

CE Prof Delays Retirement, Tour

Carl Edward Sandstedt, professor of civil engineering has delayed his retirement for two years to serve as a civil engineering consultant to the University of Dacca in East Pakistan.

According to Jack Gray of the Office of Foreign Programs, Sandstedt has agreed to serve for two years as a member of the team of consultants from A&M to the University of Dacca.

This is part of the Inter-College Exchange Program, which was started in the fall of 1954. It is sponsored by the U. S. Department of State and is designed to lend educational aid to improve the engineering, agricultural, vet medicine, and other related fields of the participating colleges and universities.

Ten members of the staff of A&M are working with the University of Dacca and its affiliated colleges at the present time, according to Gray.

They help to improve the facilities for training the university's staff, some of whom are here at A&M now. They also help to improve research facilities and to do some teaching.

Sandstedt had originally planned to retire and take a world trip, but when the University of Dacca requested a civil engineering consultant he agreed to go, said Gray.

The Little League Corner

By KIM JOHNS

Friday proved that the Senators and the White Sox have the winning combinations, the former posting a 16-2 victory over the Orioles and the latter edging by the Red Sox in a 1-0 pitcher's battle.

Howard Nelson of the Senators, making his pitching debut, came through with ten strikeouts, walked only two, and allowed Rodney Greer and Tim Erskine a single apiece.

The White Sox won their game in the bottom of the sixth inning when Joe Powell scored as Sonny Benividez hit a grounder to the short stop. Winning pitcher Jimbo Bevans got the only White Sox hit of the game. He threw 11 strikeouts against the Red Sox.

In Saturday's make-up games, the White Sox came through with the victories, the Sox gaining a 9-1 win over the Orioles, and the Red Sox turning in an 8-6 victory over the Senators. In the White Sox-Orioles game, the Orioles' third baseman, Jay Pewther, executed the second unassisted double play of the season, and Jimbo Bevans of the White Sox posted two doubles and a single for three trips to the plate.

Monday the White Sox again stumped the Orioles, this time, 14-3. Winning pitcher, Sonny Benividez hurled four strike-outs, and allowed no bases-on-balls.

The Red Sox clipped the Senators, 8-4, in the second Monday game. Victorious pitcher Joe Joyer threw six strike-outs, allowed three hits and walked ten.

Wednesday's battle between the Senators and the White Sox was a thriller, the Sox edging the Senators, 3-1, as Jimbo Bevans and Joe Powell tagged a homer apiece. This was Bevans' sixth homerun of the season.

Wednesday night the Red Sox bowled over the Orioles, 13-3. All but one of the Sox's runs were earned, Randy Hall leading his teammates in runs-batted-in with a total of five, a new record. Winning hurler Billy Mitchell threw five strike-outs and walked none.
