, emphasizing that students doing so would not be punished.

Dean Smith, Depee and Bob

Roch, TCU Congress vice-president will investigate the claim for reimbursement before payment is made.

Included in the list were:

1 pair of senior boots	$50.00
1 serge uniform	45.00

Depee, in a statement to TCU's newspaper, said, "The delegation that apologized to the A&M Student Senate last week was well received at College Station.

But he added: "I had the feeling that some of the students were resentful of the whole affair and regretful that they didn't get to fight back more."

Keese Named Head Of Traffic Group

Charles J. Keese, associate professor in the Civil Engineering Department, will serve as chairman of a traffic engineering conference on traffic signals, November 20-21, in the Memorial Student Center.

Generals Here Friday

Gen. Maxwell D. Taylor

Gen Maxwell D. Taylor, chief of staff of the U. S. Army, will head a group of military dignitaries visiting here this weekend for the third annual Fall Military Day.

The Ross Volunteers will provide an honor guard for the guests who are expected here tomorrow afternoon.

At 1:30 p. m. Saturday the entire Corps of Cadets-4,000 strong-will march in review on the main drill field with Gen. Taylor taking the salute.

Saturday at 5:30 p. m. Col. and Mrs. Joe E. Davis will honor Gen. Taylor with a buffet supper in the MSC Birch Room.

Gen. Taylor will again review the Corps that night as they march into Kyle Field for the A&M-SMU football game. He will be in the stands later as an honor guest.

Accompanying Gen. Taylor in the festivities will be Maj. Gen. Guy S. Meloy, fourth U. S. Army deputy commanding general for reserves; Maj. Gen. Robert G. Gard, USA, chief, U. S. Military District, Texas; and Maj. Gen. T. C. Rogers, commandant of the nation's Air Force program.

SMU Weekend Features Two Dances, Five Bands

Two dances scheduled this weekend feature five, count 'em, five bands. That's an average of two and a half bands a dance, but the traditional extravaganza, Midnight in New Orleans is going to grab four of them after the game.

Midnight in New Orleans, with the atmosphere of old New Orleans, will spread throughout the Memorial Student Center.

Dave Woodard and his Combo, the regular Rue Pinalle group will play their brand of music in the games area; Richard Smith, with dance music of rock and roll tendencies, will hold court on the second floor; Joe Mendes, with Latin music to please, will occupy the Serpentine Lounge; and Chet Atkins and his Jazz Band will add

Canine Pilot Alive, Says Soviet Paper

MOSCOW, (AP)—Tass, the Soviet news agency, has said that Laika, the dog in Sputnik II, was in satisfactory condition after her four-day whirl around the earth.

The earth satellite was to complete its 54th revolution at 10 p. m. at which time Sputnik I will have completed 500 circuits, and its rocket carrier 520.

Tass said that on the basis of three days of reports from the second satellite it had been possible to ascertain its orbit more exactly and to estimate that it would last much longer than the first satellite.

to the down beat on the second floor.

Starting immediately after the game, the dance will end at midnight. Admission is $2 per couple. Tickets will be on sale at a ticket booth and the MSC Directorate's office.

Rue Pinalle is a street in France that is known for night clubs and special kind of music. The MSC will again duplicate one of the clubs in the pre-game dance Friday night in the games area of the MSC.

Dancing music will be furnished by the Dave Woodard Combo starting at 8:30 and lasting 'till yell practice. The floor show will start at 9:45 and will feature Maria Kruttschmitt, SMU ballad singer, and Jude Jones, ballet dancer from Waco.

The price of ducats is $1.50 per couple.
