Burton Singles To Win in 10th

By JACK HAND
Associated Press Sports Writer
MILWAUKEE, Wis.—Billy Burton stroked a line drive single to right against fireballing Ryne Duren to give Milwaukee's Warren Spahn a 4-3 victory over the New York Yankees Wednesday in a tense 10-inning opening World Series game.

Benched at the start because left-handed Whitey Ford was pitching for the Yanks, Burton came in as a pinch hitter in the ninth but fanned. Given another chance after singles by Joe Adcock and Del Crandall in the 10th he came through beautifully with a drive that probably would have been good for two bases if more were needed.

A year ago Burton was in the hospital undergoing a knee operation while his Milwaukee mates were upsetting the proud Yankees in seven games. He didn't get back into action until midseason and even now still has trouble with his knee.

Spahn got better as he went along. Justifying Manager Fred Haney's move in starting him over Lew Burdette, the three-time winner of last year.

In one stretch from the sixth until the 10th, Spahn retired 14 straight Yankees. Ford, who had the edge in the early going, stumbled in the eighth when he tired and gave way to Ryne Duren.

Duren was the hard-throwing speedster of early season when he first replaced Ford in the eighth. But the Braves kept after him and finally got to him in the 10th.

Isaac Aaron, perhaps the Brave most feared by the Yankee stall, struck out, opening the 10th. Joe Adcock ripped a single to center and the fat was on the fire.

Wes Covington sent Elston Howard deep into left with the wind helping the ball but the Yankee outfielder caught his long drive. Del Crandall, a Duren strikeout victim on three pitches in the eighth, bounced a high hopper to short center for a single.

That brought up Burton, who used to be a speed demon before he injured his knee. Duren threw a strike and then two balls before Burton lined the game-winning hit to the fence in right center. Nobody ever had a chance to get close to it.

It was an appropriate ending for the roaring crowd of 46,387 who watched this opening game on a cool, sunny afternoon. They were slow to warm up to the excitement of the game but loosened a throaty roar when Burton came through.

Spahn, beaten by Ford in last year's opener at Yankee Stadium, lived up to his season .333 batting average as well as his 22-11 pitching record.

When Ford suddenly ran into trouble in the fourth on a first-ball hitting flurry by the Braves, it was Spahn who stroked the single to center that scored Crandall with the tie-breaking run.

Again in the ninth Spahn tried to start his own rally with a single to right. He got as far as second when Duren walked Red Schoendienst but both were left when pinch hitter Franke Torre and Eddie Mathews failed.

Little Willie Follows Farmer Squad Closely

As surely as the Texas Aggie football team runs onto the practice field for a workout, or Kyle Field for a game, they'll invariably see one of their most ardent admirers somewhere nearby.

For some two years now, ever since his mother said he was old enough to make his way over to the campus from adjacent College Station, young Willie Edmonds has witnessed every Aggie home workouts. A crew-cut, freckle-faced lad of 10, Willie is held in high esteem by the Aggies, many of whom regard him as the team mascot. "Secret Practice—No Admittance," reads a grim, foreboding sign greeting the would-be visitor to the practice confines of Kyle Field. To little Willie the sign holds no authority, for such is his position in life that he roams the practice field and dressing and training rooms at his leisure, picking up one of his hero's game chin straps, a scrap of old equipment here, and maybe, if he has a particularly lucky day, a wornout football.

Willie, one of the most successful collectors of chin straps among the dozens of local youngsters who swarm Kyle Field after every game, numbers among his collection those of such Aggie heroes as John Crow, Charley Krueger and Richard Gay.

On the Monday after the Baylor game in 1957, when the Aggies attained the ranking of No. 1 team in the nation, little Willie, waiting at the dressing room door, greeted his favorite hero, John Crow, then on his way to winning the Heisman Trophy and All-American honors. "Hey, Crow!" he yelled. "Where 'ya gonna be tomorrow at 4:30?" "I'll probably be right here, Willie," answered Crow.

To which reply, Willie, unabashed at the presence of his favorite hero, commanded: "Well, stick around awhile, I've got a couple of friends I want you to meet!" All-American Crow was there.

Farmers Spirited In Practice Drills

The Aggie varsity charged through a spirited workout yesterday with all the exuberance of colts, but still the session was termed "not as good as Tuesday's" by the coaching staff.

"We've had a pretty good practice all this week," said Head Coach Jim Myers. Tuesday was the Farmers' first day in pads since the University of Houston game.

The Cadets spent the bulk of the practice on defense and kicked against the fourth team. Center Ray Northrup missed the drill with an injured knee but should be ready to play Saturday, according to Trainer Smokey Harper.

Myers said Wingback Randy Sims and Jon Few, both sophomores, were running neck and neck for the outside position, and either may start.

The Aggie mentor still had nothing but praise for the UH squad. "Houston was the first team I've ever played against, with no games under its belts, that made no mistakes," he said.

"We've made 600," Myers added, "and in only two games." The squad will begin taping off today with emphasis placed on offense. Tailback Charley Miltstead now seems to have the No. 1 slot sewed up tight, with Powell Berry running the second unit and Ed Dudley running the third.

The rivalry between the Smith brothers, Don and Ralph, is still going strong for the end position, with senior Don now having the edge over sophomore Ralph.

Miltstead's talented kicking toe has been the only saving grace in the Aggies' two defeats by Texas Tech and the University of Houston. The junior has averaged 53.8 yards per kick to lead the nation in that department.

The Aggies are favored to win the Missouri game by 13 points, according to Will Grimsley, Associated Press sports writer.

UT's Darrell Royal Doesn't 'Cry Wolf'

Austin, Tex.—Head Coach Darrell Royal said Wednesday he wasn't "crying wolf" but Texas Tech could beat the University of Texas here Saturday in a non-conference football game.

Texas has won its first two games this year. "I feel we really didn't play too good against Tulane," Royal told the Longhorn Club. Texas defeated Tulane, 21-20.

"I know if we don't play better against Tech, we'll be defeated. I'm not crying wolf. I told the squad that."
