PORT SLANT By JIM CARRELL

Shortly after the SMU game, I ran into John David Crow in the dressing room while interviewing Aggie players after the hard-fought, 19-6 win over the Mustangs.

One of the first things Crow said to me: "Would you wind analyzing for the Figh for the Would you reason for apologizing.

Reason: Reason:
When the game ended, Crow had just carried the ball on a surge into the middle of the Mustang line and was swarmed under by a Trimble, missing the next line and was swarmed under by a game host of SMU players.

The final gun sounded. The tremendous Crow, certainly one of the finest players ever to perform in the Southwest, was swarmed by no less than ten of his own, overenthusiastic schoolmates.

Gridsters and trainers complained of this tradition. A player's thought after a game is "getting off the field." They can make it easier without being carried.

HERE'S YOUR CHANCE

to get the full story of engineering opportunities in America's most dynamic industry aviation!

Temco Aircraft Corporation — one of the fastest-growing organizations in the industry — is sending an engineering representative to your campus to discuss with you personally the exciting Temco story of outstanding opportunities for young engineers.

WHAT'S YOUR SPECIAL INTEREST?

Right now, Temco offers immediate opportunities to creative young engineers in a wide range of design and development activities including trainer, utility and reconnaissance-type aircraft; high speed drones; guided missiles; and airborne electronic systems. Research and development programs are continuously being conducted both under contract to the armed services and as private ventures financed entirely by Temco.

Today, more than 150 different specialized skills are represented in the many groups that make up Temco's engineering department. Included in this list are specialists in such advanced activities as nuclear engineering, operations research, electronics guidance and thermodynamics.

Make your appointment now to meet the Temco representative. He'll tell you why the best opportunities in aviation engineering are at Temco!
