Leaders to Discuss Open House Set By CS Schools

WASHINGTON (AP)—President Eisenhower has invited Britain's Prime Minister Harold Macmillan to Washington to discuss moves to block the Soviet Union's drive to force the Western Allies out of Berlin.

Macmillan is expected to accept promptly, probably flying to Washington late next week after visits to Paris and Bonn.

The White House said the British leader was asked Tuesday to come at his convenience. It had been widely anticipated that Macmillan would come here to report on his talks with Russian Premier Nikita Khrushchev.

Officials said they expect Macmillan to give his appraisal of the limits to which Khrushchev will go in his process determination to end four-power rule in Berlin by May 27.

About the same time the White House was disclosing the invitation to Macmillan, Moscow reiterated it intends to turn over to the Communist East Germans authority over the West's access routes to Berlin.

The Soviets also repeated that if the Western powers use tanks and planes to keep their hold in West Berlin, it would mean world war.

Eisenhower has said repeatedly the United States and its Allies have no intention of abandoning their responsibilities to West Berlin.

The Kremlin's restatement of position was set forth in a note to the Polish and East German ambassadors to Moscow and reported in dispatches from Warsaw and Berlin.

The timing appeared to some observers to be a deliberate slap at Macmillan, who returned to London Tuesday from a 10-day visit to Russia.

On his arrival in London, Macmillan said he and Russian leaders did not agree on many important issues, but he added: "These talks were all the better for being frank. We did agree that these vital problems of Central Europe should be settled by negotiation and not by force."

A possible summit conference undoubtedly will be a major topic of the Eisenhower-Macmillan review. Khrushchev urged such a top-level parley as the only way to settle the Berlin crisis and Germany's future.

Just One Stink After Another For Nosy Ags

East Texas farm boys are quite familiar with the process of chopping a 'coon out of a hollow log, but three A&M day students had a new experience yesterday when they chopped a 'possum out of the wall in their apartment house.

It was quite an obnoxious 'possum too—at least the odor he was emitting was extremely obnoxious.

The hunt began yesterday morning when the three couples, Mr. and Mrs. Dick Noack, Mr. and Mrs. Jerry Vincent and Mr. and Mrs. Wayne Thompson, who live in an apartment house at 1026 Foster, were greeted in the early hours by an audacious odor. After a thorough search failed to turn up the source, a plumber was called to check the sewer pipes. Still the smell remained a mystery and was continually growing worse.

However, by using their heads or at least part of their heads—their noses—the three "day ducks" found the approximate origination point of the odor in an outside wall of the apartment house.

Then with the help of an axe and other appropriate tools, the three succeeded in dislodging the 'possum—very dead—from the wall. Probably the victim of rat poisoning, the animal had just "holed up and died."

Last night the 'possum was gone, smell and all. Only one thing remained—a gaping hole, approximately 3 by 5 feet, in the side of the house.

Now the three renting couples have a fear about another type of stink—"What is the landlord going to say when he sees this?"
