Act Gentlemanly

Earlier this year, U. S. citizens of another race were threatened by mob violence in Little Rock, Ark. Today, March 1958, females have won their rights in district court to attend all-male A&M and similar mob or violent protest has shown signs of developing. The similar situation has arisen which was referred to in a Battalion editorial during the Little Rock crisis. How are Aggies, known as gentlemen, going to act in this similar situation? If the district court decision is upheld by appellate courts, the two women now seeking admittance and other women and girls will be attending A&M. It will be only the bigot, the lout and the ungentlemanly individual who will stoop so low as to persecute, deride or otherwise underhandedly attack the women students. If the district court ruling is upheld, close female relatives and friends of ours and our Aggie buddies may be attending A&M. Would we wish them to be greeted with derision and profanity simply because they are honestly seeking an education at the school of their choice? To live up to our obligations as Aggies and gentlemen and citizens of a democracy, discrimination and ungentlemanly conduct cannot be a part of our philosophy.

Letters To The Editor

Editor, The Battalion: I have just recovered from reading a Letter to the Editor printed the 26th of Feb. This little pedant seems to be critical of the "moroness" (a word which does not exist in the English language of those who oppose coed at A&M.) He states that "In a college where supposedly the highly qualified citizen of a country, (now entering the outer-space era), (comma error) is being prepared, a boy cannot achieve whole maturity, (comma error) unless he is goaded forward by the complementary stimulus of the opposite sex in the progress." I can just visualize the energetic young coed racing up to a student and jabbing him in the arm with a goad while shrieking "Have you learned how to dance?"

He further declares that the "petty arguments branished (branished misspelled) by these morons "are utterly immature." As I read his letter, a picture formed in my mind. It contained a snot-nosed little brat sporting curls and lace panties as he kicks his schoolmaster in the shins. I refer to the child prodigy of an English peer, Little Lord Fauntleroy. Besides his obvious need to repeat English 100, this pseudo-intellectual who wrote the letter needs to leave A&M. He neither belongs in the Corps of Cadets nor with us non-regs who are loyal to the school.

Speaking of co-eds, everyone is. Speaking of co-eds. Even Pinkie Downs. Yesterday he said the MSC Gift Shop was ordering some sweaters with "My Mom is a Texas Aggie" on them.
