U. S. In Favor of Nuclear Ban

WASHINGTON—The United States intends to go ahead with a one-year ban on nuclear weapons tests beginning Friday—unless Russia carries out another nuclear test, the State Department said Thursday.

Radioactivity Increase in California

LOS ANGELES—A sharp increase in radioactivity over Southern California Thursday set off a wave of indignation and apprehension.

Mayor Norris Poulson telephoned a protest to Washington. He demanded that the all but completed atomic weapons tests in Nevada be halted immediately.

The City Health Department said the amount of radioactivity in the air rose 20 per cent above the accepted safe level for human consumption over a period of months.

Miners Rescued From Wreckage

SPRINGHILL, Nova Scotia—Twelve sturdy miners emerged from a wrecked coal mine Thursday with a story of hunger, thirst, prayer, and despair during six black days of entombment.

"I just lay there and I prayed," said one miner of the days of darkness deep in the mine.

Then when the click of a rescue crewman's pick Wednesday told them deliverance was near, "I hollered," said another.

Final March-In Set By Corps Saturday

The Corps of Cadets will perform a march-in at the A&M-Arkansas football game. The order of march will be: Band, Corps Staff, 2nd Wing, 1st Wing, 2nd Regt., and 1st Regt., according to the Department of Military Science.

First call for the Cadets will be at 6:35 p.m., assembly 6:40 p.m., move out 6:43 p.m. The last unit must clear the track by 7:15 p.m.

England, Ireland and Sweden are the only European nations where motorists drive on the left side of the road.

Meteorological Unit Nears Completion

Trailers that are to house micro-meteorological equipment to be used in the Hanford, Wash., survey are nearing completion, Dr. William Clayton said.

The basic unit is a 26-foot semi-trailer which is completely insulated and plywood lined. It also includes tile flooring and electrical power facilities. Unit Number two is lacking exterior paint.

Measuring devices to be used are under construction under the guidance of Jerry Merryman. Clayton said that much of the equipment is partially complete and will be completed as parts arrive.

FT. JACKSON, S. C. (AP)—The government rested its case Thursday in the general court-martial of a young Army officer charged in connection with the "grease tray" episodes at this infantry training base.

Lt. Gerald L. Wheatley, 23, Bridgeton, N. J., pleaded innocent to three charges of assault and battery, two of conduct unbecoming an officer and one charge of maltreating recruits.

Wheatley, a 1956 graduate of The Citadel, faces a maximum sentence of 3½ years in prison and dismissal from the service if convicted on all six charges.

The defense managed to get one witness before the court-martial board before it recessed until Friday morning.

Wheatley's counsel read into the record three Army efficiency reports on the officer. These described him as a "courteous, considerate and aggressive officer" who showed "great willingness to accept responsibility."

Earlier, however, a young trainee—William A. Frisby, Asheville, N. C.—testified for the prosecution that he thought "the world had come to an end" when he and other fledgling soldiers first joined the recruit company commanded by Wheatley.

Frisby said sergeants under Wheatley's command "pulled us off trucks and started cussing and kicking us."

Highlights of the morning testimony came when two sergeants, who were members of the training company Wheatley once commanded, took refuge in a military Fifth Amendment when called as prosecution witnesses.

Although both were convicted in previous "grease trap" trials, they declined to answer any questions on grounds answers might tend to incriminate them.

Beekeepers to Hold Meeting Nov. 10-11

The 77th Annual Texas Beekeepers Association will hold its meeting in the Memorial Student Center Nov. 10 and 11, Claud J. Burgin, secretary treasurer, announced yesterday.

A "Beekeeper's Buzz" will be held Nov. 9, in the YMCA from 7-10 p.m.

Monday morning the business meeting will begin after registration in the MSC. Jim Petty, president, will be in charge, and Walter T. Kelley of Clarkston, Ky., will be the principal speaker. His topic will be "Two Queen System of Beekeeping."

Emphasis has been placed on a short course for beginners to be held in the Biological Sciences Building, Tuesday at 9:30 a.m.

All who are interested are invited to attend the meeting and the short course, he said.

In a public opinion poll in Sweden, about 30 percent of those questioned said the United States is the country they would most like to visit.

Methodist Aggies Start New Project

Members of the Wesley Foundation have started painting the interior of their meeting place.

The building, a World War II barracks, was converted to its present state in 1952. It was used for church services prior to this time. Rev. Bob Cooper, director of the Wesley Foundation, stated the building had not been painted since 1952.

Ken Dalchau is in charge of the project. Methodist Aggies are urged to lend a hand in the work. "No experience is needed," said Dalchau.

John W. Hill, personnel insurance and safety director of the A&M College System, has been honored by the National Safety Council for his efforts in behalf of college and university safety.

He was presented with a plaque while attending the 46th National Safety Congress in Chicago, Illinois, recently.

Dr. Lowell B. Fisher, president of the North Central Association for Colleges and Secondary Schools, and vice president of the National Safety Council for schools and colleges, made the presentation during the general session of the School and College Division of the National Safety Council.

The plaque is inscribed . . . "in appreciation for outstanding and devoted service as general chairman of the Higher Education Section, 1957-58."

During the past several years, Hill has worked for the reactivation of the Higher Education Section as a formal part of the National Safety Council. His efforts were culminated with success when the section was reorganized in October, 1957. He was named chairman of the section.

While serving as chairman this past year, he directed the organization of three subdivisions of the Higher Education Section—campus safety, research and college safety education.

Hill was re-elected chairman of the section for another year.

In presenting the plaque, Fisher declared that it was through Hill's efforts that the Conference on College and University Safety was held on the A&M campus last February. Fisher said it was the first conference in the nation devoted to college and university safety.

Hill participated in various other phases of the Congress in Chicago. He represented A&M as a voting delegate at the annual meeting of the National Safety Council and attended meetings of two committees on which he has membership.

One is the advisory committee of "Safety Education", a magazine published by the School and College Division of the National Safety Council, and the other is a special committee striving to develop a standard form to be used by all colleges and universities for reporting student injuries.

Hill has been active in the field of safety for many years and has taken part in the activities of the National Safety Council for the past 12 years. During World War II he served as coordinator of the Air Force Ground Safety School at Chanute Field, Ill., the only such school in the Air Force.

Prior to joining the A&M System as director of Workmen's Compensation Insurance on May 1, 1948, he was a safety engineer in the Insurance Division of the State Highway Department.

He set up an accident prevention course in the A&M Department of Industrial Education and taught the course for five years.

Court Says Reporters Can Protect Sources

WASHINGTON (AP)—The Supreme Court Thursday was asked to declare newspaper reporters have a constitutional right to refuse to reveal news sources.

The request was made in an appeal filed on behalf of television columnist Marie Torre of the New York Herald Tribune. She was sentenced to 10 days in jail for refusing to divulge the source of a story she wrote about singer Judy Garland.

Miss Torre based her defense on the Constitution's First Amendment which guarantees freedom of the press. She contended the amendment gave her the right to decline to disclose the name of a Columbia Broadcasting System executive who assertedly was the source of information for the story about Miss Garland.

"At stake is the public's right to know the news—and the press freedom to gather it," the appeal to the Supreme Court said. "This case presents a question of vital importance to every newspaper in the United States . . ."

Federal Dist. Judge Sylvester J. Ryan of New York imposed the sentence on Miss Torre after expressing sympathy for her. He ruled, however, that her position was improperly taken. Miss Torre then was released on her own recognizance.

Later the U. S. Circuit Court in New York upheld the contempt conviction of Miss Torre. An opinion by Judge Potter Stewart now a Supreme Court justice declared, "The contempt that it is the duty of a witness to testify in a court of laws has roots as deep as does the guarantee of a free press."

Miss Torre's article was published by the Herald Tribune on Jan. 10, 1957. Miss Garland later filed a $1,393,333 breach of contract and libel suit against CBS. Neither Miss Torre nor the Herald Tribune was named as a defendant in the suit.

But Miss Torre became involved when she was called as witness and refused to give the name of the CBS executive.

Safe Program For Bonfire Set By Instructor

A safety program is being formulated again this year for the bonfire according to Frank Nixon, Nixon, safety instructor in the Department of Industrial Education, has helped direct the program for two years and has seen the accident rate reduced 40 per cent.

Although Nixon has not received official word from the Corps plans have already been started. These plans call for a safety program presented a week before the building of the bonfire. The program will consist of a talk by Nixon or a member of the Student Safety Society to each dorm. Slide pictures taken last year will be shown to help impress the importance of safety while building the bonfire.

Areas to be covered include the correct method of using an ax, proper clothing to wear, correct position in lifting a log and basic first-aid practices.

Nixon concluded by saying he felt sure the program would be very effective if it helped to get the students "safety conscious."
