12th Man Bowl, Parking Aches Hit By Student Senate

By FRED MEURER
Battalion Managing Editor

Problems and activities ranging from car registration and its consequences to the 12th Man Bowl were bounced around by the Student Senate last night, although no final lines of action were drawn on any of the issues.

This year's 12th Man Bowl, pitting Air Force and Army cadet football teams, will be held either on March 6 or 13, the Senate decided. One man from each Corps unit and four residents of each civilian dormitory may try out for the teams on a date which will be announced later.

President John Thomas said some voluntary aid has already been offered to make arrangements for the Senate-sponsored scuffle and that more will be sought soon. This is the first time in recent years that Civilians will participate in the contest.

Parking Discussed

In an attempt to ease pressure on a sore spot felt by students, the Senate renewed an attack on "inadequate" parking facilities for students, an issue that has been hovering in the air since last September.

In a report from Bill Myers, chairman of the Issues Committee, it was learned that a string of traffic sub-committees is still awaiting a meeting with Campus Security. The Senate first entered the picture in September when Campus Security asked that a traffic committee be set up to study phases of the problem. Myers' committee took over the task.

According to Thomas, Campus Security appointed members of the committee at that time to appraise various auto-connected conflicts on the campus and promised to call a conference with them later. Thomas said the meeting had still not been called.

Since September, Myers and Harley McAdams have graded each parking lot on the campus as to if and when they should be paved or otherwise improved. However, the issue is still at a stalemate, they reported.

Thomas said the Senate would delve into the problem anew to find out just where student registration and parking violation monies are going.

Other Business

Don Rummel, chairman of the Welfare Committee, reported that five per cent of the Campus Chest had been given to the March of Dimes, bringing the total of welfare grants to 35 per cent. Five per cent still remains to be allocated, according to a budget set up at the beginning of the year.

Thomas told the Senate five Baylor students would visit the campus Saturday to renew discussion of the A&M-Baylor student fracas in Waco after a basketball game last month. The group will meet with five Aggies in an attempt to ease tensions between the two schools. (See related story, below, columns 5 and 6.)

The RV's, who leave Saturday, will serve as honor guard for King Rex. Also on the agenda is the Rex Ball Tuesday night and a luncheon in a French Quarter restaurant as the guest of the New Orleans A&M Club.

The Mardi Gras trip is an annual affair for the RV's and is financed entirely by individual members, with the exception of housing, which has been arranged for at Camp Leroy Johnson.

RV officers include Melbern G. Glascock, commander, mechanical engineering major from Houston; Herbert E. Whalen, executive officer, petroleum and geological engineering major from Beeville; Robert F. Hunter, administrative officer, senior civil engineering major from Dallas.

Curtis, platoon leader, business administration major from Pearsall; Robert F. Turner, first sergeant, electrical engineering major from San Antonio.

The RV's will return to Aggie-land Wednesday.

Religious Emphasis Week To Be Held Feb. 15-20

Feb. 15 marks the beginning of the 17th annual Religious Emphasis Week on the A&M campus.

Each night at 7:15, 15 dorm counselors will be available for group discussions on topics of interest as shown in the results of the interest locators handed out to students earlier this year.

In addition to these men, Dr. James Wood, professor at Baylor University will lead faculty forums and discussion groups in the YMCA.

Dr. Robert Ledbetter, director of the Wesley Foundation in Austin will lead the forums and discussion groups for the married students, also in the YMCA.

The convocation speaker for this year will be Dr. Ernest Remley, Pastor of the Collegiate Presbyterian Church of Ames, Iowa.

Dr. Remley will deliver speeches in Guion Hall Monday at 11 a.m., Tuesday and Wednesday at 10 a.m. and Thursday and Friday at 9 a.m.

Born in Boulder, Colo., Dr. Remley graduated from Colorado State University in 1940, earned his Bachelor of Divinity at McCormick Seminary in 1943, his M.S.Th. degree from Northwestern University, and his Th. D. from the Biblical Seminary of New York in 1948. During and following the war

Three A&M Men Plan AF Research

Three A&M men have returned from Florida, where they discussed future meteorological instrumentation research with Air Force officials.

Dr. William H. Clayton, Dr. Vance E. Moyer and Archie Kahan met recently with U. S. Air Force representatives at Eglin Air Force Base in Florida to discuss proposed research in meteorological instrumentation.

Clayton is an assistant professor of physical oceanography and Moyer is an associate professor of meteorology. Kahan is executive director of the A&M Research Foundation.

College Given Big Improvement Via Face-Lifting

A series of improvements in landscape and inside dormitories have made Aggie-land a little easier on the eye and brightened the environmental atmosphere.

Shrubs planted in the New Corps Area during the past holidays and last week have reduced a former noted drabness in the Cadet housing section. The bushes were installed along Dorms 2, 4 and 6.

In addition, the bugle stand and flagpole, standing all alone in the center of the quadrangle between Dorms 1 and 2, have been encircled by new shrubbery as well as a gravel path leading to and around them.

Before the holidays, new sidewalks were laid around Mitchell Hall, and others were added in front of Sbis Dining Hall.

Venetian blinds costing approximately $8,936.11 have been installed recently in several buildings on the campus, according to Raymond L. Rogers, assistant manager in the Office of Physical Plants.

A College Station firm hung $6,122.95 worth of blinds in Dorm 6, 12 and 14, Milner and Leggett. Rogers said nine of the "Shacks" (temporary classrooms) also were adorned with blinds by an Austin firm which was awarded a $2,813.16 contract for the work by the College Board of Control.

It was learned Wednesday that Milner Hall will be completely renovated to the tune of about $10,000. Students living in the dormitory will vacate their rooms Saturday and move to Dorm 16 so that the work can be done.

CORRECTION

The Valentine's Dance will be in the living room of Capps Hall from 8-11 p.m. Saturday at Texas Woman's University, Denton.

In a story which appeared in The Battalion yesterday the headline said the dance would be Friday night at 8.

As in the past the Aggies have been invited to this annual dance, according to John Sackett, Class of '59 social chairman.

The dance will be a semi-formal affair for girls and formal for Aggies.

Dates will be on a first-come-first-served basis. But Aggies who want to make sure of a date can do so by rushing a date application to the date bureau at Tesseland. These applications are available in Room 210 of the YMCA.

The University band will provide music for the dance.

er in Religious Emphasis Weeks at Jamestown College, Colorado State College, Missouri University, Wisconsin University, Missouri Valley and Buena Vista. Dr. Remley will live in the Board Rooms.

Dorms 6 and 8 discussion groups will be led by Rev. Jack H. Pritchard, pastor of the Hemphill Presbyterian Church, Fort Worth. These meetings will be held in the lounge of Dorm 8.

Rev. Pritchard was born in Breckenridge, attended Oklahoma City University and graduated from the Presbyterian Theological Seminary at Princeton, New Jersey. He has served pastorates in Oklahoma and New Mexico and was minister to students at the University of Arizona, in Tucson.

String Quartet Plays Tonite In Arts Show

By GAYLE McNUTT
Executive News Editor

The next three days will wind up an array of talent which is probably the greatest spectacle of the arts ever witnessed in a given week on the A&M campus.

The Hollywood String Quartet, four Hollywood film studio musicians who began playing quartets together as a hobby and later became famous, tonight at 8 will mark the sixth performance in the first annual A&M Fine Arts Festival.

Playing in the Memorial Student Center Ballroom, the quartet is a MSC Recital Series presentation, its fourth of the season.

The Hollywood String Quartet first became known through their recordings and was invited to play at the Edinburgh Festival of 1957. This performance was followed by a trans-continental tour, which spread their fame throughout the nation.

All four members of the quartet have a wide musical background and each still plays the first chair position in one of the major studio orchestras. Individually, their musical records include conducting, concert soloist and membership in major orchestras.

Making up the group are Felix Slatkin, first violinist; Paul Shure, second violinist; Alvin Dinkin, violist; and Eleanor Aller, the only female in the quartet, bass viol.

Entremont Shines
Last night, Philippe Entremont, 24-year-old French pianist now on his fifth transcontinental tour, displayed his talents in the MSC ballroom. Despite his youth, Entremont showed the dexterity of a master in an extremely polished performance.

But a look at the record of the young pianist makes his brilliant performance quite clear. After becoming Laureate in the international Long-Thibaud competition, held annually in Paris, at the age of 16, Entremont at 19 became First Laureate and Grand Prize winner in the international Marguerite Long-Jacquest Thibaud competition. He now holds an exclusive recording contract with Columbia Masterworks.

'Antigone' Repeats
The string quartet will conclude the musical performances for the Fine Arts festival, but the final curtain won't go down on the week-long parade of events until the Aggie Players conclude their third performance of "Antigone" Sunday afternoon in the MSC Ballroom.

The Players' first performance of Sophocles' famous Greek tragedy Tuesday night recorded a shining success as voiced by the audience. The curtain will rise at 8 p.m. Saturday on their second production of the recital reading of the tragedy in a new translation by Theodore Howard Banks, professor of English and Greek scholar at Wesleyan University in Middletown, Conn. Sunday's production begins at 3 p.m.

The first presentation of the full week of entertainment in all phases of the fine arts opened Sunday afternoon with Hungarian tenor Leslie Chabay, a former member of the Metropolitan Opera Co., and now a recitalist and soloist. His renditions before a sparse but appreciative audience can be called highly successful.

Boston Pops Were Tops
And a delighted audience left the Boston Pops orchestra, under the baton of Arthur Fiedler, with little doubt of their success. The versatile orchestra, playing the kind of music "the public wants to hear," was by far the largest drawing card of the week. A crowd of more than 4,000 heard the orchestra Monday night in G. Rollie White Coliseum.

Wednesday's lecture on fine arts by Amy Freeman Lee, noted authority on the subject, rounded out the week's events and was one of the week's most educational presentations to art lovers. Her speaking appeal has been illustrated through more than 500 lectures from the platform, radio, and television over the past 10 years.

Baylor Fracas on Agenda For Meeting Here Saturday

Student leaders from Baylor and A&M will meet Saturday at 3:30 p.m. in the Birch Room of the Memorial Student Center to thrash out the growing "tension" which has arisen between the two schools.

The meeting was called at a previous joint meeting between the schools on Jan. 16 in which students and staff from here met with W. C. Perry, dean of men at Baylor and two of his assistants. At the request of W. L. Penberthy, director of Student Activities, action to prevent further demonstrations like the one on the Baylor campus Jan. 9 was deferred until students from both schools could talk the problem over.

At 5 p.m. yesterday plans were made to limit the attendance at the meeting to students only. After the discussion both groups will have dinner with representatives from both schools in the MSC.

The students presenting Baylor's side of the situation have not yet been named. According to Perry, however, they will be made up of the president of Baylor's student body, president of their Chamber of Commerce, a representative from their weekly newspaper, The Larait, their head cheerleader and one athlete.

Six Aggies will sit in on the conference. They are John Thomas, president of the Student Senate; Joseph (Jake) Sekerka, vice president of the Senate; Charles Graham, vice president of the Civilian Student Council and ex-officio member of the Senate; Don Cloud, Corps commander; J. C. Burton, acting sergeant major; and Joe Buser, editor of The Battalion.

Administrators Ask for Added Financial Help

By The Associated Press

AUSTIN — A&M officials pointed to their college yesterday as a "poor boys' school."

"It's the cheapest place I know to go to school," Vice President Earl Rudder told the House Appropriations Committee.

Rudder, President M. T. Harrington and numerous members of the A&M board asked the committee to appropriate $5,300,000 a year from the general revenue fund for the college instead of the $4,200,000 recommended by the Legislative Budget Board.

The budget board did not recommend any increase in teaching salaries, which Harrington said was the paramount problem.

"We like to think that if a boy really wants to go to college he can afford to go to A&M," Rudder said. "Tuition is the same at all state colleges, but at A&M room and board costs only $1.87 a day."

Freshmen and sophomores get a federal clothing allowance because military instruction is compulsory the first two years.

"Then there is not all the social activity and not all the things to do like at the other schools," Rudder said. "Instead of running around at night our students are supposed to be studying with a CQ (charge of quarters) watching them."

Harrington and Rudder were asked if they thought hazing at A&M in past years, the compulsory military participation, and the Aggies' success or lack of success in athletics had any effect on the size of the freshman class.

"Statistics won't prove there is any effect," Harrington said.

"I hope athletic success isn't tied to the size of the freshman class," Rudder said.

Rudder was asked several questions about hazing. He said there was nothing new but "mental hazing"—such as making freshmen pass food to upperclassmen before helping themselves.

"We ride herd on it and stay on it pretty good," Rudder said. "Every day I get a report on my desk of any freshman who resigns, and I look into each one."

Aggie officials and board members stood up for the compulsory military training which was reinstated last September after a lapse of several years. However, some parents expect too much, they said.

"Some parents expect us to take a freshman and do in just 4½ months what they have failed to do in 18 years," Rudder said.

In addition to Harrington and Rudder, A&M executives present included W. C. Freeman, System Comptroller; C. A. Roeber, college business manager, and directors H. B. Zachry, E. B. Darby, A. E. Cudlipp, and Price Campbell.

Saturday Last Day To Add Courses

Tomorrow is the last day for students to add courses, for the Spring Semester, according to H. L. Heaton, registrar.

A student who desires to change any course in which he is currently registered must obtain the written recommendation of the head of each department concerned and the approval of the dean of his school.
