Bigler Cited For Tornado Warning

Stuart Bigler, department of Oceanography and Meteorology, was presented a special award by the American Meteorological Society for his prompt work spreading the warning before the tornado which struck Bryan in 1956.

Charles F. Brooks Professor Emeritus of Meteorology, Harvard University, said, "It is believed Bigler's warning saved a number of lives that day because it allowed school officials to keep children indoors who otherwise would have been walking through the disaster area."

The award was made at the 161 national meeting of the society held at A&M last Wednesday thru Friday.
