

Flags Around The World

Flags of many nations were on display yesterday in the Memorial Student Center lobby as registration began for the third annual Student Conference On National Affairs. Colleges from all over the nation, Mexico and Canada are represented at the conference by 144 students. Speakers important in world affairs will lead the representatives in discussions on national and foreign political questions.

'Lou' Helps Ags In Study Troubles

A series of help sessions designed for freshmen and sophomores in scholastic difficulty have been started recently on the campus by J. E. Loupot, North Gate business-man.

Loupot said yesterday the help sessions held thus far have been very successful in removing many students from the probation list. Qualified instructors have been obtained by Loupot to teach the sessions. The sessions are held at night and provide students with the important parts of a course summarized in note form.

Loupot has also worked through Corps officers in getting compulsory memorization of notes given in the help periods substituted for other punishment.

"By providing the freshmen and sophomores with notes on the most important part of a course, which they often fail to get in class, and then making them memorize the notes, they can hardly help passing quizzes if they attend class regularly and take even fair notes," he said.

"Although a student should not have to be forced to study," Loupot went on, "if that is what it takes, at least it keeps him from 'flunking' out of school."

He said the help session instructors had excellent notes and points of importance in several courses which most commonly give freshmen and sophomores trouble.

Sessions will be held in biology, zoology, botany, history, chemistry and math 101, 102 and 103, he said.

Lectures are held in places such as "shack D" and the chemistry lecture room and they last two hours. Loupot said he planned to work through company scholastic officers to keep freshmen and sophomores informed when and where the sessions would be held.

"What we need most now are suggestions on how to make the sessions better and more effective," he said, and asked that anyone with ideas on the matter turn them in to him.

Professors have cooperated very well in preparing the program, Loupot said.

He said professors have always contributed help to students low in grades by giving individual help at anytime in their off hours, and seem willing to help any program which will aid the students scholastically.

Lyons Chosen President Of Health Group

Dr. C. R. Lyons, director of Student Health, was elected president of the Southwestern Section of the American College Health Association during its recent meeting in Austin.

Mrs. Gene Taylor, supervisor of the college hospital clerical staff, was named secretary-treasurer of the association.

Dr. Lyons, who has been active in the ACHA for more than 12 years, was vice president of the group last year, the second year A&M was a member of the organization.

Texas, Oklahoma, Arkansas, Louisiana and New Mexico make up the Southwestern Division. Included in this area are more than 247 colleges, junior colleges, and universities, with all of these schools being prospective members for the organization, said Dr. Lyons.

Letters are being sent to all member colleges by Dr. Lyons inviting them to send representatives to the convention which will be held here for the first time next December.

Dr. Lyons and Warren Bonney, college hospital psychologist, will attend the ACHA National Convention in Los Angeles, California in March of next year.

worried; Crow answered: "She never said anything but the right thing."

The Aggie halfback is the fourth player from the Southwest, and the third from the Southwest Conference, to receive the coveted award. His area forerunners include Davey O'Brien of Texas Christian University, Doak Walker of Southern Methodist University, and Billy Vessles of the University of Oklahoma.

Experiment Station Testing Heat Fans

Centrifugal fan testing facilities, installed in the Texas Engineering Experiment Station several weeks ago, are now undergoing extensive use.

So far, 15 fans have been tested and 22 more test orders have been received, said W. D. Scoates, associate research engineer in charge of testing heat power at the station.

Postmaster Gives More Mailing Hints

Though it is already too late for "early Christmas mailing", Aggies may still help avoid a tremendous last minute pile-up of Christmas mail by sending all gift packages and Christmas cards immediately.

Acting Postmaster Homer B. Adams suggested that persons use Air Mail for every card or gift going to distant out-of-town places. He emphasized that even a few hours delay at such a critical time may mean disappointment for friends and relatives on Christmas day.

A good way to eliminate trouble in mailing is to go to the parcel post window during "off" hours, Adams said. This would avoid large crowds during rush hours of the early morning, at noon, and near the closing hours in late afternoon.

Mailers can avoid losing Christmas cards and parcels by accurate addressing and using three cent, first class postage instead of the unsealed two cent circular rate, he said. Enclosing the postal zone number, which speeds delivery of mail in large cities, is also important.

Adams warned against forgetting to put postage on mail. In such cases, the mail is returned to the sender (if a return address is indicated), causing delay. The only alternative if there is no return address is to notify the addressee and ask him to pay the postage due.

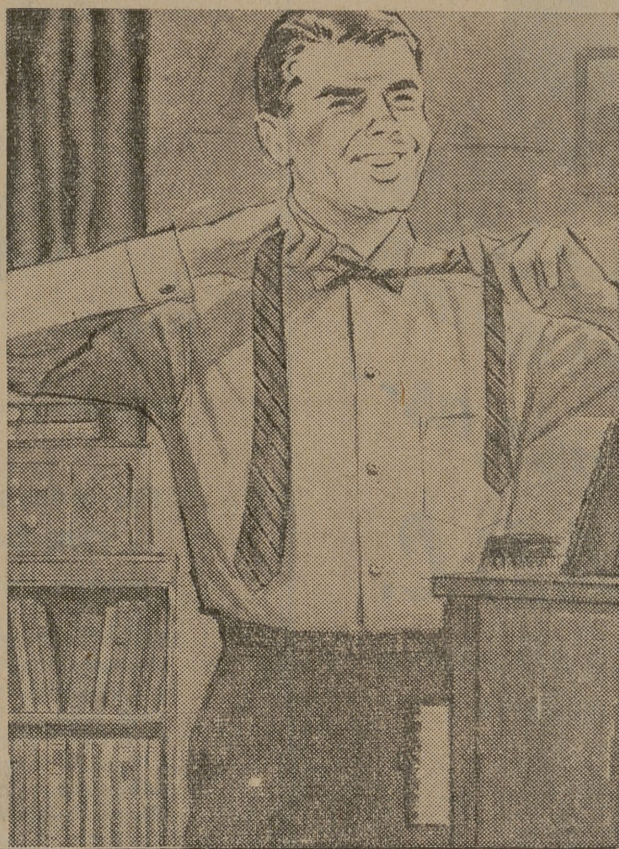

"By following such simple suggestions as mailing early, wrapping carefully, plainly printing the address is to notify the addressee designating zones, citizens will be assured of safe and timely arrival of their Christmas mail," remarked Adams.

Physicists to See Nuclear Reactor

Demonstration of A&M's newly-installed nuclear reactor will highlight the meeting of the Physics Club, next Tuesday at 7:15 p.m.

The club will meet in room 320 of the Physics building and proceed to the mechanical engineering shops where Dr. D. F. Weekes will give the theory and operation of the reactor.

Both members and non-members of the club are encouraged to attend the meeting, but students desiring to attend should come by the physics building and notify the secretary so preparations can be made.
