

Rhodes Awards Made Available To Aggies, Profs

Students and faculty members interested in obtaining information on Rhodes Scholarships can do so by contacting Aldon D. Bell, assistant to the American secretary for the Rhodes Scholarship Trust Fund, in the Birch Room of the Memorial Student Center on Wednesday, March 11.

Bell will be in the Birch Room from 8-12:30 p.m. to give information to anyone interested in the scholarship.

The $1,700 a year scholarship is offered only to those students having at least junior standing at some recognized degree-granting school in the United States. Basis of selection are literary and scholastic ability and attainments, devotion to duty, leadership and a recognized interest and success in sports.

R. H. Ballinger, local Rhodes Scholarship representative, said juniors, in particular, should be interested in getting the information on the scholarship.

Third Lab Manual Published by Lee

The third edition of a laboratory manual by D. Ralph Lee of the Department of Chemistry has been published by the Burgess Publishing Co. of Minneapolis, Minn.

Lee's book, "General Chemistry for Colleges," deals with laboratory experiments, qualitative analysis and solution of problems and is designed for the beginning course in general chemistry for colleges.

The manual, which is used in colleges in the U.S. and in other countries, contains detailed drawings and illustrations by Samuel M. Cleland, professor of engineering drawing.

Thomas J. Barry set a record at Monmouth Park when he saddled 22 winners.

Board Okays Grants For Five Professors

Five grants, amounting to $2,846.25, from the fund for the Improvement of Teaching, were approved for members of the staff of A&M by action of the A&M College System's board of directors, meeting here Saturday.

Grants approved were as follows: To Bill C. Moore, associate professor of mathematics, $866.25 to supplement a grant of approximately $2,700 from the National Science Foundation, to allow Moore to spend the spring semester of 1959 at the second annual training program in numerical analysis, sponsored by the National Bureau of Standards, Washington, D. C.

To M. Gordon Daniels, assistant professor of economics, $700, to assist Daniels in undertaking a Fulbright Grant for nine months as lecturer in economics at the University of Guayaquil, Ecuador, from May, 1959, to Jan., 1960. Daniels will also carry on research in the area of agricultural credit.

To Leon W. Gibbs, associate professor of veterinary anatomy, $330, to assist him in attending courses in the techniques of using radioisotopes in research to be conducted by the special training division of the Atomic Energy Commission, at Oak Ridge, Tennessee, in the summer of 1959.

To Lawrence S. Dillon, associate professor of biology, $700, to assist him in undertaking a National Science Foundation Faculty Fellowship for study at the University of Queensland, Australia. He will observe teaching methods and will probably teach at the university, during a period from Feb. 1, 1959, to Jan. 30, 1960.

To W. C. Banks, professor of veterinary medicine and surgery, $250, to assist him in participating in a summer research program sponsored by the Oak Ridge Institute of Nuclear Studies at the University of Tennessee in the summer of 1959.

Traffic Engineers Make Safety Study

The connection between accidents and freeway design features is being determined in traffic engineering research by the Texas Transportation Institute in Austin, Dallas, Fort Worth, Houston and San Antonio.

The work is being conducted by Charles J. Keese of the Department of Civil Engineering and B. F. K. Mulline of the Department of Engineering Drawing.

Results are already suggesting improved means of reporting accidents by best use of such data by police and engineers, the report shows.

Approximately 6,500 accident reports are providing the data for the plotting of continuous collision diagrams on strip maps in the work to achieve the research objectives.
