

Traffic Safety Meet Opens Tomorrow

Some of Texas' brightest young men and women are least aware of danger when it comes to traffic. That is one of the problems that will be on the agenda tomorrow when representatives from some 50 Texas colleges and universities meet in the second statewide conference on college and university safety in the Memorial Student Center. The meet will continue through Thursday.

"We don't have adequate records on traffic deaths of college students," declared the A&M System's personnel insurance and safety director, John W. Hill, "but we do know, from pilot studies made during the last five years, that college students destroy themselves in traffic accidents at a higher rate proportionally than do any other persons in their age group.

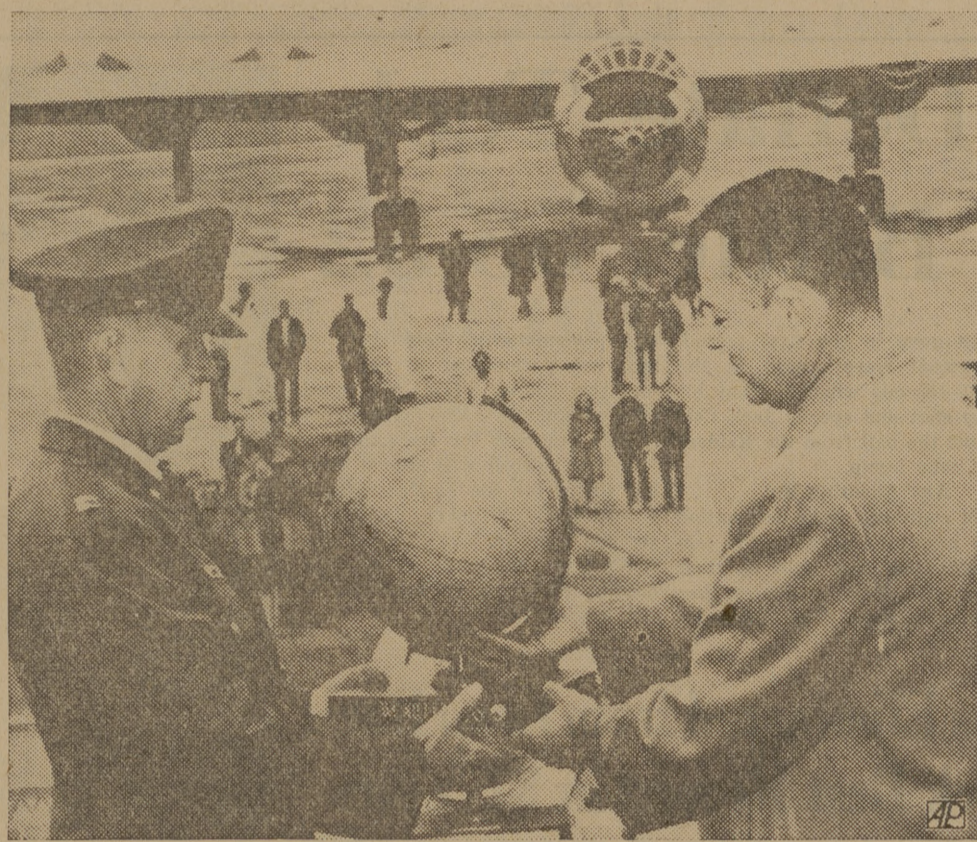

"This is tragic. It's also absurd, for these are the so-called superior groups of young people, yet they kill themselves off in traffic accidents worse than any others their age.

"We are losing some of our finest and most promising young men and women," he added "in an area in which we are supposed to be educating them for life."

Safety directors and experts on safety problems from all junior colleges, colleges and universities in Texas have been invited to the two-day meeting. The conference will be held in cooperation with a national effort by the higher education section of the National Safety Council and the Texas Safety Assn., aimed at reducing the tragic death losses.

STARTED BITING

Cumberland Va. (AP)—The fish just wouldn't bite for fishermen at Bear Creek Lake. Associated Press staff writer Bill Johnson gave up the fishing idea to play with his small daughter in the water. Just then a bass struck a small mole on his back—hard enough to draw blood. Bill says it was only an eight-incher that he saw swimming away.

Bigham, left, Biggs AFB, El Paso, who is receiving a world globe symbolizing his completion of 5,000 hours flown in a B-36. Presenting the award is Frank Davis, vice president and general manager of Convair's Fort Worth plant. (AP Wirephoto)

Cornell Professor Speaks to Chemists

Dr. Clive M. McCay, professor of nutrition at Cornell University, will address the local section of the American Chemical Society on Monday at 7:45 p.m. in room 231 of the new wing of the Chemical Building.

Dr. McCay's topic will be "Basic Science in the Attack Upon Senescence and the Diseases of Old Age." Using slides, McCay will review 30 years of research directed toward the retardation of senescence and modification of the common diseases of old age such as cancer, arthritis and deterioration of the bones and teeth.

Following the lecture Dr. and Mrs. Carl Lyman will host an informal social hour at their home for Dr. and Mrs. McCay. Dr. Lyman is head of the Department of Biochemistry and Nutrition.

Research Engineer Attends Exposition

B. J. Fluker, associate research engineer in the Heat Power Group, Texas Engineering Experiment Station, attended the annual meeting of the American Society of Heating and Air Conditioning Engineers and the biennial International Heating and Air Conditioning Exposition, held recently in Philadelphia, Penn.

He attended as a delegate, various sessions and conducted technical conferences with persons interested in the Station's work.

At the Station Fluker heads the cooling tower research and testing laboratory.

A Campus-to-Career Case History

"In my job, I get the variety and responsibility I wanted"

"Each new assignment brings me greater responsibility and more challenging work. I have the satisfying feeling that I'm getting ahead in management," says Charles F. Barefield, B.S.E.E., Alabama Polytechnic '56. "That's what I was looking for when I joined Southern Bell Telephone and Telegraph Company."

"Following three months of interdepartmental training, my next training step was as a supervisor in the Plant Department. My assignments were varied to give me experience in handling technical and supervisory situations. In June, 1957, within a year after joining the company, I was appointed Plant Foreman supervising a group of men responsible for telephone installation and maintenance at Auburn, Alabama."

Six months later—in January, 1958—Charlie became Transmission Supervisor in Birmingham. "This assignment involves responsibility for accepting newly installed systems, analyzing performance and recommending modifications for improvement," Charlie explains. "I work with the many different groups responsible for engineering, installation and operation of telephone circuits. These circuits range all the way from wires to microwave radio."

"I have been getting the variety and responsibility I looked for," Charlie says. And he sees a bright future ahead for himself and Southern Bell. "The telephone industry is growing fantastically and chances for advancement go along with growth," he points out.

Many young college men like Charles Barefield are finding interesting and rewarding careers with the Bell Telephone Companies. Check into the opportunities available for you. Talk with the Bell interviewer when he visits your campus. And read the Bell Telephone booklet on file in your Placement Office.
